3 HOTELS RAZED AS FIRE SWEEPS COLONIAL BEACH

BLAZE IS FANNED BY STRONG WINDS

Fighters Battle to Stop Conflagration as It Spreads Very Rapidly.

The town of Colonial Beach, Va., was endangered early this morning by a blaze, which starting in a three-story frame hotel, quickly spread to two others as it was whipped before a high, biting north wind.

The fire, discovered shortly after midnight, had razed three hotel buildings within an hour. Colonial Beach firemen realized that the fire was beyond their control 20 minutes after it was discovered and put in hurried calls for aid to Dahlgren, the Naval Proving Grounds and Fredericksburg.

At 1 o'clock this morning they were concentrating all their efforts toward keeping the flames from spreading to the Carruthers and Coakley Drug Store, which is located on the block where the blaze broke out.

Three Buildings Soon Ablaze.

The fire started in the Holt House, which is located in the center of the block between the Mount Holly House and the Washington House. The flames rapidly spread in both directions and soon the three buildings were roaring furnaces.

The drug store and the DeAtley House, which is located directly behind the Washington House, caught fire several times, but firemen managed to smother the blazes. The Washington House was run by Mrs. M. M. DeAtley as an annex to the DeAtley House.

Both the Mount Holly House and the Holt House are used during the summer as hotels, but private families were living in them this winter. The families were away from home when the fire started.

Buildings 10 Feet Apart.

The three hotel buildings were only about 10 feet apart. All of them were along the waterfront, in the center of the town.

The high wind and inability of the town's fire forces to cope with the spreading flames sent a tremor of fear throughout the town. Telephonic reports this morning said the fire was not under control, and it was feared the entire town was in danger.

Election Assured For Mrs. Caraway

Far Ahead of 2 Opponents in Senate Balloting in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The election of Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway as United States senator—an honor never before accorded a woman—was assured in early returns tonight from today's special election in Arkansas.

Returns from 47 counties, eight complete and several others almost complete, gave Mrs. Caraway 12,738 votes against 391 for Sam D. Carson and 536 for Rex R. Floyd. Her two opponents were listed as Independents on the ticket.

Mrs. Caraway, who took a seat in the Senate at the opening of the present session under a temporary appointment from Gov. Harvey Parnell, will serve out the unexpired term of her late husband, Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, who died two months ago. The term expires in March, 1933.

Oregon Launches Roosevelt Boom

Action to Place Governor's Name on Ballot Taken by Democrats.

(Associated Press.)

The presidential candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt was formally launched yesterday.

A petition to place the New York governor's name on the Democratic presidential primary ballot in Oregon was filed by George F. Alexander, president of the Franklin D. Roosevelt for President League of that State.

It had been originally intended to file the petition on January 30, the governor's birthday, but the action was hastened so Oregon Democrats would lead the Nation in formally proposing his candidacy.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland is the only Democrat who has announced his candidacy thus far. Former Senator James A. Reed has said he would be pleased to have the Missouri delegation pledged for him.

FARRELL TO RETIRE AS U.S. STEEL HEAD

Says He Will Step Out on April 18, but Keep His Directorship.

New York, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—James A. Farrell announced tonight that he is retiring as president of the United States Steel Corporation. He said his retirement would be effective April 18, the date of the annual board meeting.

Mr. Farrell, who is now 69, has been connected with the steel industry since he started work in a steel wire mill at New Haven, Conn., as a lad of 16. He has been president of United States Steel since January, 1911.

He said he would continue to occupy a place on the corporation's board of directors. His successor as president of the world's largest steel concern has not been named, he added.

Mr. Farrell's retirement had been expected for next year, for then he would have reached the age at which the pension plan of the United States Steel Corporation requires retirement—70 years. Mr. Farrell will reach that age February 15, 1933.

The pension plan gives annually to the retiring executives 1 per cent of the average salary for the last ten years, multiplied by the number of years of their service.

For the fiscal year, 1931, imports totaled £862,174,709, an increase of £181,800,552 over 1930. Exports decreased by £181,591,599 to a total of £389,163,817.

McAdoo Is Considering California Senate Race

Los Angeles, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, said tonight that he is giving "thoughtful consideration" to a proposal that he seek the Democratic nomination for United States senator from California.

"A large number of men and women of standing and character," he said, "have been urging me to enter the race for the United States senate. I have reached no conclusion about it, but I feel that I owe it to them to give the matter thoughtful consideration."

HOLMES CLOSES LONG CAREER IN SUPREME COURT

Unexpectedly "Bows to Inevitable;" Veteran in 91st Year.

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID HIM BY PRESIDENT

Post Will Be Filled at Once; Mitchell and Pepper Mentioned.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who for 30 years enriched the stream of American legal history with the dissenting opinions of a poet and philosopher, relinquished the torch of youth yesterday — less than two months before his ninety-first birthday.

"The time has come and I bow to the inevitable," the venerable patriarch of American jurisprudence said in a brief letter to President Hoover announcing his resignation from the Supreme Court of the United States.

Appointed by Theodore Roosevelt, he had been a member of the higher court since December 1902. He was the oldest active member in the long history of the tribunal.

Interpreter of the law to the last, he wrote his resignation, the final chapter in the voluminous works of Mr. Justice Holmes, "in accordance with the provisions of the Judicial Code as amended, Section 260—Title 28, United States Code 375."

Hoover Pays Him Tribute.

The letter, unexpected even by his associates on the bench, was sent to the White House by a messenger Tuesday morning from Justice Holmes' residence, 1724 I street northwest.

In accepting, President Hoover paid high tribute to Justice Holmes' long and distinguished career of public service.

"No appreciation I could express would even feebly represent the gratitude of the American people for your whole life of wonderful public service," the Chief Executive wrote. "I know of no American retiring from public service with such a sense of affection and devotion of the whole people."

Justice Holmes had endeavored valiantly to remain on the bench until his ninety-first birthday, March 8. He had been eligible for retirement for some 20 years. News of his sudden determination to surrender to the inexorable rapier thrusts of time brought expressions of tribute from public officials, members of the bar and the judiciary throughout the world. In the history of the Supreme Court the name of Justice Holmes takes place beside that of John Marshall.

To Fill Vacancy at Once.

As the court now is in the midst of a busy term, President Hoover has determined to fill the vacancy without delay. A series of conferences between the President and his closest advisers late yesterday afternoon led

Others who have announced their candidacy include former Governor Len Small, whom Emmerson defeated in the primary four years ago; Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, and William H. Malone, former chairman of the State tax commission.

Debris of a span of the old bridge over Sligo Creek on Carroll avenue in Takoma Park, Md., which collapsed yesterday, killing three men. The bridge was being demolished.

Plunge 75 Feet and Are Half Buried Under Tons of Concrete.

Two men were instantly killed and a third was fatally injured yesterday afternoon when a portion of the Sligo Bridge in Takoma Park, Md., which is being demolished, collapsed and fell about 75 feet, half burying the men under tons of concrete.

Guy L. Cowperthwait, of Elkton, Md. foreman of the wrecking crew; Edward T. Tracey, 33 years old, of 493 Jackson avenue, Takoma Park, Md., and Harold Davis, colored, 40 years old, of Media, Pa., were the men caught in the crash. Cowperthwait and Tracey were killed instantly and Davis died a short time later in Washington Sanitarium from internal injuries and a crushed foot and shoulder.

According to William L. Guthrie, a student at the Washington Missionary College, an eyewitness to the crash, six men were working on the span at the time. Three of them managed to run to safety and the Big Arms Supply Seized in Austria

Specter of Civil War Is Raised by Raid on Store of Socialists.

Vienna, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A specter of civil war was raised in Austria today when police confiscated 1,000 rifles, ten machine guns and other war stores in a raid on Socialist party headquarters.

The raid came as a climax to investigations of a suspicion that hand grenades were being manufactured for distribution among Socialist organizations. It threw the spotlight on the gradual arming of rival political camps of which the public long has been vaguely aware.

The Socialists offered no resistance and search of other of their party headquarters throughout the country was expected. They merely pointed out that the Fascist Heimwehr was still better armed. No Socialist leaders were arrested. On the contrary, it was expected that the Socialists would ask in Parliament why arms of the Heimwehr were not confiscated, while the Socialists were compelled to give up theirs, which were only to be used in event of an attack upon them.

Grandson of President Better After Operation

The child is in a hospital here and underwent and operation yesterday. Attending physicians said he was cheerful and much better today. They expected he would be able to leave the hospital in seven or eight days.

Wide Moratorium In Balkans Looms

Bulgaria Will Call Holiday if Not Aided by League, Premier Indicates.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A general moratorium on foreign debts among countries of the Balkans was believed imminent by many observers tonight.

Premier Muchanoff indicated that Bulgaria would declare a moratorium if it did not receive financial help from the League of Nations. Even the stringent economies effected by the government during the past six months could not balance the nation's finances, he told the press, unless help was forthcoming from the league.

His admissions were regarded as particularly significant in view of a similar statement by Finance Minister George Maris, of Greece. Roumania, it was pointed out, also was in difficulties. Finance Minister Constantine Argetoianu now is in Paris trying to negotiate new loans. King Alexander, of Jugoslavia, has just returned from Paris, where 350,000,000 francs (about $13,000,000) were advanced to bolster Jugoslavia's currency. The little kingdom of Albania recently set up five commissions to seek emergency cash with which to balance the budget.

New Jersey Senate Asks Convention for Repeal

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The New Jersey Senate, opening its 156th session today, adopted by a 14 to 5 vote a resolution requesting Congress to call a constitutional convention for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the return of liquor control to the States.

LAVAL RESIGNS WHEN RADICALS REFUSE HIM AID

He and Ministry Asked to Serve Until New Cabinet Is Ready.

ILLNESS OF BRIAND FACTOR IN HIS MOVE

Socialists Block an Attempt to Form Coalition Regime.

Paris, Jan. 12 (A.P.). — Premier Pierre Laval, who headed the government of France for just ten days short of a year, presented the collective resignation of his ministry to President Doumer at the Elysee Palace tonight.

The president, who will start early tomorrow morning on the task of selecting a successor, thanked M. Laval and all of his collaborators for their loyal services, and asked that the cabinet carry on the government until a new ministry has been chosen.

At the last moment M. Laval decided not to oblige all of his colleagues to go in a body to Elysee Palace. Instead, accompanied only by Deputy Cathala, undersecretary of state for interior, he crossed the street from the ministry of the interior to the presidential residence.

It was the first time in ten years that a French premier has resigned voluntarily without being overthrown either in the Senate or in the Chamber.

Briand Factor in Decision.

In January, 1922, Aristide Briand, hurriedly summoned back from the Cannes conference by a resolution of the lower house, faced the deputies with an eloquent defense of his policy and then exclaimed: "That is what I've done. It is up to others to do better." With that statement M. Briand trotted out of the room.

The same Briand, foreign minister now, was one of the factors in M. Laval's decision to resign. The "apostle of peace" has been ill. That fact, together with the death of Minister of War Andre Maginot, made it desirable that the cabinet be reconstituted, and the premier attempted to obtain the support of the radical Socialists, but was unable.

Informed political commentators said that since the Laval government had not been overthrown in Parliament there was no reason why President Doumer should not ask the retiring premier to form another ministry, but his close linking with Andre Tardieu and other moderates would make it difficult for men to complete a national union cabinet with wide representation of the left groups.

Possible Alternative.

During this evening the name of Senator Joseph Paulboncour, often France's representative at Geneva, an ardent defender of French security and at the same time a stanch believer in the League of Nations, came to the fore as a possible rallying point for both the left and the right in case

PARIS AND LONDON REPORTED AGREED ON DEBT REVISION

HELD ANSWER TO BRUENING

Berlin Finance Leader Warns of Risk to Gold Standard.

(Associated Press.)

France threatened yesterday to block renewal of the $100,000,000 short-term credit advanced to Germany jointly with the Bank of England, the Federal Reserve of New York and the World Bank. The credit expires February 4.

Paris newspapers interpreted this action as a direct answer to Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's announcement Saturday that Germany no longer is able to pay reparations.

The World Bank already has approved extending the credit, but that approval was made contingent on similar action by the other participants. American bankers expressed the opinion the Federal Reserve would agree to prolong its $25,000,000 share. They said they doubted the Bank of France would block extension, as that action might force Germany off the gold standard, with consequent unfavorable repercussions in France.

Belgians to Attend Parley.

The Belgian government decided, despite its opposition to Chancellor Bruening's incapacity statement, to send a delegation to the Lausanne conference.

In Rome foreign office spokesmen accepted as in line with government policy an editorial in Premier Mussolini's newspaper demanding that something be done about debts and reparations if civilization is to survive.

Clement Moret, governor of the Bank of France, returned from Basel to Paris yesterday and discussed the reparations question with the regents of the institution.

Press comment was that the French action was a direct answer to the statement of Chancellor Bruening. Many commentators expressed the belief, however, that the bank would consent to an extension for 30 or 45 days.

Gold Standard Risk Cited.

The usually reliable Agence Economique Financiere said such a renewal would be based on a stipulation that Germany begin amortization on the principles adopted for private short-term debts.

Dr. Hans Luther, president of the Reichsbank, was quoted as having told M. Moret at Basel that he ran a grave risk in withholding approval of extension as "you might oblige us to abandon the gold standard."

Financial newspapers remarked that M. Moret's gesture called the attention of the Germans to the fact that at the Lausanne conference they would have to take into account those who hold the international obligations of Germany.

Reciprocal Treaty Due to Be Offered to America.

CANCELLATION BY U.S. IS GOAL

Nation Would Get Share in Proposed German Railroad Bonds.

Paris, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—An agreement between France and Great Britain for settling war debts and reparations was reported tonight as Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British treasury expert, concluded negotiations with government leaders and returned to London.

The accord was understood to provide for a European settlement of the reparations issue which would then be submitted to the United States in connection with possible cancellation or adjustment of the war debts which Europe owes the American Government.

France and Britain would jointly submit the plan to the United States, it was said.

Provisions of Plan.

The plan was reported to provide:

1. A two-year moratorium on conditional reparations payments by Germany to the European powers.

2. Creation of German railway bonds bearing a total of 660,000,000 marks ($158,000,000) to meet the unconditional reparations payments, beginning in 1934.

3. In event of cancellation of the intergovernmental war debts, part of these railway bonds would be allotted to the United States as compensation.

The purported plan was somewhat in line with suggestions from London recently, when it was understood on good authority that France and Britain were working toward an accord on reparations which would permit them to make a joint appeal to the United States for an adjustment of war debts.

The reparations problem would be thrashed out at the Lausanne conference, beginning January 25, when France and Britain are expected to take a definite stand for a two-year moratorium on conditional reparations payments. These payments correspond almost exactly to the war debt payments of France, Britain and Italy to the United States.

Proposal Due to Be Made.

It was said that the European nations were expected to agree that unconditional payments by Germany would be completely annulled if the United States would agree to cancel war debts.

In connection with the creation of railway bonds of the German state-owned roads, it was pointed out that the bonds would bear interest equivalent to the reparations payments for which the railroads are now held responsible. The roads now make payments to the international bank, under the Young plan, but in order to aid Germany in her present difficulties it would be proposed that no interest be paid until 1934.

The plan was described as enabling Germany to recover her economic balance, as only the railroads would be shackled by reparations payments. Furthermore, it was said the railroad payments would merely be comparable to interest payments which all other European state railways are compelled to make on their indebtedness.

Regulars Far in Lead For Cleveland Mayor

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Peter Witt, independent candidate for mayor, fell far behind in the race for the two mayoralty nominations in today's city primary election, as Daniel E. Morgan, Republican, and Ray T. Miller, Democrat, tripled his vote.

The final totals were reliably estimated to approximate 54,000 for Morgan, 46,000 for Miller and 30,000 for Witt.

Woman Killed, 100 Hurt In Mississippi Tornado

Aberdeen, Miss., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—One white woman was killed and approximately 100 persons, most of them white, were injured late today when a tornado struck New Hamilton, a community on the Frisco Railroad, 9 miles south of here.

Three hours after the tornado struck, Aberdeen hospitals were crowded and four ambulances were continuing to bring injured into the town. The dead woman was Mrs. Frank Simmons.

Visiting Publisher Praises Post Contest as Great Aid

Renewed Interest in Bicentennial Will Be Developed, Declares James M. Thomson, of New Orleans; Many More Applications Are Received.

"The Washington Post is to be commended for its initiative in starting The Post Washington Essay Contest," yesterday declared James M. Thomson, publisher and owner of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, who came to Washington last week to attend the Jackson Day dinner. Mr. Thomson is one of the leading newspaper publishers of the South and foremost in civic and business enterprises in New Orleans. He married Miss Genevieve Champ Clark, daughter of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives and Mrs. Champ Clark.

"Not only will the boys and girls who participate in the contest derive great benefit from it, but renewed interest in the bicentennial will be developed in their homes as well. The wholesome lessons of Washington's life and times will be a stimulus to our young people to achieve as he did through industry, patriotic service and devotion to their country.

"I take a special interest in this contest because I began my newspaper career on The Washington Post and am always glad to see it take the lead in progressive endeavors of this kind.

"Too much homage can not be paid to George Washington for the part he played in building this Nation. He was not only a great military genius, but a statesman and far-sighted prophet as well. It was a pleasure to revisit Mount Vernon again the other day and to realize anew the service this greatest of Americans gave in the early days of the Republic. Good luck to the boys and girls in The Post Washington Essay Contest and may their efforts be fruitful of increased admiration for and knowledge of George Washington, as a contemporary once said, 'First in the hearts of his countrymen.'"

The kindly sentiments of Mr. Thomson expressed for The Post Washington Essay Contest are echoed

U. S. Intervened, Favoring Colombia Loan, Says Banker

(United Press.)

State Department officials, headed by Secretary Henry L. Stimson, intervened in favor of a loan to Colombia which bankers did not want to advance because financial conditions were unsatisfactory, the Senate finance committee was told yesterday.

Victor Schoepperle, vice president of the National City Co., and Wirt W. Lancaster, counsel for the National City Bank, testified to conversations with Stimson, Assistant Secretary Francis White and H. Freeman Matthews, assistant chief of the Latin-American Division.

Schoepperle, after fencing with committeemen all morning and most of the afternoon, admitted his impression that the department was trying to change his view that Colombia's budget should be balanced before any money was advanced.

Lancaster said frankly his impression was the department was trying to conserve American commercial advantages in Colombia and prevent a feeling of hostility toward Americans.

It was brought out that Schoepperle firmly opposed granting the credit, which was a $4,000,000 final portion of a $20,000,000 private credit to Colombia. Colombia had agreed to balance its budget for 1931, but had not done so to his satisfaction.

President Enrique Olaya maintained that the budget condition was good, even if the budget was not balanced, and asked the State Department to take up the matter with the bankers.

Lawyer Lancaster called on Assistant Secretary of State White, then upon Stimson, and discussed the position with them.

Matthews called on Schoepperle, in New York, and there were other conversations.

Assistant Secretary White and two department economic advisers will be

U. S. PAY SLASH IS GIVEN LITTLE CHANCE TO PASS

FEDERAL EMPLOYES WILL RALLY TONIGHT

Reclassification Board Asks for More Information on Comparative Wages.

Salary cut legislation of any nature has virtually no chance of passing the present Congress, it was conceded yesterday by Representative Ashton C. Shallenberger (Democrat), Nebraska, one of the four proponents of pay cut bills in the House.

The former Nebraska governor, who saw his salary reduction bill tabled last week after he had argued a saving of $122,000,000 at hearings before a House committee, said he would make no effort to force the issue on the floor of the House.

His announcement left only Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, aggressively seeking to press the matter in the House. Representative Robert F. Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania, said he will not push efforts in this direction, and Representative Milton C. Garber (Republican), Oklahoma, shares Shallenberger's view.

Taking No Chances.

Federal employes are taking no chances, however. One of the first rallies looking to a united front will be held tonight by Federal Employes Union, No. 2, Agriculture Department, at union headquarters, 710 Fourteenth street northwest.

President Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, and Miss Gertrude M. McNally, secretary-treasurer, will warn workers the legislative fight is not yet won.

Representative Shallenberger, in announcing he will not seek reductions via the "rider" method, made clear he has not altered opinion that pay cuts would form a major item in reducing the budget.

Recognizes Futility.

He said, however, he recognized futility of attempting to force the measure through an adverse House. He said many members would vote against a pay cut bill because their own salaries were affected. The Nebraska member indicated he will turn his support now to the Hoover plan to cut expenses by reducing the number of Federal bureaus.

Not so Representative McGugin, who plans to cary his pay cut battle on the floor of the House. He recently ventured the opinion that the "time is not ripe" yet for placing the question squarely before Congress, but that "public opinion" eventually will force the matter.

A statement opposing salary reductions was forwarded to members of various congressional committees yesterday by the National Customs Service Association.

Might Increase Distress.

George L. Cornell, president, said that a pay cut might increase the distress already widespread by taking from circulation the buying power in the amount of the reductions. He pointed out the president it would set for all industry and declared any cut could lighten the taxpayers' burden "very little."

Five bills designed to broaden provisions of the prevailing wage act will be taken up by the House labor committee at hearings opening today. Government contractors under the Bacon-Davis act are required to pay the rate prevailing for labor in the community where their project is located. Bills proposed provide revisions ranging from penalties for contractors failing to observe the law, to requirements that the highest wage rates paid in a community be used as standard by Government contractors.

The Personnel Reclassification Board yesterday moved to add to the meager information now available on comparative wages. Questionnaires were sent out seeking data on relations between clerical salaries in the Government and in private industry. Questionnaires were not prompted by pay-cut proposals, the board declared.

Buffalo Customs Head Defended on Charges

(Associated Press.)

Fred A. Bradley, Buffalo collector of customs, was assailed and defended yesterday before a Senate committee hearing protests against confirmation of his reappointment.

Charges, including the improper disposition of seized liquor, were made against Bradley by John W. Slacer, a Buffalo insurance man, and former Republican assemblyman. Mr. Bradley, who is chairman of the Erie County Republican committee, was defended by John B. Maloney, a Buffalo lawyer. Mr. Maloney said the Treasury and Justice Departments had investigated conditions in the Buffalo area and found nothing wrong.

Presbyterians Plead For Drastic Arms Cut

A new plea for "drastic reduction of armaments by all the nations" at the Geneva Arms Conference was presented to President Hoover yesterday by members of the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, of Philadelphia, a moderator of the church, led four clerics and ten boys and girls to the White House to present the petition and pose for a photograph with the Chief Executive.

Admiral Pratt told naval committee he was not confident of outcome of Geneva arms conference.

BURMA WINS PLEDGE OF HONORABLE RULE

MacDonald Makes Promise as Round Table Parley Ends in London.

London, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Burma received a pledge of responsible government by the revolutionary process from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at the concluding session of the Burmese round table conference today.

If Burma decides at a national election to separate from India, Britain will grant her a constitution providing for a legislature and for a governor to be appointed by the British crown, who will exercise wide "reserved" powers in dealing with foreign affairs, defense and finance.

The Burmese delegates, who have been in London for six weeks, also heard Mr. MacDonald voice a solemn warning that Britain, when challenged as in India today, "can never abrogate its duty to govern."

The quaintly-clad representatives of Burma gave the prime minister's declaration a mixed reception. Half of them thumped the big round table in mild applause. The others sat silent.

Miss May Oung, the only woman delegate, her long black hair rolled into a shining stove-pipe shape atop her head, puffed cigarettes and smiled coyly.

The men delegates, in their soft-colored scarves of pinks and blues, twisted about their heads, smoked long cheroots.

As with the recent Indian round table conference, the discussions with the Burmese did not result in full realization of their demands for responsible government. Mr. MacDonald's pledge was called neither home-rule nor dominion status, but it carried with it what the prime minister termed the "potentialities" of self-government.

"The whole genius of British administration," he explained, "is to lead up peoples who come under its rule to a position where they can assume responsibility for their own government."

U Ba Pe, spokesman for the Burmese delegates, in responding to Mr. MacDonald said that any constitution for Burma must reflect the feeling of the Burmese rather than the feeling of the British.

"The history of Burma will show that Burma, until she came into contact with the British, held a very prominent position in the East," he said, "and it is really a thing which I can not understand that it should be said that a country which was independent just 46 years ago, is not fit to enjoy larger freedom under British rule."

Indians Put Torch To Foreign Cloth

Many Are Arrested and Boy of 9 Is Sentenced to Four Years.

Bombay, India, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A bonfire of foreign cloth burned tonight in Bombay as a symbol of the Indian Nationalists' boycott campaign for the country's independence.

For the first time since resumption of the civil disobedience movement, volunteers of the Congress party made a house-to-house collection of the cloth in the Mandvi area and set fire to it in front of a large crowd which shouted boycott slogans.

Police dispersed the crowd and arrested five persons, but it was a considerable time before the fire died down.

In another quarter of Bombay, two policemen and sixteen civilians were injured when police dispersed a meeting of Nationalists at Chowpatti Sands, along the seashore. Forty men and women were arrested.

A 9-year-old boy was sentenced to four years in the State Reformatory as a Nationalist picket while at Calcutta. A government case against Bimal Das Gupta, Bengal youth on trial for the alleged murder of James Peddie, district magistrate at Midnapur last April, collapsed.

Naming of Thad Brown To Radio Body Expected

(Associated Press.)

Early appointment of Thad Brown, of Ohio, as a member of the Radio Commission is expected from President Hoover. Mr. Brown has been strongly urged upon the President by Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, and Postmaster General Brown. The resignation of Commissioner Ira E. Robinson leaves a vacancy.

Chairman Couzens, of the Senate interstate commerce committee, who called yesterday at the White House, is reported opposed to Mr Brown's appointment. He has nothing to say on it, however. The Ohioan is now general counsel of the commission.

WORLD SHIP OUTPUT SHOWS BIG DECLINE

53,000-Ton U. S. Decrease Helps Bring Total to Low Mark.

World shipbuilding is now on a lower basis of production, not only than at any time since the war, but for many years prior to the conflict, it is shown in a statement just issued by Lloyd's Register of Shipping covering returns for the last quarter of 1931.

As the result of a continued shrinkage during the last three months, world building of ships is the lowest for the last two decades.

Following a decrease of nearly 300,000 gross tons in the quarter ended September, 1931, there has been a further decline of 125,000 tons in the December quarter, bringing the world production figure to about 925,000 gross tons less than at the beginning of 1931.

U. S. Decrease Large.

The statement points out that Great Britain and Ireland, which have been bearing the brunt of the decline during the past year, have made a better showing in the last quarter. Their decrease of 16,800 gross tons is much smaller than that of 53,000 tons for the United States and 56,000 tons for all other maritime countries.

However, the total of 400,000 tons for Great Britain and Ireland is less than it has been in any other year since 1887.

As the result of conditions in the past quarter the United States proportion of the world's shipping production decreased from 17 to 14.8 per cent. The proportion of Great Britain and Ireland increased from 27 to 28.5 per cent. An increase of 0.7 per cent was noted in the production of all other countries.

Steamship Output Gains.

More than 800,000 gross tons of the total merchant shipping now being constructed throughout the world is under supervision of Lloyd's Register.

An especially sharp decline is shown in the construction of steam and motor tankers of 1,000 gross tons upward. A decline of 122,000 tons in the September quarter was supplemented by one of 150,000 tons in the last quarter.

The situation of the September quarter, when motor ship tonnage was greater than all other was reversed the last quarter when steam and other types overbalanced motorship construction.

Chinese Pirates Fire Standard Oil Launch

Hankow, China, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Chinese pirates boarded a Standard Oil Co. launch 130 miles above Hankow, in the Yangtze River, today and were driven off by the American gunboat Oahu.

The brigands attacked the boat in midstream, captured it and held four of the crew for ransom. They had begun to loot the vessel when the Oahu appeared in the distance. They fled over the side, but fired the launch before they left. The American crew was saved, but only after the boat was badly damaged.

Albany 8T sub 4 - Roosevelt Urges New York Tax Rise

Also Asks Tammany Leader to Answer Charges of Being "Grafter."

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A sixteen-month emergency tax increase recommendation and a call to the carpet of one of Tammany's leaders today again bought Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, potential presidential candidate, into the political limelight.

The governor's tax increase program was contained in his annual budget message to the Legislature. He asked that it double the personal income tax for 1931 and 1932, boost the State gasoline tax from 2 to 4 cents and double the stock transfer tax.

The Tammany leader he asked to answer charges is Sheriff Thomas M. Farley, of New York County. The charges were filed by Samuel Seabury, counsel to the legislative committee investigating New York City affairs, who accused Farley of being a "grafter" and protecting in his political clubhouse professional gamblers.

"It is some satisfaction," Mr. Roosevelt said, "to know that my forecast of State revenue for the last fiscal year failed of realization by but 15 per cent, while the receipts of the Federal Government dropped nearly 25 per cent below official estimates, and that for the current year State revenue will shrink less than 30 per cent below the high year, although Federal revenue is expected to show a decline of nearly 50 per cent."

WILKERSON NAMING FACES LABOR FIGHT

Nomination to Appeals Court Stirs Foes of Jurist Who Sentenced Capone.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, who achieved international fame recently by sending Al Capone to jail, will be the subject of a vigorous fight when his nomination for a more exalted post is taken up by the Senate.

This became clear yesterday as soon as President Hoover had nominated Wilkerson, now a Federal district judge, to fill a vacancy in the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

In announcing his selection of Judge Wilkerson for promotion, President Hoover said that he was sending his name to the Capitol in "recognition of the work of the judiciary in Chicago in routing the gangsters."

Before Senate Committee.

The fight against confirmation of Wilkerson's nomination will be conducted before the Senate judiciary committee by railroad labor leaders. Senator George Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of the committee, said yesterday that he expected the opposition would be unusually strong.

The foes of Wilkerson are not concerned about his crusade against Capone and the other gangsters, but about a sweeping injunction he issued in 1922 to stop a big railroad shopmen's strike in the Midwest.

"The injunction," said a recent copy of Labor, voice of the railroad workers, "stripped the shopmen of their most elementary rights as American citizens, threw all the power and influence of the National Government on the side of the railroads and contributed materially to the loss of the strike."

The injunction was obtained from Judge Wilkersonn by Harry Daugherty, then Attorney General of the United States, who a few months before had recommended Wilkerson for the judgeship.

Blamed for Antitrust Bill.

Daugherty contended that the injunction was justified by the turmoil that the strike was causing.

However, the labor people hold more than the injunction against Wilkerson. They say that just after the World War he wrote an antitrust bill at the suggestion of "open-shop" employers of Chicago, a measure which was killed in the Legislature after the Illinois State Federation of Labor had denounced it as "dangerous to the liberties of the people."

Judge Wilkerson was recommended to President Hoover for the Circuit Court of Appeals bench by Senator Otis Glenn (Republican), of Illinois. That there would be a fight reminiscent of the Parker case was realized by both the President and Senator Glenn.

Mr. Wilkerson has the support of a large number of influential men and women of Illinois, whose names were listed in the White House announcement yesterday.

If the professional dry leaders get into the fight—and it is expected that they will in view of what Wilkerson did to Capone—some senators will have difficulty in deciding whether to listen to them or to the professional labor leaders.

House Group Gets Tax Plans Today

Mellon and Mills to Tell Ideas for Balancing of Budget.

(Associated Press.)

The administration's tax increase program will be laid before the House ways and means committee today by Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury.

They will testify at the request of Chairman Collier of the Democratic controlled committee which will formulate the revenue-raising legislation made necessary by a prospective $2,000,000,000 Treasury deficit. Secretary Mellon's plan would raise about $920,000,000 during 1932, with the prospect of balancing the budget by 1934 if Government expenditures are curtailed sharply.

"The ways and means committee will write the bill after we complete hearings about January 25," Chairman Collier said. "We have not decided exactly what it will be, but it will be on the basis of studies we have made and the testimony submitted to the committee."

Gifts, Not Bombs, SentDuce and King

"Infernal Machines" Prove to Be Presents From U. S. Citizens.

Naples, Italy, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The supposed bombs mailed to King Victor Emmanuel and Premier Mussolini from the United States turned out today to be an 1832 50-cent piece, American, and a couple of books of post-card views showing the beauties of California.

Postoffice clerks, who for two days had been gingerly searching through sacks of mail left at this port by the liner Excalibur, finally came upon the packages described in warning cables from the United States.

First they found a little box, about 4 inches long, addressed to the king and labeled "medals." It was taken to a vacant field and opened with proper caution in the presence of experts. In it was the 50-cent piece and a note from Modestino De Rosa, barber, of Newark, N. J. The king is a great numismatist, has an excellent collection of coins of all sorts, and writes books about his money. The other two packages contained post cards sent to Il Duce and the king by Angelo Manfredi, of Betteravia, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Mailed Death Machine Is Destroyed by Police

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—An ingeniously constructed death machine was received in the mails today by E. G. Stevens, a boarding house operator, but it was turned over to police and destroyed before it had time to function.

The machine was built in a circular tin cake box and was constructed to discharge four pistol bullets at the same time in four different directions. Stevens said he had no known enemies, but had been having trouble with one of his boarders recently.

Musicians Oppose 'Contract Laborer'

"Artists" Battle Before House Body for Distinction; 50,000 Idle.

(Associated Press.)

When a musician should be considered a "contract laborer" and when an "artist" was argued yesterday before the House immigration committee.

The bill before the committee purposes to put instrumental musicians under the contract labor clause, and to construe the word "artist" to mean "only instrumental musicians of distinguished merit and ability."

A. D. Hayden, of the American Musicians Union, complained "all kinds, all characters of foreign musicians are admitted under the word 'artist.'" "Even to organ grinders," he added. He pronounced this unfair competition for home talent, saying: "Fifty thousand American musicians are out of work."

COVERAGE BY PRESS IN BEER QUIZ UPHELD

Metcalf Says Reports Fair as Cannon Listens; Canadian Plan Lauded.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Metcalf of the Senate committee, taking testimony on the Bingham 4 per cent beer bill, yesterday termed newspaper accounts of the hearings unbiased and invited presentation of any evidence that newspapers were withholding space to the "dry" side of prohibition.

The Rhode Island Republican, an antiprohibitionist, took this action in reply to a charge by Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, a prohibitionist, that the press was giving "outlandish and unreasonable" publicity in opposition to the dry laws.

Brookhart also said he had been informed that newspapers had organized a "sort of racket" against dry organizations because the latter had "refused or neglected to buy space" in the papers.

Metcalf said in his opinion the press associations and correspondents representing individual newspapers had reported the beer hearings as "fairly as possible, but if it is true that there is some sort of news racketeering going on I want to invite those organizations who have such evidence to present it to this committee."

Roster of Witnesses.

The Rhode Islander read his statement in a crowded committee room after six more witnesses had advocated the beer measure and various other modifications of the Volstead act.

He said it should be thoroughly understood that only proponents of the bill have been heard thus far and that until the opponents have been called the news accounts obviously "must largely carry the side favoring the legalization of beer."

Those testifying yesterday were Representatives Clancy (Republican), Michigan; White (Republican), Ohio, and Karch (Democrat), Illinois; Edgar Allan Poe, jr., relative of the poet and Baltimore commander of the Crusaders, an antiprohibition organization; L. S. Ray, vice chairman of the legislative committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and E. J. Roche, of the Central Labor Union of this city.

Bishop Cannon Takes Notes.

Mr. Clancy and Mr. White compared crime and other conditions in this country with those in Canada with its liquor dispensary system and said some change here was imperative.

With Bishop James Cannon, jr., sitting close by making notes of the testimony, Mr. Clancy said the Canadians did not understand why "we let Bishop Cannon and F. Scott McBride (Antisaloon League superintendent) dictate to our legislature and the President."

He added: "The Canadians take care of their ecclesiastical racketeers more roughly than we do here—they smack them down."

Representative White said he found on a recent visit to Canada that conditions were much improved under their system. Enactment of the Bingham measure, he said, would wipe out most all of the speakeasies and go a long way toward relieving unemployment.

Advocates Cheap Beer.

Legalization of 4 per cent beer, Representative Karch testified, would help bankrupt cities wipe out their deficits through license fees. He said the American people would never submit to strict enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

Mr. Poe argued it was unreasonable to permit the manufacture of 12 per cent wine in the home and to bar the making of beer of more than one-half of 1 per cent alcohol content both inside and outside the home.

He advocated legalization of cheap beer with low tax and low profits. He said he honestly believed in a change despite that he might be influenced by the "wet sentiment" in Baltimore.

Ray argued prohibtion had built up a criminal element threatening the foundation of government. He said the Veterans of Foreign Wars favored 4 per cent beverages of all kinds and submission of repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the States.

Farm Unions Offer Program of Relief

Far-Flung 6-Point Plan Is Put Before Hoover by Leaders.

(Associated Press.)

Announcing they spoke with one voice, three agricultural leaders yesterday placed upon President Hoover's desk a far-flung six-point program designed to aid the farmer.

Their suggestions ranged from amendment of the Farm Board act to revision of the tariff and on to the enactment of legislation to prohibit short selling.

The program was brought to the White House by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The letter of transmittal he carried, however, bore not only his name but those of L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, and John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers Union.

Earlier the three, testifying before the House agriculture committee, criticized the Farm Board but opposed its abolishment and urged new legislation adding the equalization fee and export debenture to its functions. They were emphatic in disclaiming responsibility for the present marketing act, creating the board.

HOUSE GROUP HEARS MELLON CASE TODAY

Public Session to Be Held on Impeachment of Secretary.

(Associated Press.)

A House committee will sit in judgment today on charges that Andrew W. Mellon is guilty of "high crimes and misdemeanors" and should be removed from the office he has held for a decade as Secretary of the Treasury.

This course was decided upon yesterday after more than an hour's secret deliberations by the House judiciary committee which is handling the Patman resolution seeking impeachment of the veteran Treasury head.

It will be a public hearing. Representative Wright Patman, Texas Democrat, and author of the impeachment resolution, will present the basis of his charges made on the House floor that Mellon has engaged in trade and commerce in violation of laws which he said forbid such activities to one holding Mellon's office.

Gregg to Appear.

Prepared to answer for the Secretary will be Alexander W. Gregg, his representative. Gregg, former solicitor of the Treasury's Internal Revenue Bureau and conducted the prosecution of the Government's famous income tax case against Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, who repeatedly has demanded Mellon's removal.

Chairman Sumners, a Democratic Texas colleague of Patman, announced the committee's decision for a public hearing.

"We will hold a hearing to consider the sufficiency of the charges," he said. "Mr. Mellon has been advised he may be represented."

Will Decide on Course.

The committee will consider whether the facts presented by Patman are true, and, if so, whether they constitute grounds for impeachment. It will be for the committee to decide whether an impeachment investigation of the Secretary's conduct should be recommended to the House.

Patman said Mellon held a substantial interest in the form of voting stock in more than 300 corporations, with resources aggregating more than $3,000,000,000, and that these corporations were engaged in trade and business in every part of the United States and in every country in the world.

He listed vessels said to be owned wholly or in part by the Secretary in violation of prohibitory statutes. While an ex-officio member of the Federal Reserve Board, Patman contended, Mellon is a bank stockholder in violation of law.

House Group Approves Shenandoah Park Cut

(Associated Press.)

House action on the bill reducing the minimum area of Shenandoah National Park to 160,000 acres is expected within the next few weeks.

It was reported favorably yesterday by the House public lands committee.

U. S. Coal Control Asked in Two Bills

Measures in Both Houses Provide for Bituminous Regulation.

(Associated Press).

Federal regulation of the bituminous coal industry was proposed yesterday in Congress. Identical bills intended to stop what was termed "demoralization and waste" in production, by permitting voluntary associations of operating companies, were introduced in both branches.

One was submitted by Senator Davis and the other by Representative Kelly, both Pennsylvania Republicans. Senator Davis said much of the measure was based on conditions he found in the industry while Secretary of Labor.

The prime objective of the proposal is the licensing of every company producing soft coal for interstate and foreign commerce under a commission of five appointed by the President.

3 WORKERS KILLED IN BRIDGE COLLAPSE

three near the end attempted to run up the incline, but were caught in the crash and hurled to the valley below with the concrete.

The crew had dynamited the other portion of the bridge just before lunch and upon returning to work had started to cut away the supports holding the remaining portion with acetylene torches and compressed air cutters. The supports holding the large 40-foot slab of concrete roadway buckled and gave way and the solid mass slid forward and crashed.

Doctors and nurses from the Washington Sanitarium, which overlooks the valley that the bridge spanned, were the first on the scene and were soon joined by the Kensington Volunteer Rescue Squad and members of the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department in uncovering the bodies. According to witnesses, Davis had jumped and that saved him from being instantly killed.

Tracey was identified by keys and his pocketbook by his wife, Mrs. Josephine Tracey. He was a mechanic by trade, had been out of work for some time and yesterday was his first day on the new job. He was the blacksmith for the wrecking crew and previously had been employed by a Ford dealer of this city. He is survived by his wife and a 12-year-old daughter, June.

The work of demolishing the old bridge and the construction of a new span had been awarded to the firm of Forbes & Murphy Construction Co of Baltimore about two weeks ago. Mr. Forbes arrived on the scene from Baltimore soon after the crash and made arrangements for the removal of the bodies from the Warner E. Pumphrey undertaking parlor, in Rockville, where they had been taken, to their home towns.

Fred Green, a student at the Missionary College, was treated at the sanitarium when he received a lungfull of acetylene gas while aiding in recovering the bodies.

The three colored workmen who escaped were Archie Davis, brother of the dead man; Edward Dotson, of Mount Airy, Md., and Wellington Rose, also of Mount Airy.

SENATE ASKS RADIO ADVERTISING FACTS

Commission Will Report on Feasibility of Operation by Government.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate expressed a "growing dissatisfaction with the present use of radio facilities for commercial advertising" yesterday and instructed the Radio Commission to give it all the facts.

A resolution by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, calling upon the commission to report on the feasibility of Government operation of the radio and "whether it would be practicable and satisfactory to permit only the announcement of sponsorship of programs" was quickly adopted.

An amendment by Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, requiring the commission to report on its actions relating to educational radio was incorporated.

Among other things, the Couzens resolution called on the commission to report on the following:

"What plans might be adopted to reduce, to limit, to control, and, perhaps, to eliminate the use of radio facilities for commercial advertising purposes;

"What rules or regulations have been adopted by other countries to control or to eliminate the use of radio facilities for commercial advertising purposes;

"Any information available concerning the investments and the net income of a number of representative broadcasting companies or stations."

Taxpayers Overcharged $97,503,653 by U. S.

(Associated Press.)

During the calendar year 1930 the Government overassessed large income and estate taxpayers at the rate of $8,125,304 a month. This was reported to the House yesterday by the joint congressional committee on internal revenue taxation, which said that during the year there were 125 overassessment cases exceeding $75,000 each and aggregating $97,503,653.

It included a refund and credit to the United States Steel Corporation of $21,000,000 and an allowance to the huge Payne Whitney estate of $16,000,000.

China Makes Reply To Stimson's Note

Will Be Published Today; Nation Reiterates Plan to Invoke Article 16.

Nanking, China, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—The government's determination to invoke Article 16 of the League of Nations covenant was reiterated by an official spokesman today when the Chinese reply to Secretary of State Stimson's latest note was delivered to the American Consul General.

The reply will be published tomorrow. The spokesman announced the resignation of Dr. Alfred Sze as delegate to the league had been accepted. W. W. Yen, Minister to Washington, declined to replace Sze, but the government asked him to reconsider.

Yen's presence at the league is particularly desired because the government plans to invoke Article 16, providing for an economic and diplomatic boycott of Japan by all league powers, at the next council session January 25. The league must approve the Chinese request before such a boycott would become effective.

The high government officials assembled at the residence of Sun Fo in Shanghai and decided to form a special affairs commission of the central political council. The commission will be the highest organ of the government and will approve the policies of vigorous opposition to Japan adopted by the government when it was inaugurated.

BRITTEN SEES ARMS PARLEY AS "FIZZLE"

Illinois Representative and Admiral Pratt Agree at Navy Bill Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

An opinion that the Geneva Arms Conference will be a "fizzle" emerged yesterday as one reason behind the drive in Congress to build the Navy up to treaty limits.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, used that word to describe before the House naval committee how he thinks the meeting beginning in Switzerland next month will end.

Then, turning to Admiral William V. Pratt, highest ranking naval officer, who was testifying on the $616,250,000 Vinson construction bill, he asked:

"Have you any confidence in the favorable outcome of that conference, admiral?"

"I don't know," the chief of naval operations replied hesitatingly. Then he added an emphatic "No!"

Faces Too Many Problems.

"You have not?" Mr. Britten pursued.

Admiral Pratt explained that there were too many things the conference would have to consider before it could "get down to fundamentals."

Mr. Britten, ranking Republican of the committee, called the Geneva meeting "just another junket for a lot of European statesmen," which will "go up in smoke just like the rest" of the general arms limitation conferences.

"The suggestions that we should postpone an authorization bill because of the Geneva conference are made out of pure ignorance," he continued.

He expressed unqualified opposition to approving the pending bill which would authorize $450,000 to pay expenses of the American delegation to the conference.

Dumping Money Into Sea.

"We will be wasting several hundred thousand dollars * * * instead of helping the unemployed at home," he said. "It's just like dumping the money in the sea."

But while Mr. Britten insisted new construction should be authorized, he added the country was not in a satisfactory "psychological condition" to accept the Vinson bill.

He suggested, instead, it would be better to substitute a "more modest" one-year construction program. Admiral Pratt and Secretary Adams already have indorsed Chairman Vinson's 10-year replacement plan.

SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON.

UNITED STATES SENATOR JAMES E. WATSON, of Indiana, is one of the most likable men on Capitol Hill, one of those picturesque politicians who has as many friends on the Democratic side of the aisle as on the Republican side, where he is the leader.

He is a delightful story teller. In the Senate chamber, however, he carefully suppresses that talent, being a member of that school of politicians which thinks that it is dangerous to let your constituents know that you can be funny.

A big man physically, Jim Watson looks the part of the statesman. He wears the clothes that stamp him as one, and when he wants to he can unburden himself of some exciting oratory.

He has been accused of being one of the leading "back-slappers" on Capitol Hill, and the accusation is true. When Jim Watson slaps a back, however, he does it out of real affection.

In leaving his Connecticut avenue home, Senator Watson frequently encounters Patricia Sullivan, 7, and Billy Nicholson, 8, both of Woodley place, who have their playground near the senator's garage. Invariably Watson stops to chat with them, to make them giggle at his droll remarks. There couldn't be any politics in this. Neither Patsy Sullivan nor Billy Nicholson has a vote or is ever likely to have one. Both are natives of voteless Washington.

American Noah Revealed In Legend of Choctaws

Tribal Prophet Warned of Universal Deluge and Alone Survived It, Account of Indians by Dr. Swanton, Smithsonian Institution, Sets Forth.

A nameless Noah of the Choctaw Indians alone survived a great flood, floating on an "ark" which was a raft of sassafras logs, it is shown in tribal legends.

In the traditions of the Southern Indians there is a story of a universal flood, similar to the "Deluge" of Genesis, in which only one man lived, it was revealed in an account of the legends and culture of the Choctaws by Dr. John R. Swanton, of the Smithsonian Institution.

In the story collected by Dr. Swanton, the American Noah, a forewarned prophet, journeyed from village to village, telling the people of the approaching flood.

No one heeded him. There followed a time of total darkness and cold, with incessant peals of thunder. From the forests, wild beasts came and gathered about the camp fires. Food became moldly and not fit to eat.

After an awesome crash of thunder, from the north a wave of light seemed to advance, but it proved to be the gleam of waters which engulfed and destroyed all living things.

Only the prophet lived. For days he floated on the tipsy raft. He called to a black bird which circled above, but it flew away.

Then came a blue bird with red eyes. As the dove, dispatched by Noah, brought news of land, so the red bird led the prophet in the direction of the sunrise.

An island was reached. The prophet lay in the mud and slept. When he awoke, the bit of land was covered with every kind of animal.

Then the blue bird, which had brought him to safety, changed into a beautiful woman. She became the mother of the new race of men.

This is the original legend, untampered with by extra-Indian influences. Later, affected by the teachings of missionaries, the Indians changed it to conform with the account of Genesis taught them, Dr. Swanton said.

80-MILE GALE HITS HOOVER DAM HOMES

Carpenter in Boulder City Is Missing as Winds, Snow and Cold Grip West.

Kansas City, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A gale of 80 miles an hour estimated velocity whipped through Boulder Canyon, near Las Vegas, Nevada, today as a blizzard came lashing down from the Canadian Rockies, sweeping mild temperatures out of a large part of the Western United States.

The wind roared off the desert into the canyon, unroofing houses and garages and blowing tents away. Most damage was done in Boulder City, Government headquarters for workers employed on the Hoover Dam.

One carpenter working on a garage was reported missing after his fellow-workers scampered to safety when the partly built structure tumbled before the force of the gale.

Small damage resulted in Las Vegas. Students in a schoolroom were cut slightly by flying glass.

Mercury Below Zero.

Meanwhile, the blizzard spread over the Rocky Mountain region and served notice of its descent upon the Plains States by tomorrow. Eight inches of snow fell at Tahoe City, Calif.

Montana temperatures dropped abruptly and readings in the northern mountains were expected to reach 5 to 10 below zero overnight as the storm rode across country on a high wind.

At Helena, Mont., the mercury plunged to zero at 2 p. m. today, from yesterday's high of 56. The barometer reading at Cheyenne was 28.86, a new record low. The previous low was 28.89 on March 14, 1920.

Tourists were warned not to venture out in Wyoming, and live stock men in that State, Montana and eastern Colorado, were advised to protect their animals.

Plains States Warned.

Utah and Southern Idaho were snow blanketed to a depth of several inches, air mail planes were held at Salt Lake City, Wendover, Utah and elsewhere.

The South Dakota Highway Department reported several roads blocked by snow.

Twisters struck at two points in southeast Texas yesterday. Two were killed and seventeen injured, three seriously.

Weather observers advised the Midwestern Plains States to expect a visitation of the severe weather spreading its grip down the mountain slopes. Drizzling rain in this section was expected to turn to snow by tomorrow night.

Snow and rain extended southward along the Pacific Slope and it was extremely cold in the Pacific Northwest.

Rains in Delta Add To Flood Menace

Farmer Points to Gravity of Situation; Waters Continue to Rise.

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Rain that resembled a cloudburst in Northern Mississippi today threatened to prolong indefinitely the Tallehatchie River flood. The precipitation of last night ranged from a little over an inch at Natches to 3.21 inches at Greenville. Swan Lake, in the center of the Tallehatchie River flood valley, had 2.90 inches.

The water rose 3½ inches overnight at the plantation of R. T. Wade, at Money, Miss., in Leflore County, and is stretching out over a half mile of the Money-Sunnyside highway.

"The levee is holding," Wade said, "but rain is falling so heavily it is impossible to get Negroes to work on the dikes. I fear breaks. If the people generally do not feel that this country is facing grave conditions, they are badly mistaken." E. P. Krick, Red Cross national disaster relief chairman, expressed a similar opinion.

One Killed, One Hurt In Prison Camp Break

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The State prison bureau was advised today that one prisoner was killed and another wounded as three convicts made a break for freedom from a road camp near Kenansville, Fla.

B. B. Reynolds, Pensacola, serving two years for obtaining money under false pretenses, was shot and killed by guards. James J. Dennison, sent up for one year from Volusia County on charges of stealing an automobile, was wounded. He was taken to the prison hospital at Raiford. Henry Caff, serving one year from Leon County on an automobile theft charge, was recaptured without injury.

Bank Looted by Thugs Second Time in Month

Cordova, Tenn., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The Cordova Bank & Trust Co. looted of $600 December 16, was invaded again today by three bandits who threatened S. B. Goodloe, the cashier with pistols, took $2,000 in currency and fled in an automobile.

Salvation Army Leader Named.

New York, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Evangeline Booth, commander in chief of the Salvation Army announced today the appointment of Lieutenant Commissioner Bejamin Orames to succeed the late Adam Gifford as commander of the Western territory of the Salvation Army, with headquarters at San Francisco.

Fog Halts Flight To Aid Ill Woman

Plane Bearing 'Lung' Down in Columbus; Tucson Victim Rallies.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Thick, low-lying fog banks, blanketing the air trails between Columbus and the Mississippi River, tonight threatened to frustrate a desperate attempt of two pilots to aid a pneumonia patient at Tucson, Ariz.

Battling rains, a low ceiling and poor visibility from New York, they were forced down here late today with but a bare fourth of their 2,200-mile flight to Tucson completed. Their plane carries a portable oxygen chamber, or artificial lung, for treatment of Miss Alice Hilliard, stepdaughter of R. W. Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier Journal and Times, who is ill in a Tucson hospital.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Robert Bingham, stepfather of Alice Hilliard, said today she had rallied strongly from a siege of pneumonia and that an oxygen breathing chamber, being brought here by airplane from New York, might not be needed.

TARIFF BILL JOKER IS BELIEVED FOUND

LaGuardia Amendment Held to Give More Power to President.

Democratic leaders in the Senate fear they have found a joker in the Democratic tariff declaration passed by the House.

The so-called joker has been discovered in the language of an amendment proposed by Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York.

The LaGuardia amendment provided that when the Tariff Commission reported to Congress recommending a change in the tariff rates or classification of any product, the commission order shall become effective unless rejected within 60 days by joint resolution of the House and Senate.

The catch lies in the fact that to become effective a joint resolution requires the signature of the President, thereby differing from a concurrent resolution which does not require presidential approval.

Reversed Effect.

Designed, it was said, to put back in the hands of Congress tariff making powers which some said had been improperly handed to the Chief Executive, the LaGuardia amendment is thought by some to have completely reversed the effect of the bill and placed in the hands of the President greater power over the tariff than ever before.

Even if Congress rejected a tariff commision recommendation the President in most instances could nullify the congresional disapproval by vetoing the joint resolution expressing the rejection by Congress of the commision recommendation.

A two-thirds vote of the members is required to pass a measure over presidential veto, and, until there is greater public unanmity on tariff questions than seems apparent at present, it would be unlikely that either Democrats or Republicans could muster sufficient votes to override the veto.

Fate Remains to Be Seen.

The fate of the Democratic tariff measure remains to be seen. The Senate finance committee is not going to be in a wild hurry to take it up and report it to the Senate for action, and even after the committee has acted, it is not likely the Senate will rush the measure through. After final passage it is not certain that it would not be vetoed by the President and certainly the Democrats have not enough strength to pass it over a veto.

These dim prospects for the future of their tariff measure, however, are not especially perturbing Democratic leaders in the House. They foresaw the situation before they embarked on their program of making a tariff declaration, but many felt that, for various reasons, the party should be able to tell the country in the next campaign that they had attempted to change and liberalize the Republican tariff law. Hence, their hastily considered and much amended tariff declaration over which several Republican leaders are smiling and about which none seems especially worried.

Chemist's Murder Indictment Refused.

Crown Point, Ind., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A grand jury refused today to indict William R. Gibson, jr., Gary chemist, in connection with the fatal shooting of his wife and daughter ten days ago. He was released from the county jail where he had been held on murder charges filed by county prosecutors.

Hitler Is Delaying Hindenburg Action

However, Prolonging of President's Tenure Seems Likely.

Berlin, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Adolf Hitler went to Munich tonight and left the German people in a quandary over the outcome of the negotiations to continue President von Hindenburg's term of office.

It was apparent to political observers that the National Socialist leader's last few hours in Berlin enabled him to eliminate Chancellor Bruening from future deliberations in the matter. What effect this would have on the hitherto close cooperation between the president and his chancellor was a subject of intense speculation.

It seemed virtually certain that Herr von Hindenburg would succeed himself unless the Socialists and Republicans mass behind some other candidate who so far has not appeared on the scene. Observers were unanimous in the opinion that, all things being equal, the aged president would be a sure winner over any other man in public life.

3 Robbers Slug Banker And Flee With $14,300

Magnolia, N. C., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The Bank of Magnolia was robbed today by three men who slugged Alton Gaynor, assistant cashier, locked him in a vault and escaped with $14,300.

Police throughout the southeastern part of the State were notified and asked to watch for the trio. Magnolia is a village of 802 population. Bank officials said they had an unusually large supply of currency on hand.

U. S. INTERVENED, FAVORING COLOMBIA LOAN, SAYS BANKER

yesterday issued a statement saying that its interest was only to "foster friendly relations," and that it "would have been derelict in its duty if it did not advise American interests that it had been informed that their attitude was the subject of a misunderstanding by a foreign government." At Colombia's request, the statement said, the department set forth the view of the Colombian government "in the hope that upon further consideration a solution could be found mutually satisfactory to both parties."

Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, tried hard all day to get some one to say that there is a connection between the $4,000,000 loan and the famous Barco oil concession. The delay in granting the credit extended from some period prior to June 30, 1931, when the bankers finally consented to it. The Barco oil concession—granting important mineral rights in Colombia, had been canceled by the Government on March 3, 1931—fourteen days before a semifinal installment of $4,000,000 on the total $20,000,000 credit was paid—this concession was revalidated. It is owned by the Gulf Oil Co., which is owned by the Mellon family and the Carib Syndicate, which Johnson said is owned by J. P. Morgan. The Carib's share is 25 per cent.

Johnson's hammering got nowhere yesterday. Schoepperle and Lancaster denied they even knew the details of the concession, and the State Department, in its defense of its position, mentioned that its discussions "did not in any manner, shape or form touch upon Colombian petroleum legislation of the settlement of the Barco controversy and were in no way connected with these matters."

All Johnson has to work on for the present is a statement by President Olaya that he had revalidated the concession "at the behest of the Americans; and Johnson's own interest in the date coincidence regarding concession and loans.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia expects to make a speech in the Senate today or tomorrow on the loan situation. Of the State Department's defense yesterday, he said:

"In other words, the department approved a loan that bankers disapproved. It is a concrete case."

F. J. Lisman, semiretired head of the former banking house of F. J. Lisman & Co., the last witness of the day, told some details of the loan to Peru on which Juan Leguia, son of the former president of Peru, received a commission of $415,000.

Lisman, Bulkly, and Pale described the events leading up to the negotiation of $85,000,000 in loans.

Leguia was brought into the negotiation of the loan without his knowledge, Lisman said, and he disapproved of it. Here is the banker's idea of the former president's son:

"I am told he tries to rub elbows with every foreigner and do business, with a view to horning in on any commissions. He had no influence with his father, but with his access to government departments he had the name of one who could spoil business. We were told we might lose out if we did not employ him. It is my idea that Juan blackmailed us, and I don't believe his father got a dollar of the money. We paid him for his nuisance value."

DISTRICT BODY ACTS ON TRIANGLE TRACKS

Special Conference Called for Friday in Mt. Vernon Line Removal Row.

A Treasury Department plea for early revocation of the franchise of the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway Co., to clear the way for completion of the Government's triangle building program, with immediate response in the House District committee yesterday.

Representative Loring M. Black, jr., chairman of the public utilities subcommittee, called a special conference of the group to follow this morning's meeting of the full District committee.

He favors amendment of the joint resolution to revoke the franchise and let the courts decide how much damages should be borne by the Federal and how much by the District government. Mr. Black would throw all of the expense on the Federal Government, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has indicated he will not oppose such amendment.

Meanwhile the railway is going ahead with plans to inaugurate bus service between Arlington Junction and Washington next week, despite the fact that appeal for a stay preventing the Federal Government from removing the tracks is still pending in the Court of Appeals.

Secretary Mellon has also written the Senate District committee, urging early action on the joint resolution. Chairman Capper's office is sounding out local sentiment on the measure. The Federation of Citizens Associations, it was informed, already have opposed the move, should the District be assessed the damages. The bill may be taken up at a meeting of the committee Friday afternoon.

2 Children Die in Fire; Father Is Badly Burned

New Philadelphia, Ohio, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Two children were burned to death and their father was critically injured in a vain attempt to rescue them today.

The victims, Elmer Bowen, 8, and his sister, Lilly Emma, 5, were trapped in their upstairs bedrooms when fire destroyed the home of Allen Bowen, south of here. The father was starting a fire with kerosene which exploded. Mrs. Bowen and two other children escaped.

HOUSE NEARS VOTE ON FISCAL MEASURE

Federal land banks by $100,000,000 and thus provide the farmer with new credit. It may vote today.

Each measure already had the approval of one branch of Congress The Senate passed the reconstruction corporation bill, 63 to 8, Monday night and the land bank measure went through the House before Christmas. After the votes now pending have been taken, both measures probably must go to conference for adjustment of differing provisions approved by the two chambers.

Thus, sponsors of the reconstruction corporation bill thought it probable the measure would not reach President Hoover before the first of next week. If the House votes tomorrow, conference committees probably will spend Friday and a good part of Saturday in reaching an agreement. Their work must be acted on by both branches for final approval.

The bill is virtually certain of passage in the House with about the same proportionate vote as in the Senate. The House is working on its own bill introduced prior to receipt of the Senate measure.

However, the Democrats on the House banking committee made it clear in debate yesterday that they do not approve that type of legislation, but that they are supporting it because of its emergency nature.

On the other hand, the Republicans are attempting to eliminate several changes made by the Democratic control committee. They want the bill enacted as written by the Treasury and Gov. Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board.

Chairman Steagall inserted a provision setting up a board of seven members, two each to be appointed by the President and Speaker Garner, with the explanation that this was done to insure agriculture would be protected by the Texan's appointees.

As passed by the Senate the bill provides for a board of seven, with four to be appointed by the President, and the others to be the Secretaries of Treasury and Agriculture and the governors of the Federal Reserve Board, the same as in the Steagall bill.

Representative Goldsborough (Democrat), Maryland, told the House he disliked the nature of the legislation, but said he would support it because "this is the best we can get to relieve the situation—it is a compromise, an emergency."

In the Senate most of the discussion centered upon the "moratorium" provision in the bill, as passed by the House. It would permit the Land Bank directors to postpone mortgage payments in deserving cases. To make this lenity possible the Senate banking committee increased the measure from $100,000,000, as passed by the House, to $125,000,000.

Alleged Mine Plot Evidence Is Closed

Arguments Expected to Be Finished Today; Court Names 3 Verdicts.

Mount Sterling, Ky., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—With the evidence tucked away in the jurors' minds, attorneys opened final arguments today in the trial of William Hightower, Evarts mine union president, charged with conspiracy to murder deputy sheriffs in the Harlan County mine war last May.

Before the arguments, Judge Henry R. Prewitt instructed the jury that only three verdicts could be returned: life imprisonment or death on conconviction, and acquittal. The court told the jurors that if, proven, conspiracy to murder should be considered the same as murder. Judge Prewitt ordered a night session to speed through the arguments and the jury probably will start deliberations by noon tomorrow.

Pineville, Ky., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Belief in the right to revolt to improve conditions was expressed in county court here today by attorneys for nine persons at their hearing on criminal syndicalism charges in connection with National Miners Union strike activities. David Bentall, Chicago, counsel for the six women and three men, said, however, they had come to Pineville not to further revolt but to help feed the strikers and their families.

Paid Killers Blamed In Cleaner's Death

Chicago Prosecutor Says Racketeers Have Hired Assassins Ready.

Chicago, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Existence of a gang of paid killers always available to enforce the dictates of powerful racketeers in Chicago was asserted today by Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson.

Mr. Thompson's charges came during investigation of the killing of Benjamin Rosenberg, part owner of a "nonassociation" dry cleaning plant. Rosenberg was slugged and shot to death near his home last night as a result, police said, of his campaign against racketeering.

Rosenberg had spent ten years fighting racketeering in the cleaning and dyeing industry, his associates said. He died "broke," his widow and three children facing eviction from their mortgaged home.

COUNTY TO REDUCE STAFF OF TEACHERS

Only Those on Temporary Appointments to Go in Prince Georges.

After studying its budget for 1932, the Prince Georges County School Board yesterday answered pleas for economies in county expenditures by ordering a reduction of the teaching staff, although it means a decided increase in the number of pupils per teacher.

None of the present instructors, except those on temporary appointments, will be dropped. Instead, vacancies will be filled by transfer of teachers already in the system. Plans have already been made for transfers to fill two vacancies caused by recent resignations.

At its regular meeting yesterday the board ordered Superintendent Nicholas Orem to reduce the staff and to hold expenses to a minimum. The system already faces a deficit, due to failure of the State to make its expected contribution to the county fund last year.

Classes of Forty or More.

The law provides that additional teachers may be provided in any school where the average number of pupils per teacher runs over 40. This is not mandatory, however, and it is planned to ask teachers to handle classes of 40 or more.

The teachers who have resigned are Mrs. Katherine P. Williams, principal of the Suitland School; Mrs. Mildred W. Hare, teacher of commercial subjects at the Maryland Park High School, and Joanna Simmons, a teacher at the Marlboro colored school.

Mrs. Hare's position will have to be filled through a new appointment, but transfers will fill the other two. Mrs. Hare and Mrs. Williams leave February 1, while the other resignation has not been accepted by the board. The institutions whose teaching staffs will probably be cut are the high schools at Oxon Hill, Hyattsville, and Laurel.

Condemnation Proceedings.

The board ordered its attorney to proceed with condemnation proceedings against an acre of ground adjoining the colored school at Marlboro. Susie Digges, owner of the land, has refused offers to sell the plot, needed for the new school. If this construction can start before July 1, the Julius Rosenwald fund will provide $4,000 for its equipment. Mr. Rosenwald's recent death makes it doubtful whether this sum will be given if the school is started later than this date.

Charles Marbury, appearing for the Seat Pleasant Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was given permission to use the Maryland Park High School for the bimonthly meetings of the post.

A proposal to put primary pupils in the Bradbury Heights School on a half-time basis to permit use of their classroom as a stage for the auditorium was refused.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 162

THIS picture will doubtless arouse many wistful memories in the minds of long resident Washingtonians who can still remember many hard-fought athletic events which took place at the old Y. M. C. A. Athletic Park in their grade school days.

The park stood at Constitution avenue and Seventeenth street northwest, where now the Pan-American Union rears its proud facades. However, the entire environment is one of the most historic spots in the District.

The old home of David Burns, on the site, was bought by the Y. M. C. A. and used as clubhouse and gymnasium. The site then became the property of the George Washington University in whose custody it remained until May 6, 1907, when the park was razed to make room for the beautiful and majestic building of the Pan-American Union.

STOKOWSKI THRILLS CONCERT AUDIENCE

Constitution Hall Filled for Program of Modern Compositions.

It is a courageous, even bold, conductor who will give an entire program of ultra modern and modern compositions for orchestra, but that is just what Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra did last night in Constitution Hall. His almost matchless organization played Nikolai Lopatnikoff's Symphony No. 1; Milhaud's "Concerto Instrumenta of Percussion," Mossolov's "Soviet Iron Foundry," Moussorgsky's "Tableaux d'une Exposition," and Stravinsky's Concerto in D for violin and orchestra, Samuel Dushkin, soloist.

The audience, appreciative and intelligent, filled the hall.

The Lopatnikoff Symphony and the Milhaud Concerto left the audience lukewarm. A little more enthusiasm was expressed for the performance of the Stravinsky concerto, although the violinist himself did not inspire the enthusiasm by his tone and style so much as by his skill in performing such a difficult piece of work as that given his instrument.

Samuel Dushkin played with skill, but without warmth or depth of tone which may be due to the peculiar composition. He did show great skill in technique.

The outstanding work was the Moussorgsky pictures. The composition would have been more effective had the dynamic conductor given at least slight pauses between the pictures. The composition is one of surpassing beauty and intensity, but this work is the least modern of those given last night. Its first presentation was in 1923 in Paris.

Throughout all the ten numbers and more, the orchestra obtained under their conductor's magic spell the most wonderful effects, in spots a perfect pipe organ and at others apparently the bombarding of the world. Nothing in musical literature, perhaps, could have been more impressive or more beautiful than Picture No. 8, the visit to the catacombs, the "Hut on Fowls' Legs," or the superb "Great Gate at Kieff."

NEGRO SCHOOL SITE ORDERED PURCHASED

Commissioners Act Despite Protest of Citizens in Northeast Section.

Despite protests of the Federation of Citizens Associations and adjacent citizens associations, the District Commissioners yesterday authorized Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, to purchase a tract of land on Rock Creek Church road northeast for a colored school.

The offer of L. O. Wrenn and Nannie B. Upton, of 2333 First street northwest, to sell one tract for $8,000 and the offer of William S. Moreland, of 1505 Harvard street northwest, to sell an adjacent tract for $2,880 were accepted, making the total cost of the land $10,880.

The Board of Education approved purchase of the property this month and plans to build a school for colored pupils on the site to replace a portable. The school is necessitated, it contends, because another colored elementary school was torn down several years ago to make way for street improvements. While the white residents predominate in the area, there are a number of colored families with children who would otherwise have to go several miles to attend a colored school.

The Federation of Citizen Associations at its last meeting vigorously protested against the purchase and denounced the Board of Education for its choice of a site. Delegates contend that only 22 colored children will attend the school.

While an appropriation for construction of the school was included in the 1933 District estimates, the item was eliminated before the budget reached Congress.

$200,000 Is Sought For Madison Span

Larger Amount Than First Planned Is Declared to Be Needed.

(Associated Press.)

Plans are under way to provide $200,000 for the James Madison Memorial Bridge on Rappahannock River.

The original plan called for an appropriation by the State and Federal governments of $50,000 each, but Chairman H. G. Shirley of the Virginia Highway Commission has informed Delegate George P. Lyon, of Woodford, and Representative Smith, of Alexandria, that more will be needed.

Lyon will sponsor the bridge bill in the Virginia House of Delegates and Smith already has introduced a bill in Congress to provide the $50,000 Federal appropriation. Smith's bill will be amended so as to appropriate $100,000, providing the State supplies a like amount.

Lilburn B. Brantley, of Clarendon, was arrested yesterday by Officer Hugh Jones of the Arlington County police and held for Richmond authorities on a charge of bigamy. He will be turned over to Richmond authorities today.

Police allege that Brantley was married in Richmond on April 18, 1931, to a Miss Ethel L. Nugent, of Washington, although he had a wife, Beatrice Sweet, in Clarendon. He was arrested at the home of the woman whom, police say, he married first.

LAVAL AND MINISTRY QUIT ON RADICAL SNUB

M. Laval proved unable to marshal support.

The ministry decided to resign after the Radical Socialist group of the Chamber of Deputies, numbering 100, had refused the premier's offer to make their leader, Edouard Herriot, the successor of Aristide Briand as foreign minister, and to give the group as a whole representation in a new government according to its numerical importance.

The cabinet crisis came to a head as the Chamber of Deputies convened for its first session in 1932. A demonstration by Communists, in the course of which 2,800 persons were arrested outside the chamber, marked the resumption of legislative activity.

Demonstrators Arrested.

The demonstrators were taken to police stations, where their papers were examined and those provided with proper documents were released.

A number of foreigners whose right to stay in France was considered doubtful were held for court, however, along with persons carrying concealed weapons and those who had caused most of the trouble.

Several "work and bread" signs were seized. Among the persons arrested was a woman who succeeded in getting near the chamber, where she shouted, "A gallery for women!"

Premier Laval had hoped that in inviting the Radical Socialists into his government he might enlarge the representation of the political parties and form a new cabinet more widely reflective of all shades of opinion.

Sought "Emergency" Cabinet.

He wanted the sort of national union cabinet that Rene Viviani summoned at the outbreak of the war in 1914 and Raymond Poincare formed in July, 1926, to deal with the nation's desperate financial situation.

Such a cabinet, the premier felt, was necessary in order that France might present a united front at the forthcoming reparations conference at Lausanne and at the disarmament parley at Geneva.

The illness of M. Briand and the death last week of Minister of War Andre Maginot contributed to the cabinet crisis. The foreign minister, against whose policies there was considerable opposition and whose prestige in France had fallen when he failed last year to be elected to the presidency, already had placed his portfolio in the hands of the premier when today's political negotiations got under way.

Radicals Refuse Offer.

Early in the day all of M. Laval's cabinet colleagues placed their portfolios at his disposition. In the late afternoon it seemed his chances for forming a national union ministry were fairly good but after an hour's talk with M. Herriot and the latter's report to his parliamentary group, the Radical Socialists politely declined to enter into the kind of combination he had envisaged.

The 80 deputies present at the Radical Socialist meeting unanimously refused the proffered collaboration on the grounds that there was no real crisis before Parliament and that the party's political doctrine precluded any arrangement of the sort.

They agreed, however, that if the foreign situation really did demand the formation of a national cabinet, they would not refuse to join, but would make reservations, notably concerning its make-up.

This was interpreted as meaning that if some one other than M. Laval offered them posts in the new cabinet, they might accept, but they would not under him.

President Doumer will begin the ritual consultations with the presidents of the Chamber and the Senate and the leaders of the various groups of both houses tomorrow morning.

Some usually well-informed persons asserted that the president favored a cabinet of concentration and that if M. Laval's personality stood in the way M. Doumer might call upon Senator Jules Jeanneney, one of the vice presidents of the Senate. The senator, who is 68 years old, was one of the late Premier Clemenceau's war-time collaborators.

In the event that he was called, it was said, he would head a ministry with wider representation of the various groups than there was in the outgoing cabinet.

Former Premier Joseph Caillaux was injured this afternoon while on his way to attend the meeting of the radical group. He slipped and fell on a staircase and a cut in the head bled profusely. After being bandaged by the chamber doctor, he was able to join his colleagues.

Slayer Made Prison Trustee.

Pinchot as a trustee of the institution. He is Henry G. Brock, of Muncy, formerly of Philadelphia.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL OF SEVEN IS BACKED

Chamber of Commerce Asks Two More Members; Bill to Be Introduced.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as favoring the election of seven members of the City Council, instead of five as at present, all seven to be elected at large, without reference to wards. A recommendation was made several months ago by Mayor Edmund F. Ticer that the number of members of the council be increased to nine. The recommendation of the chamber is urged for greater harmony.

Delegate J. Fred Birrell some time ago announced his intention to introduce at the present session of the State Legislature a bill to permit the increase in representation to nine members, but it is understood he will change his bill and ask for authority for the election of seven members.

A large part of the dissatisfaction with the City Council as at present constituted exists in the newly annexed territory, particularly the former town of Potomac, which is now a part of Alexandria, forming the Sixth Ward. The voters in that section have felt that they were entitled to a representative in the council, but all members now reside in the older part of the city.

George E. Warfield, for many years cashier and trust officer of the First National Bank of Alexandria, was yesterday elected, by the board of directors, executive vice president and trust officer. Albert V. Bryan was elected vice president and assistant trust officer, and Arthur K. Warfield, formerly assistant cashier and assistant trust officer, was promoted to cashier.

Gardner L. Boothe was reelected president, and Robert G. Whitton reelected assistant cashier.

The annual election of directors resulted in the reelection of Benoit Baer, jr., Gardner L. Boothe, Albert V. Bryan, Harry Hammond, William A. Moore and George E. Warfield.

The Citizens National Bank reelected these directors: Charles W. King, Clyde C. Lamond, Urban S. Lambert, Edward E. Lawler, Carroll Pierce, Richard L. Ruffner and Charles B. Swan. The election of officers will take place tomorrow.

The Alexandria National Bank reelected as directors Judge Howard W Smith, Judge William P. Wools, John D. Normoyle, Luther H. Dudley, Otis H. Hullings, Henry P. Thomas and Earl W. Saum. Judge Smith was reelected president, L. H. Dudley, vice president and cashier; John J. Kiger and C. M. Wells, assistant cashiers, and L. H. Dudley, trust officer.

The Cameron Club of Alexandria, as its contribution to the bicentennial celebration, will give a banquet tonight in the George Mason Hotel, at which Senator Arthur Robinson, of Indiana, will be the principal speaker. The banquet will be in honor of the national board of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which holds its midwinter session in Washington.

Others scheduled to deliver brief addresses are Mayor Edmund F. Ticer, on behalf of the City of Alexandria; C. C. Carlin, for the State of Virginia; Mrs. John Barton Phillips, for the local bicentennial commission; Mrs. John Sherman, former president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, now head of the women's division of the national bicentennial commission; Mr. John F. Sippel, president of the federation, and Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, first vice president.

R. Samuel Luckett has been reelected commander of R. E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, for the ensuing year. Other officers chosen were John W. Brookfield, first lieutenant commander; Carroll D. Woolf, second lieutenant commander, and William Lindsey Carne, adjutant and treasurer. The commander will announce the list of appointive officers at a later meeting of the camp.

Arrangements have been made by the camp to participate in the banquet commemorating the birthdays of Gen. Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, which will be held in Lee Camp Hall, January 19.

Falls Church Area Increase Is Asked

Extension of Limits Urged in Petition; Application on Buses Indorsed.

Increase in the area of Falls Church, Va., of approximately half a square mile was asked by 35 citizens yesterday in a petition presented at the monthly meeting of the Town Council.

The petition requested an extension of the southern boundary of the corporation limits. The new boundary, as proposed, would follow a former corporation line from Tripps Quarry to Shreves Run, on the Falls Church-Annandale road.

The proposal was referred to the committee on laws and public property. If approved by the council, action in the Fairfax County Circuit Court will be necessary before the territory can be annexed.

The council adopted a resolution indorsing the application of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway for a franchise to provide bus service for its patrons from Garrison street and Glebe road in Arlington County into Washington.

NAVY TO YIELD 3 MEN HELD IN HAWAIIAN'S FATAL SHOOTING

men—would be turned over to the circuit court when requested.

The Navy men, charged with the slaying of a young Hawaiian, who allegedly attacked Mrs. Massie, are being held aboard the receiving ship Alton, where they were confined Friday after their arrest.

Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, also is under arrest.

Earlier yesterday, Secretary Adams said the Navy was holding the men only for civil authorities and that they would be turned over on demand. He added the department was to be notified first, however, so it could keep in touch with developments.

President Hoover, at his regular Cabinet meeting, brought up the problem growing out of a reported series of assaults upon white women. Then, Attorney General Mitchell announced he would proceed at once to investigate under a Senate mandate.

Simultaneously, on Capitol Hill, criticism rang against procedure in the latest incident in the Territory known over the world as the "Paradise of the Pacific."

The House committee agreed that the territorial judge's charge to the jury that tried five men for attacking Mrs. Thomas H. Massie in Honolulu, seemed a "thinly veiled instruction to acquit."

It was the murder of this accused man, followed by the arrest of Mrs. Massie's mother, her husband and two other Navy men, that brought the situation to a climax which was a magnet of official attention in the Capital.

A proposal for separate Senate investigation, made by Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, is pending in the Senate with early action expected.

Venue Change Discussed.

A change of venue for the prospective trial was discussed repeatedly, but Secretary Wilbur declared against trying the Americans by any other than the usual procedure. Attorney General Mitchell also said he "knew of no statute" under which a case of this kind could be brought to the mainland for trial.

The Justice Department investigation was begun with assistants to Mr. Mitchell perusing voluminous reports, already available.

"I can't say how much the investigation will cover," said Mr Mitchell. "We will review the whole situation and see whether there is any occasion for a change in the set-up" (for criminal justice in the Territory).

The Attorney General said that "no doubt" he would send some one from Washington to make direct inquiry.

Speculation turned to Nugent Dodds, Assistant Attorney General, head of the criminal division; Charles P. Sisson, Assistant Attorney General in charge of personnel, and Charles B. Rugg, Assistant Attorney General, in charge of claims.

Mr. Mitchell disclosed that he talked over the situation at length with President Hoover, after the Cabinet meeting, and said he had no intention of interfering with the Navy in the matter.

Honolulu, T. H., Jan. 12 (U.P.).—A special session of the Territorial Legislature to consider measures intended to reduce lawlessness in the Hawaiian Islands, brought to worldwide attention by the slaying of an Hawaiian accused of attacking a young naval officer's wife, was agreed upon tonight.

Committees of the House and Senate of the Territorial Legislature decided they would accept the program for a special session given them by Gov. Lawrence Judd.

Meanwhile, police investigators were working on a new theory tonight. They admitted that the killing of Joseph Kahahawai, an Hawaiian accused of attacking the 20-year-old wife of Lieut. Massie, might have been unpremeditated.

Police Consider New Theory.

Should evidence be uncovered to show definitely that the slaying was not intentional, the death penalty could not be asked at the trial for Mrs. Fortescue, member of an old and prominent American family; Lieut. Massie, and the two enlisted men, held on charges of first-degree murder.

In an obvious attempt to show their impartiality the police bent every energy in consideration of the new theory.

They admitted possibility that Kahahawai was kidnaped, with the sole intention of frightening him into an admission of his alleged part in the attack by five men on Mrs. Thalia Massie, the naval officer's wife, last September. In such a case, they believe, those questioning the Hawaiian might have become so excited that one of them fired a bullet through Kahahawai's heart.

Authorities admitted that although they have arrested Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Massie and the sailors, E. J. Lord and A. O Jones, they do not know positively that any of them was present at the time Kahahawai was killed.

Leading citizens of the islands are so aroused that they demanded today a sweeping change in many administrative and law enforcement officers of the islands. They also requested declaration of martial law.

BINGHAM TO SPEAK TO BOARD OF TRADE

Meeting Tomorrow Night Also to Feature Talk by William Tyler Page.

Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticuut, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on appropriations for the District, and William Tyler Page, former clerk of the House of Representatives, will be the principal speakers at a meeting of the Washington Board of Trade at the Willard Hotel tomorrow night.

Almost 1,000 members of the trade organization are expected to be present to hear Senator Bingham discuss the deficit in the United States Treasury, and the failure of the United States Government to meet its budget. He will discuss some of the reforms which he believes will be necessary in the fiscal policy of the Nation in order to secure a balanced budget, it is announced.

Of special interest to the Washington audience will be Senator Bingham's discussion of the tax problem of the District, created by the Mapes bills, proposing income tax, increased gas tax and inheritance tax.

Senator Bingham last year led the fight on behalf of the District which brought about a compromise between the Senate and the House, resulting in additional $500,000 being contributed by the Federal Government, raising the United States' share in the maintenance and development of the Capital from $9,000,000 to $9,500,000.

Mr. Page will speak on the attitude of the American people during the period of economic trouble. A number of other features have been arranged for the meeting, including entertainment by Charles Trowbridge Tittman. George W. Offutt, president of the Board of Trade, will preside.

Mrs. Bettie Stallworth Cushman, of Pensacola, Fla., died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. F. Chunn, of 1636 Kenyon street. Mrs. Cushman was the widow of Henry Clay Cushman.

She is survived by three other daughters, Mrs. Newell Terry, of Parkridge, Ill.; Mrs. Harry S. Daniel, of Evansville, Ind., and Miss Madge Cushman, of New York City, and a son, Carleton H. Cushman, of Atlanta, Ga.

The funeral will be held in Wright's parlors at 11 o'clock this morning. Interment will be private.

Bones Unearthed in Cellar Where Girl, 6, Was Slain

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Special investigators late today dug up bones from the earthen floor of the dank, gloomy tenement house cellar where last month 6-year-old Marian McLean was assaulted and left to die by Charles Bischoff, 45, bespectacled and eccentric cobbler.

The gruesome find was turned over to Sheriff Asa V. Butterfield, who left immediately for Cleveland, where he will submit them to experts to determine if they are human.

County Prosecutor R. N. Gorman, who ordered the excavation in Bischoff's cellar, said the discovery strengthened his belief that the shoemaker may be responsible for the unsolved disappearance of two children about twelve years ago.

The bones were found less than an hour after the grand jury indicted Bischoff for first-degree murder on two counts, both of which are punishable by death sentences.

Bischoff, who confessed yesterday after nearly three weeks of continuous grilling, will be brought speedily to trial, the prosecutor said. If he is determined to be insane he will be committed to an asylum until such time as he becomes mentally able to go on trial.

Police records show that two girls—Freda Hornberger, 9, and Emily Gump, 9—were kidnaped in 1919 and 1921 and have not been found since.

Woman Faces Further Quiz in Death of Six

Youngstown, Ohio, Jan. 12 (A.P.). Police today were informed by the county prosecutor's office they have sufficient evidence to bring murder charges against a woman accused of six killings, but decided upon a further investigation before issuing any warrant.

Detective Lieut. Louis Colabine, in charge of the investigation, said he would not act until he had checked death certificates and conferred with Coroner M. E. Hayes and a physician. The woman, operator of a boarding house, was blamed by a neighbor and her son-in-law for the deaths of two children, two husbands and two boarders. She held insurance policies on the lives of three of the men.

BRUENING'S BLUNDER.

French reaction to the most recent attempt of Germany to escape payment of reparations foreshadows a definite showdown on this issue of world-wide interest. Chancellor Bruening invites terrible reprisals which France is preparing to inflict upon Germany.

As the first result of Chancellor Bruening's blunder the Bank of France has reserved the right to refuse extension of $100,000,000 credit to the Reichsbank. If France should refuse to renew its portion of this credit to Germany it may be assumed that the English and American banks will do likewise. In that event the Reichsbank's gold coverage would be reduced to about 10 per cent of its note circulation, and Germany would not be able to remain on the gold standard. In view of the fact that Germany is dependent upon France for financial stability, the Bruening statement is instantly revealed as a blunder of the first magnitude.

There seems to be little doubt that Germany will continue paying the unconditional reparations. France will not allow Germany to repudiate this obligation, no matter what conditions in Germany may be. Some postponements and some adjustments may be necessary, but the obligation will be kept alive even if it requires the persuasion of French arms. France may find it necessary to occupy German territory. But it is inconceivable that France will allow the Young plan and the Treaty of Versailles to be repudiated. To do so would reopen virtually every question that was settled in that treaty and thus lead directly to another European war.

France is adamant against the cancellation of reparations for two reasons: First, it would allow Germany rapidly to regain her position as a great power, and thus encourage the Reich to repudiate the Versailles Treaty in its entirety; second, France would lose large sums of money, even if the French debts to the United States and Great Britain should be canceled also. At present France collects about $100,000,000 annually more than she pays to her national creditors. The people of France will not tolerate any condition which forces them to pay so large a portion of the war's cost.

On this side of the Atlantic the people are equally determined that the burdens of Europe's war and reconstruction shall not be saddled upon American taxpayers. France could not repudiate her debt to the United States without manifesting bad faith, because France is fully able to pay. Hence, there is only one course for that government to take—the maintenance of reparation payments, by economic pressure and military force, if that becomes necessary.

The world is well aware of the fact that Germany is in straitened circumstances. But financial authorities do not sustain the contention that Germany is unable to pay. For example, Albert H. Wiggin, of the Chase National Bank, an advocate of war debt liquidation, shows that since autumn, 1930, Germany has paid her creditors about $1,200,000,000, and she continues to make large payments. He admits that Germany has exhibited "great vitality." International bankers who contend that Germany is incapable of paying reparations any longer are forced to admit that Germany can pay her private debts—and France will not fail to demand reparation payments first.

Up to this time international bankers have clung to the argument that if the funds Germany is capable of paying were used for reparations instead of private debt Germany's credit would be destroyed. Now it appears that France intends to destroy Germany's credit if that country refuses to pay reparations. France is in a position to do Germany more harm than international bankers could possibly inflict on a defunct country. The Reich will not be allowed to use its private debts as a weapon with which to destroy the prior lien embodied in the Treaty of Versailles and enforceable by French arms.

Taking these facts and policies into consideration, it appears that Chancellor Bruening has made a grand-stand play that may have devastating consequences for his own administration and for Germany.

TOWARD PROSPERITY.

The National Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill has passed the Senate. Action upon the measure in the House is anticipated this week. This is cheering news for all Americans. With the $2,000,000,000 credit organization in active operation before the end of the month its beneficial effects will be promptly felt, and before spring business expands trade and commerce many key industries will be in much better position to begin the march back to normal activity.

Seldom has any great proposal of this nature met with such universal approval. Members of both political parties join economists, bankers and business men in recognition of the prompt and useful service which the reconstruction corporation can perform. Its functions will be upon a much broader scale than anything heretofore attempted. A greater range of industrial assistance will be extended, in all probability, than under its somewhat similar predecessor, the War Finance Corporation, whose post-war functions were enlarged so that effective aid was given to agriculture and many important lines of business.

Only one important amendment was attached to the bill by the Senate—the addition of $50,000,000 to be placed at the disposal of the Department of Agriculture for loans to farmers. Other riders, seeking to transform the measure into a dole appropriation by opening the capital of the corporation to applications from States and cities for relief funds, were wisely rejected by the Senate. Such provisions would have resulted in the discouragement of the self-reliant efforts that are being made by States and communities to care for their own unemployed without appeal for Federal aid.

No announcement has been made in advance as to the personnel of the board that will manage the great reconstruction corporation's activities. Several able executives have been tentatively suggested in connection with this important work in cooperation with Government officials. Bipartisan membership is provided for. There is ample material to insure a board that will render able and patriotic service.

The corporation will get under way at a most opportune time. Americans have already come to look upon unsettled conditions in Europe with much greater equanimity. Commodity prices in the United States have shown a more gratifying stability for six months, the railroad troubles appear in fair way of settlement, and the stock market has taken a more cheerful outlook as investors begin to take up the remarkable bargains that are offered in standard stocks and bonds. With the added impetus which the credit of the reconstruction corporation will soon be able to afford, there is good reason to believe that this spring will mark the change from fear to confidence throughout America. With confidence will come activity, and with activity prosperity.

REGULATE HIGHWAY CARRIERS.

Prominent among the items in President Hoover's rehabilitation program is a request for "revision of the laws relating to transportation." In the case of the railroads temporary assistance is not enough. The transportation system must be strengthened so that it will be able to regain prosperity when conditions return to normal. The basic law needs overhauling.

A comprehensive report by Leo J. Flynn, expert on interstate truck and bus traffic for the Interstate Commerce Commission, foreshadows the form that this legislation probably will take. In a large measure Mr. Flynn expresses the views of the commission. His exhaustive study is certain to have far-reaching influence upon Congress.

"The national transportation machine can not function with progressive efficiency part regulated and part unregulated," says Mr. Flynn; "coordination of transportation agencies can not reach its economic possibilities under this anomalous condition. * * * The tremendous and unregulated expansion of motor vehicle transportation is undermining the stability of rate structures and relationships."

The necessity for regulation of highway carriers that compete with the railroads on a commercial basis is no longer open to question. Truck and bus lines operating across State lines should immediately be brought under control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Flynn recommends also that railroads be allowed to operate motor vehicles to supplement their services. In some cases exemption of the railways from the anti-trust laws would be necessary to allow them to acquire motor vehicle lines already in operation, but that would not involve a sacrifice of the public interest because the unified service would be subject to strict regulation for the public welfare.

The commission would be authorized to fix minimum rates for carriers that engage in interstate commerce on the highways. Railroads and truck lines would be put on an equal basis. Mr. Flynn warns against legislation that would tend to preserve the established forms of transportation and to stifle newer agencies better adapted to modern conditions. The public, he says, is entitled to the best transportation service available and no carrier operating by rail, water, air or highway has a vested right in this business. Nevertheless, he declares that a breakdown in railroad transportation from any cause would send "repercussions throughout the whole industrial and financial structure of the country." This is not a question of hampering the development of truck and bus transportation, but of regulating all carriers in the same way to prevent demoralization of the entire system.

One other phase of this question, which does not lie within the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is taxes. Trucking and bus lines should be so taxed as to eliminate any element of subsidy in their free use of the public highways. The States ought to begin wrestling with that problem.

Repeal of the recapture clause which prevents railroads from building up surplus funds in times of prosperity to carry them through lean years has already been recommended by the Interstate Commerce Commission. If Congress can fortify the railroads with a more equitable rate structure and put their competitors under regulation it will make a most important contribution to the general recovery of business and finance.

JUSTICE HOLMES RESIGNS.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes retires with the good will and affection of the American people. His experience of 30 years as a member of the United States Supreme Court has crowned his life with dignity. His record of public service extending from the Civil War, in which he served, down to the present time entitles him to widespread veneration.

On his ninetieth birthday Justice Holmes concluded the only radio address he ever made with a line from a Latin poet:

> Death plucks my ear and says:
> Live—I am coming.

But he has been very tenacious of life. In spite of his years, he has attended the court sessions and endeavored to keep up with his work. Apparently he hoped to remain in harness until the last. But his failing strength made such a course inadvisable.

Diligent public servants are always loath to relinquish their duties. Yet the public interest demands that they step aside when they become incapacitated for active service. The American people have no desire to exact the last ounce of strength from devoted public servants, distinguished though they may be. Justice Holmes might have retired to private life ten years ago with complete assurance that he had done his full duty as he saw it. Congress might well consider the enactment of a law that would automatically relieve Supreme Court members of active service when they reach an age at which the arduous duties of a justice overtax their vitality.

Justice Holmes is to be congratulated on his long years of faithful service. Although he has been frequently among the minority in writing court decisions, he has won a permanent place in American legal history.

It is to laugh, how Uncle Sam was taken in by Europe after spending millions in educating the people not to buy gold bricks.

COST OF BEING UNREADY

From the Portland Oregonian.

When the Budget Bureau reports that two-thirds of the Federal expenditures for the fiscal year 1933 will be absorbed by national defense, principal and interest of the national debt and payments to veterans, many will be appalled at what they assume to be the cost of war. Yet far the greater part of the national debt was incurred in paying the cost of unpreparedness for war and much of the annual expenditure for veterans was paid in pensions to soldiers who need not have fought if a trained Army had been prepared.

All our wars were begun with an inadequate force of regular soldiers, the greater part of the Army being made up of State militias. The Army which was routed at Bladensburg in 1815 was composed of militia. The early successes of Zachary Taylor were due to the fact that four-fifths of his officers were West Point men or had experience in the Florida War and that, according to Upton's "Military Policy of the United States," the discipline and esprit de corps of his troops had been brought to the highest point by six months of training in the camp of instruction at Corpus Christi. Taylor converted raw recruits into trained soldiers.

At the outbreak of the Civil War the Regular Army consisted of only 16,367 officers and men, and was stationed on the Western frontier or was on the way there, and the militia was "so destitute of instruction and training that they did not merit the name of a military force." But Upton says:

"Twenty thousand regular troops at Bull Run would have routed the insurgents, settled the question of military resistance and relieved us from the pain and suspense of four years of war."

The immense pension roll of Civil War veterans and the billions of dollars paid under it were the result of unpreparedness.

When war with Spain broke out the Army had relapsed into the same State as before the Civil War, and the great volunteer force which was enlisted had not been trained when Spain sued for peace, but it did good service in suppressing the Philippine rebellion. Those wars left a long legacy of pensioners.

Until a short time before the United States intervened in the World War President Wilson refused to sanction preparation, but he then introduced the draft and provided for organization and training of a great Army. But the first fourteen months which a prepared nation would have spent in fighting were spent in training and we had to borrow the allies' ships to carry half of our men. We had no up-to-date machine guns, artillery, and no airplanes, an appropriation of $600,000,000 being wasted almost without a trace.

The heavy expense charged to national defense was not spent on war, as pacifists fondly imagine. It was spent in repairing deficiencies due to unpreparedness and in meeting the enormous consequences. The cost of war has been far exceeded by the cost of being unready for war.

China threatens to let Japan know that the Great Wall is not the only thing that separates them.

Hitler and Hugenberg prove real friends of Hindenburg—they refuse to extend his presidential term.

Senator Johnson's third party experience taught him that a burnt child gathers no moss.

India prohibits meetings of more than five persons. Such a decree over here would be rank class legislation in favor of progressives.

It seems the foreign bond market can be "rigged" in a manner quite as iniquitous as the manipulation of "corners" in commodities.

A comic section has been proposed for the Congressional Record, as though it would be an innovation. Yesterday's issue listed the "Republicans" voting against the reconstruction finance bill as Blaine, Brookhart and Norris.

The cries of str. berry peddlers in January make Washington begin to wonder if winter forgot to come.

If any one doubts Ambassador Dawes' second statement about not being a presidential candidate we wager he can make it still stronger, if necessary.

Prime Minister MacDonald is giving the world the prize demonstration of how to be a dictator in everything but name.

If the Hoover administration had built the Smith-Raskob-Dupont Empire State Building in New York to remain comparatively empty during these depression years you can imagine how much fun Al would have had at the Jackson dinner over its lack of judgment.

The "news" that Germany would not pay reparations never feased the stock market's little rally. Has it reached the philosophical conclusion that anything that comes back from abroad now will be velvet?

How about an investigation to determine whether that round-cornered prosperity is on the square?

SONG FOR TODAY.

Oh, it's best to keep on going whether hopes be low or high!
It is best to keep on working though the fates our dreams deny.
For the "what's the use of trying" and the "we're discouraged"
men
Will be miles away from business when the good times come again.

Oh, it's best to keep on striving though the clouds are hanging low!
And it's best to brave the tempest
when the winds begin to blow.
For the "what's the use of working" and the "we're just waiting"
men
Will find others in their places when the good times come again.

So, in spite of wind and weather and the hardships of the day, We'd better keep on battling till the storms shall pass away;
For the "sit and wait for orders" and the "we should worry" men Will be six months late discovering the good times are here again.

World Watching Mighty Man Plot Against Helpless Atom

By JOHN DALY

While the world is waiting for a way out of its difficulties, with statesmen walking tight-ropes and balancing budgets, several university professors out West are preparing to undermine the very physical make-up of the globe—and in a strange way.

If their experiments are successful there is no telling what may happen. There may not be any world; its basic structure may be shot to pieces.

Large electric transformers are being installed in an experimental power house on the campus of the University of California, an 85-ton magnet part of the apparatus to be used in an attack on the atom.

Were a drop of water magnified to the size of the Atlantic Ocean, all the atoms in the drop of water would be smaller than a spoonful of sand. So tiny is an atom that it can not be detected with the aid of the most powerful microscope.

Imagine, then, going after the poor little atom with an 85-ton magnet. It seems, on the face of it, unfair.

More than that, the scientists have armed themselves with a projectile known as a proton. This will be set in motion by 20,000 volts of electricity and fired off in a brass vacuum tank. Deflected by magnetic force, the proton will be sent spinning around and around in a spiral course, chasing the elusive atom, like a hound dog after a rabbit.

The slogan of the scientists is, "Up, boys, and at 'em!"

Scientists, in laboratories throughout the world, are watching the California experiment with keen interest. They are even fashioning tools to help the Americans in their assault on the atom—great big men armed with all these scientific implements trying to break down the morals of the mightiest mite ever known.

All the world of science watches this struggle. Papers, describing the experiment, are being read in all the languages, including the Scandinavian. One of these describes what is taking place, thus: "Each time the proton passes the midway mark in the vacuum tank it is given added impetus"—spurred on a sort of kick—"by the electric voltage."

In this manner, the proton may eventually catch up with, overtake and run down the atom; probably smash it to pieces.

Atoms of all elements are up for martyrdom. If the experiments are successful, it may mean the complete disintegration of the earth—all in the interest of science.

So, while statesmen work themselves into a lather trying to solve the problems of humanity, scientists are pulling and tugging at the very groundwork beneath their feet. Along with smashing atoms of the earth and those things beneath the earth, the Californians hope to shatter forces even in the ethereal regions, thus making life generally miserable for all the infinitesimal molecules that make up the universe.

Some day, perhaps by accident, one of the enthusiastic scientists may inadvertently crack the wrong atom—the Atlas of the atoms, holding the earth together. Then—poof!—the world will fly to pieces. All the populace will be sent tumbling down the sides, catapulted without a moment's warning into the Great Beyond.

Aside from such a catastrophe, which would save the statesman a lot of sleepless nights, all the scientists may hope to get out of breaking the atom apart is the mere satisfaction of saying, as the farmer remarked about the wagon:

"You were a good old atom, but you done broke down."

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Can Not "Stop" Roosevelt.

Atlanta Constitution.

The statement of Senator Dill, of Washington, that the Democrats can best "meet the third party threat" by the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt succinctly sum up the situation faced by the party—and it is a timely warning that should not be disregarded.

The nomination of Roosevelt would consolidate the disaffected element of the Republican party and bring them almost to a man into the Democratic fold.

On the other hand, should the undercover efforts now being made to prevent his nomination be successful, it would mean that the hundreds of thousands of Republicans, now rebelling against the present policies of their party, would be driven into a third party—and a third party movement at this time would be disastrous to Democratic success.

"Introducing Mr. Bill."

Los Angeles Times.

In fourteen working days members of the present Congress introduced 9,000 bills, most of them, probably, courtesy introductions at the request of constituents. And, as always in the case of wholesale introductions, the Congress will recognize few of them on second presentation, if that ever happens.

As to a Third Party.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Another thought the sweeping victory of the Democratic candidate for Congress in the First New Hampshire District arouses is that popular interest, at least in the Northeastern section of the country, in a third party is virtually nil.

Nothing to Offer.

Topeka Capital.

The Democratic orators can not be blamed for harping on hard times in which they visualize the opportunity to get the offices for deserving Democrats. But throughout the Jackson Day speeches one will look in vain for any devices the Democratic party has in readiness to restore a world in distress, once they get their hands on the political rudder. It has been represented by an imposing minority in both branches of Congress for the last three years, but at no time has produced a constructive program of any sort. They have been assailing the Hoover administration from its inception, but now with a Democratic working majority in the House are not yet ready to lay down a program. When it is ultimately brought out nobody imagines that it will have any actual bearing on problems which still rock the world.

Who's "Somebody Else?"

Buffalo Courier-Express.

What we miss in Mrs. McCormick's statement is the identity of the person other than Mr. Hoover who is to "have a fair chance of victory." "Somebody else," she says. Well, that is delightfully indefinite. If there is going to be an anti-Hoover movement in the Republican party, there must be a rallying point. And Mr. Somebody Else will not provide the point.

Preliminary Test.

Des Moines Register.

The roar of the great Kilauea volcano having been successfully broadcast from Hawaii, the present equipment ought to be able to carry either party convention in June.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Friend of Chief Glassford Trusts He Will Have Opportunity to Grab Real Offenders.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was gratified to read in Sunday's Post that the 30-day sentence of the man arrested by Police Superintendent Glassford for soliciting a dole has been in part remitted. Widespread criticism of the police chief for making the arrest speaks well for the humanitarian spirit of the Washington public, but I think it has been much too severe in many cases. While he may have been a little too strict in this particular case, yet I think he should have the thanks of the law-abiding if he maintains the same attitude in the enforcement of police regulations in general. I would not have him always walk the streets seeking whom he may arrest, but his example would please the public and have a good effect on the whole police force if, he should cause the arrest, not this time of a moneyless panhandler, but of a reckless traffic offender with money to burn. And I hope that some day he will have a chance to prove how consistent he is, at the same time hearten his dry friends, by arresting some well-to-do scofflaw who is groggy enough to flourish a contraband flask in his presence on the public thoroughfare.

W. T. T.

Reader Comments Upon Mr. Raskob's Statement.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Raskob intimates that "prohibition is a social matter and should be taken out of politics." Temperance pertains to the individual. It is the restraint the individual puts upon himself. We will have absolute temperance when everybody becomes perfect or about the millennium. Prohibition, on the other hand, is the restraint the Government puts upon a traffic. The sale of liquor has a social bearing, and therefore is a matter of public concern rather than private. When the Government finds the liquor traffic to be a grave and widespread menace to the public welfare requiring restraint or prohibition, then it positively and immediately becomes a matter of public policy. It may not be a party matter, but it most surely is a political matter. The regulation or prohibition of the liquor traffic has been in politics for ages, and will be in politics until the intoxicating liquor traffic has been wiped out, the speakeasy along with the saloon.

Mr. Raskob's pet plan, as are all attempts or endeavors to retreat from prohibition and permit the legalization of intoxicating liquor, is unquestionably a wet move.

Prohibition is a home rule plan in that it seeks to repell pressure from Europe—spirituous liquors from England, beer from Germany, wine from France and Italy.

Mr. Raskob's poll of wet sentiment is positively childish. His majority out of 25,500, as compared to 15,000,000 Democratic voters, is so exceedingly small a fraction (less than 1-584), as to be grossly insignificant. Like all wet polls, they deceive no real thinking person. They go into the large end of the horn, loop the loop two or three times, and come out the small end of the horn. J. M.

Says Humane Society Could Find Plenty of Work to Do in Saving Horses.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice a letter in The Post on the subject of cruelty to animals written by a Mrs. Russell. During the year past I have been a witness to many distressing cases of cruelty, but no action by the Humane Society.

If the lady in question will stand on the Highway Bridge for 24 hours she will see a sufficient number of broken-down horses pulling wabbly-wheeled vehicles to keep the society in court for several days. If she will go to the sales stables she will see horses sold and dragged out of town whose every step is an agony. Last summer I saw two such horses lie down and die on the bridge, and I have seen others led from the sales stables whose knee joints could not even bend as they were being dragged at the tails of wagons for service out of town, where they could be used out of reach of the law. The activities of the society seem to be confined to pet cats and dogs. No notice seems to be taken of the faithful and long-suffering horse. Before the Humane Society asks for help let it help the horses. H. M.

Gives Warning Against Impostors Soliciting Funds.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: District of Columbia Department No. 1, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, of the United States does not sanction the solicitation of funds for the operation of a soup kitchen in Washington, nor are any of its members engaged in the sale of calendars for the benefit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The Washington public is cautioned against these impostors who represent themselves as representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the District of Columbia. The V. F. W. in Washington does not sanction any of the three enterprises mentioned above. E. F. CLARK.

Don't Put Pawnbrokers in Class With Bond Peddlers—Pawnbrokers Risk Their Own Money.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Representative LaGuardia's classification of bankers with pawnbrokers is unjust to the latter. The pawnbroker loans his own money, and takes the risk of being repaid. The banker loans the money of his depositors, and when he finds himself loaded up with "blue sky" securities and mortgage bonds, rushes down to Washington to urge the Federal Government to come to his assistance.

Every citizen should do his part in raising the Community Chest quota as the duties of peace are just as important as the duties of war, according to an address by Col. Walter C. Clephane, former governor of the Society of Colonial Wars, at a meeting of that society last night at the Willard Hotel.

Dr. Marcus Benjamin and Samuel Herrick, both former governors, outlined the history of the society.

Road Makers Hear Rail-Motor Talks

Relative Merits of Both Systems Are Argued at Detroit Session.

Detroit, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—America's highway makers today heard presented the cases of two transportation agencies—the railroads and motor trucks—in a lively session of the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Road Builders Association.

Samuel O. Dunn, Chicago editor of the Railway Age, and Edward F. Loomis, Washington, manager of the motor truck division of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, represented the two agencies.

Mr. Dunn urged that competition be permitted "on equal terms," and declared that each carrier should be left supreme in its own natural economic field, while Mr. Loomis said highway vehicles, for the most part, already are sufficiently taxed, and insisted that only under "flexible regulation" could motor transport operate profitably.

to reports that Mr. Hoover already has decided upon the name he will submit to the Senate. On this point, however, White House officials were silent.

Attorney General William D. Mitchell was one of those understood to have been under consideration for the appointment. Former Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania, also has been mentioned in informal quarters as a possible White House choice. It was pointed out, however, that the last Supreme Court appointee, Owen J. Roberts, is a Pennsylvanian.

Wounded Thrice in War.

Justice Holmes was born in Boston on March 8, 1841. That week Martin Van Buren, the eighth President of the United States, had relinquished the White House to William Henry Harrison. John Quincy Adams still was living in Massachusetts, and Andrew Jackson, hero of the War of 1812, was enjoying the shadows of the years in Tennessee.

Graduating from Harvard College in June of 1861 Justice Holmes was commissioned a lieutenant in the Twentieth Massachusetts Volunteers. Wounded in the Battle of Balls Bluff in March, 1862, he returned to the line with the Army of the Potomac within six months, was advanced to the rank of captain, and, in September of 1862 suffered his second wound, a shot through the neck in the historic Battle of Antietam.

The following spring he was wounded in the furious fighting around Fredericksburg, which paved the way for Gettysburg. At the end of the war he had achieved the rank of colonel.

First Bench Appointment.

Returning to Harvard he devoted himself for two years to a post-graduate course in law, and at 32 was appointed editor of the American Law Review. Several of his earliest legal works since have won place among the classical expositions of Anglo-Saxon law.

After ten years in private practice and a member of the Harvard law faculty, Mr. Holmes was appointed to the Massachusetts Supreme Court, in 1882. On December 8, 1902, he was appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

One of his first famous opinions was his dissent in the celebrated Northern Securities case, one of the high spots of the Roosevelt "trust busting" era. President Roosevelt had staked his political fortunes on his drive against "predatory monopolists." To find his only appointee to the Supreme Court dissenting on the pivotal legal proceeding closest to the heart of the administration gave the President one of the great shocks of his strenuous political life.

Not Confirmed Dissenter.

Despite the fact that in recent years the dissenting opinions of Justice Holmes have attracted worldwide attention, the great jurist was far from a confirmed dissenter. He disliked the term and was ever at great pains to expound the law to sustain his minority interpretations. So acute and incisive were his expositions that in many cases the dissenting opinion of one generation was the majority view of the next.

Justice Holmes remained extremely vigorous for one of his years until the last months of the 1930 term. Then the feebleness of age began to creep upon him. At his ninetieth birthday party last March he observed in a brief radio address that he felt the hand of time "plucking at my ear."

Although his strength waned steadily during the summer, he resumed his post with determination at the beginning of the present term. He did not give up until he observed recently, as he read a court order, that his voice did not carry to the attorneys' circle immediately below the bench.

"The condition of my health makes it a duty to break off connections that I can not leave without deep regret after the affectionate relations of many years and the absorbing interests that have filled my life," he wrote to President Hoover. "But the time has come and I bow to the inevitable. I have nothing but kindness to remember from you and from my brethren. My last word should be one of grateful thanks."

The text of the President's letter in reply follows:

My Dear Mr. Justice:

I am in receipt of your letter of January 12 tendering your resignation from the Supreme Court of the United States. I must, of course, accept it.

No appreciation I could express would even feebly represent the gratitude of the American people for your whole life of wonderful public service, from the time you were an officer in the Civil War to this day—near your ninety-first aniversary. I know of no American retiring from public service with such a sense of affection and devotion of the whole people.

On Capitol Hill Democrats and Republicans joined in lauding Justice Holmes' brilliant career.

"Every lover of justice and of correct administration of law keenly regrets his resignation," said Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader. "In the light of the march of events his decisions probably will be looked back on as models of correct interpretation of the fundamental principles of jurisprudence."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, said: "The resignation terminates a brilliant, long and useful service scarcely paralleled in the history of the Supreme Court."

Senator Borah, of Idaho, said: "Justice Holmes will now take his place in history as one of the truly great jurists."

Senator Walsh, of Montana, said: "He quits the bench with the admiration, the gratitude and the affection of the American people."

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, said: "During all his years of service to the country as a member of the Supreme Court he never wavered in his devotion to those humane principles which he espoused as a young lawyer."

Bay State Looks Forward To Greeting Holmes Again

But Friends in Beverly Hills Fear Delicate Health May Prevent Beloved Jurist's Return to Rugged Countryside Until Spring.

Beverly, Mass., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Late in the winter of 1841, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Boston physician, famed as an author and poet, made this announcement from his Boston home:

"Last evening, between March 8 and 9, there appeared at No. 8 Montgomery place a little individual who may hereafter be adrest as Holmes, Esq., or the Hon.—Holmes, M. C., or His Excellency—Holmes, President, &c., &c."

Thus a fond father lightly, but perhaps half seriously, glimpsed down the corridor of the years to see in fancy his first born high in the councils of his country. From Massachusetts, many years later, the second Oliver Wendell Holmes went forth to a distinguished career in the Supreme Court of the United States.

Now that he has laid aside his duties, his friends—neighbors and old associates—look forward to welcoming him back to his native State. For close to half a century the renowned jurist has maintained an unpretentious summer home in the Beverly Farms district. At the courthouse in Boston where the Suffolk County and Massachusetts Supreme Courts are housed, attaches look forward to his annual visit—a routine affair in connection with his administration of an estate. Holmes has always made the visit an occasion to call upon members of the Supreme Court and to greet aging men who recalled the days when Holmes, himself, served on the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

There will be one less of these admirers to welcome him back if he comes to the courthouse this year. Only a few days ago Weston P. Hutchins, one of the oldest of active American newspapermen, who had covered the State Supreme Court longer than any other of his profession, passed on at the age of 85. Hutchins was one of those with whom the venerable jurist stopped and chatted on his visits to the courthouse, one of the few remaining ties with the past.

Here, in Beverly and its vicinity, his friends feel that they may not see him until the coming of warm weather. Holmes' health, which has caused so much concern during the past year, would probably forbid his returning to face the rigors of a New England winter. It will not be until spring, his friends think, that the modest summer place, now boarded up for the winter, will be reopened.

Then, they hope, he will be able to set out once more on the long, rambling walks through the countryside, in which he delighted, and be able to enjoy the rugged beauties of blue water, salt air and thundering surf along this rocky coast.

The acquaintances of the grand old man are not restricted to those of high station. While he has ever avoided newspaper interviews, he has given freely of his time to chat with humble folk, including frequent visits to an old friend who tended the railroad gates at Prides Crossing.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

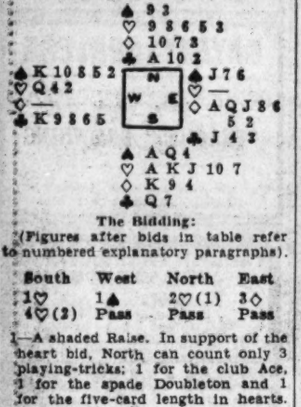
DISTRIBUTION YOUR SERVANT.

MATHEMATICIANS delving into the mysteries of distribution state that the probability of any particular hand occurring in a deal at Bridge is roughly one in six hundred thirty- five billion. These figures stagger the imagination, but when you consider that this refers to all the possible combinations of cards, you are inclined to let the mathematical sharps have their way and not attempt to demonstrate it for yourself. This is the reason that so-called "perfect" hands appear rarely at Contract. Actually, any other distribution of the hands is just as rare or just as common, but not nearly so effective. Distribution is a powerful factor both in bidding and play, but it is a useless servant if you do not understand a way to make it serve your purposes, as is illustrated in the deal below.

North and South vulnerable. East and West not vulnerable. South, Dealer.



The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs).

South	West	North	East
4♡(2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A shaded Raise. In support of the heart bid, North can count only 3 playing-tricks; 1 for the club Ace, 1 for the spade Doubleton and 1 for the five-card length in hearts. The hand, however, contains imponderable values which justify the Raise.

2—While the value of South's hand has been slightly decreased by West's spade bid, the balance has been restored by East's diamond bid, which appears to make his diamond King a winner.

West was forced to lead and it was a case of Hobson's choice. Whatever he elected to do was bad. A lead of the heart would deprive him of a trump trick in all probability. His partner had refused to assist the spade bid and he could not open diamonds because he had none of them. Hoping to find his partner with either the Queen or Ace of clubs, he elected to lead that suit. When the Dummy went down, South correctly read the diamond holding. West had failed to open a diamond because he was void, he reasoned, South could see one probable spade loser and two probable losers in diamonds. He did not anticipate the loss of a heart trick, but it was essential, if he was to make his contract, that he lose no clubs. Therefore he permitted the club lead to run to the Queen. East brilliantly refused to play the Knave, but merely covered the deuce with the trey. This play is a very strong defensive measure and should be made whenever the Dummy shows Ace Ten of a suit and Third Hand holds the Knave with small cards. It can lose nothing and may gain. South won the trick.

Making of game now appeared a cinch, so South laid down the Ace of hearts only to find that West held a certain heart trick. This put a different complexion on the deal and many players with the South hand would now concede defeat. However, the freaks of distribution had made possible the making of an apparently unmakable contract. South now laid down his other top heart, leaving West with the high trump. He then led his last club and won with the Ace in the Dummy. Dummy's remaining club was ruffed in the closed hand and West was forced into the lead with the high trump, leaving him only spades or clubs to lead. West decided to lead a spade and thus South avoided the loss of any tricks in that suit, his losers on the hand being confined to the trump trick and two diamonds. South's accurate play had found a powerful ally in distribution.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

The Dah-ray Style-Beauty Chart for 1932.

Today's Coiffeur must suit your gown!
Eyebrows not Too made up!
Eyes naturally soft --- with brilliantine!
Lips no longer look the least Painted!
Faintly pink or colorless nail Polish and there my dear-Bugs style for 1932.
Jane Corbett

New York, Jan. 12.

NOW it's coiffeur to harmonize with your gown!

That is, there is a movement on foot in this direction, and I predict that it will take hold—remember my prediction when it does!

I'll tell you why I believe this will be a success, this idea of changing one's coiffeur to suit one's outfit. Because it will stimulate interest in hairdresses that are becoming and appropriate, and it will stimulate as well our good taste and our artistic taste in selecting our clothes. Correct coiffeur—correct ensemble, both correct for our type, and then the correct coiffeur, at the correct time and place. Voila! Madame Incomparable! M'selle who always looks lovely, who is even considered a beauty even though she really isn't one—Madamoiselle who is always dressed in the most perfect and appropriate taste, without ever being obvious about it!

Personal Variety.

For it is a fact that one tires of the same coiffeur, no matter how becoming it is, now isn't it? Yet one hesitates to change it, fearing to show one's features to disadvantage instead of to advantage. Now, studying the coiffeur and selecting three or four different hairdresses that are becoming and elegant and chic, and knowing what day or hour of the day or night each coiffeur is best suited to, give one all the variety one could ever wish for.

And quite naturally, selecting several different and becoming coiffeurs, hairdresses that are suitable to your own particular type, points out to one the harmony of these coiffeurs with ones clothes. Your coiffeur for street and tailored wear, for instance, needs be suitable for the wearing of a hat, and that hat be a hat that is suitable to your tailored wear, doesn't it? Whilst your coiffeur for the boudoir needs be as softly flattering and nonchalant as its contact with pillows will make it anyhow, what? Three cheers for several coiffeurs, then—and worn with the proper gowns!

"Do you like these what you call 'pantie-shorts' better than bloomers?" asked la Chic Secretaire. Well, yes, I do, because while they are quite as modest and snug as bloomers, they are shorter in the legs, have no elastics to mark the skin, and are more easily washed and ironed.

That's why I am simply crazy about this week's leaflet, because it contains the detailed and careful sketches and directions for making a pair of pantie-shorts and a chemise to wear with them from a yard and a quarter of material, complete! And, as though that weren't startling enough, the pantie-shorts have a bias seat for smoothness under one's frock, and are large enough for a woman whose hips measure as much as forty-five! While the chemise can be worn by one with a bust measure even as large as thirty-eight. Altogether it's a love of a leaflet, so better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it.

LACE LORE.

Chantilly lace, also known as "Point de Caen" and "Point de Bretagne," is distinguished from all other kinds of lace by its large, shaded design with branches and flowers. The black Chantilly is a silk lace made with bobbins with star pattern webs as foundation. White Chantilly is also called "la blonde." This charming lace is made in big widths and flounces and by machinery.

Today's illustration tells you what you have to do to be modernly lovely. Better cut it out and study it, cause its so-o-o-o important to be lovely, and so-o-o-o important not to be a back number.

Au revoir!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

ATMOSPHERIC POLUTION.

THE subject of atmospheric polution by smoke and its effect on health continues to be a live subject in Pittsburgh. In a November meeting of the Allegheny County Medical Society, H. B. Miller, of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation, told the doctors of the amount of smoke in the air and some of its effects.

The amount of solid matter which will fall out of the air, added to that which is washed down by rain and snow yearly, varies from 200 tons for each square mile of good, clean residential city district to 2,000 tons per square mile in an industrial and switch track district.

Pittsburgh in 1930 was about 1,000 tons per square mile, equivalent to about three tons on each city block 300 feet square. That seems like a lot of fuel to waste when many people are cold. At that, this is only the coarse stuff and does not include the cinders, clinkers, and heavy particles that can not float long.

Other thousands of tons of products of combustion and pollution are in the air as gases and fine floating particles capable of remaining indefinitely in the air and of rising high and being carried long distances. Much of the harm is done by one of these gases, the sulphur fumes. None of this polluting substance enters into the tables of weights given by those who could weigh and measure solid particles.

Mr. Miller holds that soot, smoke and dust in the general atmosphere does not bring about consumption in the inhabitants of a city. The Pittsburgh consumption rate is low. It does cause pneumonia and common colds. He goes into the anatomical and physiological reasons why dirt in the lungs predisposes a person to pneumonia and interferes with his recovery from the disease.

These were the conclusions of a report made in Pittsburgh 20 years ago, and they are in substantial accord with other reports made from other parts of the world:

Polluted air is responsible for fogs and clouds. These shut out the sunshine. In consequence, smoky air makes thus indirectly for rickets. It has been established that persons with rickets are nervous, jumpy, on edge, and also that they are prone to become infected by pneumonia, colds, sore throats, or whatever other infection comes along. Growing children especially are harmed by this effect of air pollution. And, finally, cloud, fog and dark days cause depression of spirit.

FRECKLED BABIES.

A. F. C. writes: Is it sure that if a man with freckles marries a woman without freckles the children will have freckles, too?

REPLY.

I think the question as you put it can be answered: It is not sure.

I know of no proof as to the inheritability of freckles or of the type of skin that freckles easily.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to noon, from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 a. m. to 8:45 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on January 13 will be of a bright and cheerful nature, making it a propitious day for social occasions. For the young and active-minded, the day promises interest and variety. There is a considerable risk of accident in hazardous sports or occupations, and especial care is advised.

The child born on this January 13 will have an unusual appetite for learning and an ambition to get on. It will be a chronic questioner and will want to know the "pros" and "cons" of things. It will be blessed with a ready humor and considerable common sense.

Born January 13, you are a creature of extremes; you believe in the gospel of all or nothing. One does not often find you willing to play second fiddle—this applies to the business as well as the love part of your nature. Your moods, too, carry your spirits from the heights to the depths, and you are either very glad to be alive or imagine you wish you were dead. You are either enthused or extremely bored.

It is astrologically shown that the fates get in some heavy body blows now and then, but you have the grit to stand up to them, and you are never as done for as the rest of the world may think. You do not have an even temper, but experience will teach you the necessity of better control. You ride your hobbies to death and pursue a "fad" to extreme length.

There is a strong tendency on your part to play the critic, and you are apt to be sarcastic and severe to your opponents. You like to have your own way too much for your harmonious cooperation with others. If you were able to manage your love affairs as ably as you can the rest of your life more contentment and happiness could be augured.

Successful people born January 13:

2—Alfred C. Post, physician and surgeon.

4—William H. Crocker, banker.

constantly by civic leaders and distinguished visitors, who come to the Capital.

Much approval was expressed yesterday of the selection of the judges for the contest from representatives of five universities in Washington and Dr. Abram Simon of the Board of Education. These judges, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, Dr. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University; Rabbi Simon; James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University; Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor of American University, and Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, are doing a great service to the community in consenting to serve in this capacity.

Augmented interest in the contest was exhibited yesterday after publication of names of the judges, and it was apparent that the race will be keen for the 108 prizes to be distributed from the $1,000 set aside by The Washington Post for prize winners.

In the morning's mail came this letter from Brother Philip of St. John's High School, 1225 Vermont avenue northwest.

"We are interested in your essay contest and wish to have all our students profit by a careful study of the fine qualities of Washington. Please send us copies of the booklet which we propose to use in having the boys prepare essays."

Similar indorsement of the plan was given by Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of Prince Georges County, Md. He wrote: "I am always glad enthusiastically to indorse any proposal for the study of the character and achievements of George Washington. This is especially true during this bicentennial year, and applies to the proposal of The Washington Post to motivate such study by offering a large number of prizes.

Many Inquiries.

"I shall be very glad to have you present this proposal to the school teachers of Prince Georges County, a list of which is inclosed herewith."

From school after school, public, private and parochial, are coming like inquiries and indorsements of the contest and the promise of entering their students in it.

New essays received yesterday were from Douglas Stanton, jr., age 16, 2214 King street, Alexandria, Va.; George Lincoln, age 11, Seat Plesant, Md., and Anna Kelly, age 15, 12 Lloyd avenue, Rosecrest, Alexandria, Va. Many other contestants telephoned that they were completing their essays and would send them in a short time. Once more these contestants are reminded not to hurry the work on their essays as they have until midnight of March 14 to file them with the Essay Contest Editor of The Post. It is much better to take a little longer in the preparation of the essays than to rush them and lose all chance of winning by carelessness.

The Essay Contest Editor warns the contestants to be careful in their spelling. Several of the essays received have had words in them which were incorrectly spelled, which, no doubt, would not go unnoticed by the judges. Dictionaries are within reach of all school children. When in doubt as to the correct spelling of a word, consult the dictionary.

Washington, our Citizen! How proud we should be to say those words. Surely there is no other man in the history of our country who has more ably served it than he.

George Washington, President of the United States—and commander-in-chief of the Revolutionary armies, was born in Westmoreland County, Va., 1732. His father died when he was eleven years old and it was under his mother's care that he had his early education and to her he owed his honor and integrity. When he was seventeen he received a commission as a public surveyor, and at the age of nineteen he was made adjutant general, with the rank of major, in charge of one of the militia districts in Virginia.

In 1758 he was appointed lieutenant colonel in the militia to repel the encroachments of the French. This was a small command, but it was the beginning of his military career. Later on, during the French and Indian War, he was appointed commander in chief of the forces. At the end of the war he resigned his command and retired to private life. The training he received in this war gave him an admirable knowledge of military affairs.

Married Mrs. Custis.

At the age of 27 he married Mrs. Martha Custis, a widow with two children, who became his charges.

In 1774 he was a delegate to the First Continental Congress where Patrick Henry stated that he was the greatest man on the floor for solid information and sound judgment.

At the Second Congress in 1775 Washington again was a member, and this time was appointed the head of the most important committees. When war was declared he was chosen by Congress to be commander in chief of the American forces. On July 3, 1775, under a huge oak tree in Cambridge, Mass., he took command of the army. He held command throughout the war, and proved himself a great general. He commanded men, and he was a born ruler of men.

After the war he resigned his commission and retired to private life.

Convention Delegate.

He was a delegate from Virginia to the constitutional convention and was chosen its presiding officer. Upon the adoption of the Constitution he was chosen first President of the United States. He served two terms, refusing a third one. Upon leaving the President's chair he delivered a "Farewell Address" which had the tone of a kindly father to his children.

He returned to his estate, but in 1798 when there was a prospect of war with France, the country again called upon him to be commander in chief of the army. He immediately began organizing his forces, and, though the danger was removed, he did not live to know it.

He died at Mount Vernon December 14, 1799, at the age of 68, and he was buried there.

Truly these words best describe him: "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen." I repeat that we should be proud to say, "Washington Our Citizen."

First in the Hearts of His Countrymen

"CAPTAIN MOLLY" PITCHER TO BE HONORED IN 1932.

JUNE 28 will mark the 153d anniversary of the battle of Monmouth, which brought into prominence a colorful and heroic character of the Revolutionary War, "Molly Pitcher."

When the Nation-wide, nine-months' celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington takes place in 1932, the name of "Molly Pitcher" will be remembered and honored as one of the picturesque women of the Revolution. This tribute will be paid her not only in her native State of Pennsylvania and in the State of New Jersey where she distinguished herself as a "soldier" but throughout the entire Nation.

"Sergeant" or "Captain Molly" was a nom de guerre given to the wife of a soldier whom she had followed to the war, which was not unusual at that time. This soldier was named John Caspar Hayes. Private Hayes was probably detailed on the battle field of Monmouth from infantry service to help with one of the batteries. His wife was aiding the cause by carrying pitchers of water to the hot and thirsty patriots.

When John Hayes was wounded at the side of the cannon where he was serving, his wife rushed to the cannon, grasped the ramrod and sent home the charge, calling to the gunners to prime and fire. It was done. Then, plugging the ramrod into the smoking muzzle of the cannon, she performed admirably the duties of an artilleryman while loud shouts and cheers from the soldiers rang along the line, and the fire of the battery became more vivid than ever.

"Capt. Molly" kept her post until night closed the action. There is a tradition that after the battle, Gen. Nathanael Greene complimented her upon her courage and conduct, and the next morning he presented her to Gen. Washington, who received her graciously and assured the heroine that her services were appreciated and would not be forgotten.

This remarkable and intrepid woman long survived the Revolution, dying at Carlisle, Pa., in 1832. On the death of John Hayes after the war she married John McCauley, but until she died she never laid aside the appelation of "Captain Molly," which she had so nobly won.

On February 27, 1822, the Pennsylvania Legislature granted her the sum of $40 and an annuity of the same amount. She died January 22, 1832, and is buried in the old Carlisle Cemetery. On the 100th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, the city of Carlisle erected a monument over the heroine's grave.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Circulating Husbands.

MY DEAR Frances McDonald:

I hate to turn to you for advice, for to an outsider my unhappiness will seem uncalled for, but I feel that your opinion will help.

We have been married for seven years and have a precious child, and anyone would think that our home life is ideal, but I am far from happy. My husband had quite a bad reputation when I married him (with women). I knew this and so did he, but he seemed so sincere in wanting to overcome it as he seemed to realize he could not have a successful married life and be so selfish.

He has continued to show his weakness ever since. Only on two occasions have I tried to talk to him about it, and the reaction I got was far from kind. He felt I was suspicious, jealous and unfair. On the contrary none of these feelings have ever been mine. He doesn't know that I know half the things about his affairs that I do. I don't want to nag or cause disagreeable scenes so I let a lot go by apparently unnoticed. However, the present one is so prolonged that I can't go on this way. He is intrigued with a woman in another walk of life and more is going on than is fair or discreet. I haven't said anything and the only time her name was mentioned at all, he defended her with his tone of voice and showed such a strong feeling for her that I changed the subject. His family, as well as mine would be terribly upset and probably take steps that would be unpleasant all of the way around.

I don't want to interest myself in another. That would be the beginning of the end and I am against such affairs anyhow. He knows my feelings on such matters and thinks I believe only what he tells me. But I don't want to go on this way as we are growing farther and farther apart and it would mean that I would have to admit failure and I want to succeed. I have the normal woman's pride and don't like another's sympathy about such, nor do I want to be laughed at and pitied. We are congenial in so many ways and if I could just get him to calmly talk it all over with me and have him see I'm not trying to accuse him but help him see how dangerous his play is.

We live in a small town and go with the best people and if we busted up there would be lots of commotion about it as they all think I am above noticing such, but every woman has pride and feelings. When I am teased about him I laugh it off and pretend I think it isn't serious and doesn't matter, but so many are waiting to say: "I told you so," as they were disappointed when I married him. So you see why I am so anxious to have a happy home with him? But how? DEANY.

If this association has become a matter of common knowledge to the public you should certainly ask your husband to choose between you and the woman who so "intrigues" him. She would not intrigue him for very long if she feared his moods and tone of voice as you do. Assert yourself, girl. It is not necessary to take another man into your life or to match your husband's cheapness in any way. But you can refuse to be a wife to a man who is not able to hold a wife's respect.

The trouble with men of this particular stamp, is that they are trivial souls. Shillyshallyers And not worth the time their wives spend wondering where they are. How substantial sensible women can bother their heads about such spiritual tramps, passes our limited comprehension. To our way of thinking, the best a man has and all that he has is little enough, and no woman should accept any less, and give anything at all. Instead we have the woman who is robbed of her rights and fears to mention the fact lest the sneaking Romeo become peeved, hurt, or uncomfortable.

Read the riot act to this weakling. Lay down the law. And then stick to your guns. And see if he will find anything "intriguing" in that!

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

"HENS AND CHICKENS."

SEMPERVIVUMS! Do you know this interesting family of plants with such long, hard names? Or would you know them better were I to call them by their common name, houseleeks?

These wee plants that never grow up have no striking beauty, as have the lily and rose, to recommend them; yet each rosette of sage-green leaves makes a very definite appeal to all lovers of nature.

Like the sedums, if grown in their natural setting of stones, they will soon win their way into your garden likings, as you learn to know their quaint poses and formations.

Houseleeks are domestic little plants. In the Old World we find them growing quite happily on the very housetops. They are intriguing little bunches of green, and when they come into your window garden or your garden in the open, they come to stay.

The houseleek, or homewort, requires its own environment and is always ill at ease when planted with military precision along the outer edge of a straight border. We often see them so placed in public places and when we do we long to lift them and carry them swiftly off.

Houseleeks are always well placed when used to fill in odd corners or when planted along the edge of a brick pathway. Here they have a chance to spread themselves, and how beautifully they do it. The children always love the semper vivums. They know them by the name of "hens and chickens," or "cats and kittens."

An interesting way to grow these wee plants in a window garden is to plant them in one of the strawberry jars which can be purchased in any department store for a few cents. In the top of the jar plant a large, well-established plant and in the holes or openings along the sides plant the smaller specimens. You will be surprised at the resultant development. Before long those plants on top will be peeping over the edge and those set in the holes will be diligently reaching out to their nearest neighbors. Soon the entire top and sides of the container will be covered with these most perfect green rosettes. Some of the older plants may have each leaf tipped with dull red. I have always likened these low-growing rosettes to the sea roses that adhere to the ocean bottom around Bermuda, and wherever there is a coral formation.

RAIL LABOR ACCEPTS CUT TO AID JOBLESS

Inside Story of Wage Fight Reveals Unions Cooperated in Assiting Roads.

(Copyright, 1932, by the United Press.)

Chicago, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—The authentic "inside story" of capital's widely publicized controversy with labor over salaries of nearly 2,000,000 American railroad men revealed tonight that union rail workers will accept a temporary 10 per cent pay slash in return for assurances on the part of the railroads of more stabilized employment.

Railroad presidents meet here Thursday with heads of the 21 labor unions, affiliated with steam transportation, to adopt formally the above program, which is expected to be of real benefit to labor and capital alike.

The meetings between union leaders and between railroad capitalists have been shrouded in considerable mystery for the last year. Out of them have gone rumors of general strikes, of arbitrary wage threats and of possible disaster to the railroads and to the men who work for them.

True Story Revealed.

The true story of the situation, as told for the first time by a man high in the councils of railroading, paints an entirely different picture of the situation, which is so vital to the future prosperity of the country.

"It is not a case of wild-eyed labor agitators battling stubborn capitalists," he said. "Instead it finds the heads of the railroad unions, stable, sober men, conferring amicably with the owners of the roads on problems which affect vitally the interests of both sides.

"I feel that the whole story should be made public, because it is an honorable story of sensible men doing what they think best. I ask that my name not be revealed, simply because some of the conferees still cling to the notion that negotiations between railroads and their men should be kept secret.

Position of Railroads.

The crux of the matter is that the railroads are hard pressed to meet their fixed charges. Many of them are not even doing that. Similarly the railroad workers have been hit by the depression so that approximately 500,000 of them are out of work.

"The situation demands a remedy, and that remedy has been provided. The workers will accept voluntarily a 10 per cent cut in their salaries for one year. That will save the roads approximately $250,000,000. The recent freight increases will give the lines about $100,000,000 more. They will use that $350,000,000, first, to meet fixed charges, and second, to increase employment.

At first increased employment will have little or no effect on trainmen. There must be more business before more trains can be run.

Plans for Employment.

But the railroads will rehire immediately thousands of workers to rehabilitate their run-down equipment. That will be like a snowball increasing in size along with the expected general business improvement. The rehiring of men will help business, and better business will make possible the use of more men.

"At the end of the year, as we all hope, economic conditions will be so much improved that the 10 per cent salary cut probably will become past history and former wage levels likely will be reestablished.

"The hiring of more men, meanwhile, takes into consideration the unions' wish for a shorter working day and a shorter working week. The details of the plan yet are to be worked out, but in some cases we likely shall find four men doing the work in six hours that three men now are doing in eight.

Banker Wins Acquittal In Fund Misapplication

Louisville, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—James B. Brown, former president of the National Bank of Kentucky, was acquitted by a directed verdict in Federal court here today of charges of misapplying $46,000 of the bank's funds.

Judge Charles I. Dawson told the jury to bring in the verdict on the grounds the prosecution had not made out a case. Charles F. Jones, former vice president of the bank, was acquitted yesterday on a similar directed verdict. The charges were brought after the failure of Brown's banks and his bankruptcy.

John W. Moore testified he was "very much alive" in spite of testimony last week by Thomas W. Reinhart that Moore was a relative of his and had been dead four years. Moore's absentee ballot was counted in Shelby County, Reinhart had said.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

ALTHOUGH the 14 acts of Eugene O'Neill's tragic trilogy, "Mourning Becomes Electra," current at the National, encompass a wider scope and a deeper and more penetrating psychological study than the 9 acts of "Strange Interlude," they do not impose so crushing a burden upon any member of the cast as was placed upon the actress playing Nina Leeds in the earlier multiple-act drama. There is no part in "Electra" so long as the Leeds role in "Interlude."

This is occasioned by the fact that O'Neill has skillfully distributed the pivotal points of his story among the three plays of the trilogy so that of the principals of prime importance Judith Anderson is the only one who appears at any length in them all. While repression no doubt is as exhausting a task as an actress can be called upon to perform, it is not until the third play, "The Haunted," that the character of Lavinia Mannon becomes convincingly and genuinely articulate. Thus the number of spoken lines is minimized.

Of the others, Florence Reed appears only in "Homecoming" and "The Hunted;" Thurston Hall, only in "Homecoming;" Walter Abel, only in "The Hunted" and "The Haunted;" Crane Wilbur, only in "Homecoming" and "The Hunted."

Even in the face of such consideration for his players as this, Mr. O'Neill has set his cast a colossal chore.

Judith Anderson, by the way, has the distinction of being the only actress, to the best of my knowledge, who has ever appeared in two such monumental works as O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" and "Mourning Becomes Electra." She portrayed the character of Nina Leeds in the former and, as Lavinia Mannon, "Vinnie," in the latter, assumes the most exacting assignment the script affords. And acquits herself magnificently.

This contemplation of the women in Eugene O'Neill's plays reveals a strange bitterness and ruthlessness toward them on the part of the author. There is no mitigation for much that they say and do. No attempt is made to create sympathetic audience reactions in their behalf. Their imperfections of character are vividly set forth without mercy or compassion. A strange predilection on the part of a man who is popularly reputed to be kindly, shy and something less than a woman hater!

While we are on the subject, it might not be amiss to warn prospective attendants at "Mourning Becomes Electra" that virtually the entire first act of "The Hunted," which immediately follows the dinner intermission of one hour, will be ruined for them by those who prefer dessert to drama and come straggling back to their places in the theater anywhere from 5 minutes to a full half-hour late.

The comparatively few who paid the actors the compliment of being in their seats for the opening of the second play of the trilogy Monday evening might almost as well have stayed out themselves, such was the annoyance caused by those who evidently were present wholly to be seen rather than to see, and so were content to stumble up and down the aisles in the semidarkness in search of their seat locations.

It would be helpful to the conscientious playgoer if the National management would put a rule in force that no late comer will be seated until the end of the act.

During a hurried good-bye call from Campbell Casad, representing the new musical soon to be seen at the National, it was emphasized that despite the play's earlier nomenclature, Vincent Youmans' musical version of Jane Cowl's former stage vehicle will be known as "Smiling Through," instead of "Smilin' Through." I take it that this is to prevent confusion—insofar as a single "g" can manage it—with the film version, past and future, of the same subject.

It will come as a bit of a surprise to those who have considered the play sufficiently established as a hit to last out the remainder of the season on Broadway that Francine Larrimore, in "Brief Moment," by S. N. Behrman, will close its New York run on Saturday night of this week after considerably less than 100 performances. Tonight, I believe, marks the play's seventy-fifth time.

With "Brief Moment" moving out, it is announced by Guthrie McClintic that "Distant Drums" will be presented in the Belasco Theater, New York, next Monday night, January 18, instead of at the National Theater, as originally planned.

Two special performances will be given at RKO-Keith's next week when Koran, the mystic, will be the headline attraction of the vaudeville bill.

On Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock there will be a special matutinal matinee—and how've you been?—for women only. Then on Thursday night Koran will stage what he is pleased to designate a "ghost party."

Koran, by the way, has developed his "art" to a point of scientific perfection that has engaged the interest of many of the world's leaders in advanced thought, including Sir Oliver Lodge and the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Harald Kreutzberg, German master of the dance, one of Charles L. Wagner's concert artists, who will be presented in the National Theater on Thursday, January 28, under the local management of the T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau, may well contemplate with satisfaction his growing vogue in New York.

During the season of 1928-29 he made eight appearances in the metropolis; in 1929-30, fourteen appearances were made, and in 1930-31, eighteen.

His distinguished patronage includes Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Princess Paul Chavchavadze, Mrs. William Leeds, Countess Mercati, Mrs. Robert McAdoo, Princess Rospigliosi, Mrs. Walter Rosen, Vittoria Duchess di Sermonetta, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt and other distinguished devotees of the arts.

Tonight, Club Michel, that popular night rendezvous occupying the former Le Paradis premises on Thomas Circle, will take on all of the familiar aspects of an airport. Among the distinguished guests will be Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flier; Walter Hinton, of the famous NC-4 crew; Paul F. Collins, famous air mail pilot, and Henry J. Brown, chief of operations of the Ludington Air Lines.

"And what is this all about?" you ask.

This, then, is the gala premiere of a series of unique "Aviation Nights," sponsored by the Club Michel and the Ludington Air Line. Tonight some one will receive two gratuitous round-trip air flights to New York as guests of Club Michel.

Every Wednesday a similar drawing will take place. Contest cards will be given to all dinner and supper guests during the week and on Wednesday evening of each week the winner will be announced, and, if present, will be presented with the two round-trip tickets to Gotham.

Of course, if you wish to make the trip alone, and still win two tickets, you can take two Ludington planes and run over to New York and back between them!

LECTURER OUTLINES HEALING OF POVERTY

Christian Science Speaker Tells Method of Curing Economic Ills.

A lecture on Christian Science was delivered last evening in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, by Frank Bell, C. S. B., of New York City.

Mr. Bell is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Wilbur E. Yocum, first reader of First Church, under the auspices of which this lecture was given.

The lecturer said in part:

Christian Science heals poverty in the same manner that sickness and sin are healed, through "the renewing of the mind," as St. Paul puts it. Inspired writers repeatedly have asserted that thought adjusted to the divine nature will bear fruit "after its kind." Jesus gave the unfailing rule for success when he said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." This kingdom, the Master said, is "within you," and "at hand;" therefore the individual Christian has the right to feel that the essential completeness of reality is present, not absent, and only needs to be realized in order to be enjoyed.

A divinely intelligent and loving creator has not made a man to be impoverished any more than to be sick or sinful. Poverty, like disease and sin, involves a mistaken sense of God and His work. The evil quality of poverty is not that it makes men suffer, but that it misrepresents God. The Christian aim in overcoming poverty, as in healing sickness and sin, is to the glory of God. Mere getting of money would not glorify God, but the demonstration of power over material things through spiritual understanding does "magnify the Lord." The writer of Genisis affirms that divine Spirit has given man dominion over earthly things. Jesus proved this to be true and said his followers should do likewise.

One who for many years had been distressingly limited in income or salary found himself trying vainly to use his early glimpses of Christian Science to enlarge the salary by some mysterious process. Finally he saw that what needed to be enlarged first was his understanding of man as God's image and likeness. It was his narrow, pinched sense of self that was bringing forth "after its kind" in his personal experience. Cultivating a larger and more spiritual concept of God and man, as he learned to do in a perfectly natural way through the teachings of Christian Science, he soon found this clarified vision reflected in his affairs. Men and things began to manifest an unmistakable tendency to help rather than to hinder. Unexpected opportunities appeared and unsuspected capacities came to light. Human relationships became more fruitful of good, after the manner of true brotherhood.

Christian Science can not be used for the mere acquisition of money or other material things, but it is successfully employed to the overcoming of that abnormal sense of lack which is the result of ignorance of spiritual substance and which in turn bears fruit in human fear and poverty.

Mastery of materiality is the secret of wealth and health. It is the mastery that comes to light in daily experience through the Christianly scientific cultivation of spiritual-mindedness.

Lost Scientist Found Wandering in Hills

Austin, Tex., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Dr. Hermann Joseph Muller, University of Texas zoology professor and widely known scientist, who disappeared from his home Sunday, was found wandering in the hills near Mount Bonnell today. He was taken to an infirmary where it was said he was partly delirious and suffering from exposure.

When Dr. Muller failed to return home after leaving at breakfast time Sunday, Mrs. Muller told officers she believed he had gone into the hills for a walk seeking surcease from overwork, and had been overtaken by a nervous breakdown.

Parliament in Sweden Asked to Take Pay Cut

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 12 (A.P.). Members of the Swedish Parliament were asked to take a pay cut of seven kroner (about $1.25) a day under the budget submitted at the opening of Parliament today. The present rate of pay is 32 kroner and for members of the Lower House 24 kroner up to a certain stipulated maximum.

In a speech from the throne, King Gustave said Sweden would work for general reduction of armaments at the Geneva conference next month. The budget, he said, showed a considerable reduction from last year.

S. KANN SONS BUYS SAKS & CO. BUSINESS

Latter Firm Will Quit Field on April 1; Property to Be Remodeled.

One of Washington's oldest and most famous stores, Saks & Co., will go out of existence after April 1 and become a part of S. Kann Sons Co., an equally venerable establishment.

Neighbors for many years, the two stores will now become one under the name of S. Kann Sons Co. The latter store has bought Saks & Co., and has taken a 10-year lease on its property at Seventh street and Market space northwest. It was announced yesterday. The Kann store is at Eighth street and Market space, just above Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The Saks Building is to be remodeled throughout, and will be made a part of the merchandising space of Kann's, to be used for the establishment of new departments. The Saks Building has a frontage of 50 feet on Market space and 115 feet on Seventh street. It provides a total area of about 6,800 square feet on each floor. When remodeling and alterations work is completed the Kann property will have a total area per floor of 37,000 square feet.

Kanns Here 38 Years.

Solomon Kann and his three sons, Louis, Sigmund and Simon Kann, established the Kann store in Baltimore about 70 years ago; it has been located in Washington for the past 38 years. The Baltimore store was discontinued in 1902.

Present officers of Kann's are: Simon Kann, president; B. Bernei Burgunder, vice president and treasurer, and Sol Kann, secretary.

The Kann Co. owns the Homer Building on Thirteenth street between F and G streets northwest. This property may be used for expansion of the firm when the 10-year lease expires, it was announced.

The store employs about 1,000 men and women. Saks has about 125 employes. They will continue working in their store until after April 1, when a number of them will be employed in the new firm and the others will be aided in finding employment, it was announced. An enlarged establishment will make it necessary to increase employment, it was pointed out.

Saks Long in Business.

Andrew Saks started his store at 308 Seventh street 65 years ago. He was joined by his brother, Isadore Saks in 1873, and then moved to 316 Seventh street northwest. The firm returned in 1885 to 308 Seventh street where the store now stands.

George C. Henning was associated with the business at that time. He retired to enter the banking business. Joseph I. Saks, a son of Isadore Saks, was later admitted to the firm. Isaac Gans, treasurer and general manager, has been associated with the store since 1901.

Every President of the United States during the past 65 years has patronized the Saks store, as well as many members of Congress and the Diplomatic Corps, Mr. Gans said yesterday. The store has various branches in New York and other cities.

COMMISSION LACK STIRS MIDSHIPMEN

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 12.—Fewer than 100 midshipmen of the class to be graduated from the Naval Academy in June will receive commissions in the regular line of the Navy, according to reports reaching Annapolis. And as a result there is much apprehension among the class which has a roll of approximately 450.

Officials of the academy, while not making extensive comment on the existing situation, admitted that it is grave, and indicated that action by Congress offers the only relief if all hands are to have the preference of accepting commissions in the ordinary course. The number of vacancies in the commissioned personnel in June will not be sufficient to take care of all of the class, it is said. Right now it is said there is a surplus of more than a score in the commissioned ranks. According to reports reaching here there will be berths for scarcely more than 60 of the graduates.

A similar situation existed last year, but Congress and the Navy Department finally found a way to relieve the anxiety among the midshipmen. It was decreed that a limited number who desired to resign might do so. Others resigned by reason of physical disqualifications, chiefly defective vision.

About 25 elected to accept commissions as second lieutenants in the Marine and several others went into the Supply Corps. This has been an alternative for a number of years, and it again will prevail with the 1932 class. In the meantime, however, the first class is laboring under considerable stress.

Father Walsh Makes Job Insurance Plea

Pittsburgh, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University, believes any communistic menace to America is in our "decay of spirit and cupidity of heart" rather than in the force of Moscow.

Speaking before the Pittsburgh Retail Credit Men's Association last night, the famous student priest warned that America must bring about a more equitable distribution of the fruits of industry to offset communism. In this he included recognition of claims of workers to some practical form of insurance against old age and unemployment.

British Respond to Plea To Pay Taxes Promptly

London, Jan. 12 (A.P.). — British citizens paid £21,353,000 in income tax between January 1 and January 9, it was announced tonight. This was £9,500,000 more than was paid between January 1 and January 10 last year.

The increase was attributed to the provision in Philip Snowden's last budget that the tax for three-quarters of the year should fall due on January 1 this year. It was also ascribed in part to a response to the chancellor's appeal for prompt payment to help the nation in its financial difficulties.

SORE THROAT

There's a world of winter comfort in Bayer Aspirin tablets. If you take them only to break-up colds, you know only half the story. Three tablets crushed in a little water will relieve the sorest throat with one good gargle. That's what the specialists use in cases of sore throat. That's what you ought to use at home—every time you want throat comfort and protection from infection. Remember, every case of tonsilitis began with just a sore throat! Don't neglect any sore throat. Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first tickling felt. Take a couple of tablets for that headache that comes with a cold—for neuralgia, neuritis, or similar pain. If it's genuine Bayer, it can't hurt the heart.

SLOGANS FOR THE POLITICAL PARTIES.

"Hee! Haw! We're Back Again!" was recently chosen by a committee of Democrats as the slogan submitted in a prize contest for the Democratic party in the coming election. The choice has been generally repudiated by the party, and Elmer Twitchell, the old slogan man, has compiled the following list of suggested slogans for all parties this year:

FOR THE DEMOCRATS.

WEDNESDAY JANUARY 13, 1932 SPORTS

WOLGAST OUTPOINTS LANDERS IN CLEVER DISPLAY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE bigwigs of wrestling are casting longing eyes in the direction of Washington these depressionistic days and our friend Joe Turner, the old maestro, is by way of being a power in the pachydermic vale.

Turner is riding high in the promotorial saddle, what with his shows jamming the Auditorium to capacity whenever the big names of the racket are on the billboards. The big shots of wrestling are eager to work in Washington and cut in on the spoils. Especially when important men like Ray Steele and Jim McMillan, crown princes of the sport over which Jim Londos reigns supreme, can draw only 4,000 cash customers in little old New York, where they rassled Monday night.

Jack Sherry, free-lance rassling champion of the world, is itching to get Jim Londos into the ring with Londos' Eastern Seaboard title at stake. Through the offices of his manager, Dick Curley, Sherry has offered to throw Londos three times within an hour and give Londos $15,000 for his pains. If he fails, Sherry will give $15,000 more to charity, he says.

Londos will accept Sherry's challenge—when he forgets to remember that he has nothing to gain and a yearly income of several hundred thousand dollars to lose if he were dethroned as the king pin of the Curley troupe.

Good friends of Marty Gallagher, Washington's one-time heavyweight hope, are now urging Gallagher to try his lot in the wrestling industry where his great bulk and hefty legs may stand him in better stead than in the prize ring where Marty has been a trial horse.

But Marty could take a fling at rassling not entirely unequipped. He has had experience as an actor with the St. Stephen's players, of this city, if this department remembers rightly.

The turning point in the wrestling industry in Washington is expected to be reached when Dr. Ralph Wilson, the darling of the gallery, gets worse than a draw in a bout here. Dr. Wilson's matches, like Caesar's wife, doubtless are above suspicion, but the fact remains.

Hack Wilson and Bill Terry have scooped the holdout season by several weeks by their refusal to sign proferred contracts that entail a 40 per cent salary cut for Terry and a reduction for Wilson that approximates 73 per cent. Such holdout tactics are unofficial, however, inasmuch as a player is not placed in that classification until he fails to report at training camp under orders. Then a recalcitrant is liable to fine, suspension or other retaliatory measures, but not until.

The National League magnates paved the way for strong arguments in the salary war when they voted to deaden the official ball last year. The Giants can now point to the fact that Terry batted more than 50 points under his 1930 average when he hit .405. Terry can counter with the claim that his 1931 average of .349 was only a fraction of a point behind the mark that won the league championship, but the Giants may choose to view the matter of 56 points as 56 points.

The All-American craze has spread to golf.

Driver—Craig Wood.
Brassie—Leo Diegel.
Spoon—Bill Mehlhorn.
Long iron—Tommy Armour.
Mashie—Macdonald Smith.
Mashie niblick—Walter Hagen.
Putter—Billie Burke.
Traps—Joe Kirkwood.

The golf match of the century would be a test between the above group, each playing his favorite shot, and the Bobby Jones of 1930 who swept the National Open, National Amateur, British Open and British Amateur titles. Jones would not lack for backers.

The greatest surviving evil of the horse racing industry is the practice of the various tracks in permitting "comeback" wires to operate within the track.

These "come-back" wires, providing an outlet at the track for the thousands of dollars that have been bet in the books throughout the country do not dump the money into the mutue machines until the last possible minute before the closing of the windows and thus deprives the fans at the track of the right to know with any degree of accuracy the prevailing odds as the horses go to the post. More often than not, because of the volume of money flowing in over the "comeback" wires, it is the big bookmakers and not the fans at the track who make the prices on the horses.

And Billy Landers is entitled to cap and gown after absorbing his boxing lesson at the hands of Midget Wolgast last night. The champion omitted nothing in the boxing curriculum and augmented the Norfolk lad's wardrobe further with an overcoat of punches.

EASTERN FIVE BEATS BUSINESS, 28-23, TO GAIN LEAD IN SERIES

Tech Defeats Central; 29-15; Zone Defense Stops Losers.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

EASTERN HIGH took a shaky hold on first place in the basket brawl for the high school championship yesterday at Tech Gymnasium, beating Business, the people's choice, 28 to 23, in a game which soaked some 3,000 young folks with thrills. It was the second of the two series games yesterday, Tech having beaten Central in the first, 29 to 15, in a contest which had little besides tradition to recommend it.

Heavily checked by the height of the opposition, Business fought gamely for victory against Eastern and all but achievel that end. The Stenogs produced in Carroll Shore (a lad who could not make the Tech team last year) a guard whose work stamped him as one of the outstanding figures of the series. He counted 11 points, passed, picked off, dribbled and made his own plays in the manner of a major leaguer.

No more than 5 points eve separated the clubs. Business' forwards and guards and Sherman, the natural guard whom Coach Woodworth has had to appoint as center—in the total absence of tall boys on the squad—harried the more seasoned Eastern squad from the start.

Bayliss Starts For Eastern.

Eastern sprang a surprise in the first quarter by sending Bayliss in instead of Waters, and the young man provided a mild stir by scoring three times in short order, but Shore began to bloom near the close of the period and, aided by a splendid break and shot by Cavanaugh, put Business ahead, 8 to 7.

Eastern made up the slight disadvantage by half time when Lieb scored a basket and a foul shot in the last 3 seconds of the second half for a score of 15-15. Shore put Business out in front at the start of things in the second half. Eastern's confidence was badly warped but Barney Kane, the oldest head on the Lincoln Park bunch, took matters into his own hands, or rather hand, and by dint of three consecutive one-hand shots put his side out in front by 21-18 at the end of the third period.

He opened up the fourth with a long shot from the side, and Sherman and Tipton, of Business, were ousted from the game on personals. Esenstad made his usual mile-long shot which brought the score to 23-21 in Eastern favor, as Lieb went out on personals. The crowd was pulling for Business to go ahead, but Bernie Phillips, a 6-foot-2 substitute for Lieb, came through with an arching shot from the very corner of the court, and presently Bones Courtney sank a couple of foul shots. Ben Zola and Al Waters were impenetrable walls of defense for Eastern until the end.

Tech Looms as Favorite.

Given a tall center Business might win the series as they chose, but since none is likely to forthcome, Tech began to loom more of a favorite yesterday as a result of its exhibition against Central. The Blue and White boys were woefully unable to penetrate Tech's stationary system of guarding. Realizing it almost from the start, or working on a preconceived plan, Central attempted to shoot over the zone defense, but with poor results.

So scrabbled was the shooting eye of the losing side that it did not score from the floor until after 7½ minutes of the second period, when Bits Keyser popped in a foul shot missed by Buddy Nau. Tech, on general shooting skill, led at 8-1, at the first quarter, and jumped to 16-4 at the half. Burke having scored a foul shot for Central.

A combination of a Tech let-down in efficiency and a Central recuperation held sway in the third period, as both teams tried to speed up the lagging play. Tech was out on top, 21-11, at the quarter, and widened the gap gradually near the close. Fred Thomas and Everett Russell turned in masterful basket ball performances, which were lessened in no way by the inability of Central to produce its expected form.

Strange Shot and Great Comeback.

The Eastern-Business game produced a "Strange as it seems" shot, when Shore, standing fully 20 feet

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

OLD JOE TOOMEY, who used to figure right smartly in the pin punishing news hereabouts, continued his comeback last night at Lucky to lead King's Palace to a 2-1 victory over Judd & Detweiler, in the National Capital League. Toomey, whose right arm can still propel the bakelite as fast as any of the youngsters, had a 365 set and 138 game.

His team rolled 613, 531, 557, against the Printers' 565, 510 and 561. Mike Sweeney was "the boy" for the losers.

A season's record in the Postoffice League was broken last night by the Lions, 1,541. This team had a 546 set, while Mahoney, of the Eels, batted them down for 139 and 361.

Ganner's 154 game topped the Lutheran League. He rolls with Trademark. These were rolled at Arcadia.

Honors were divided in the Supervising Architect's League at Lucky. Victorians had a 1,606 set, Georgians a 573 game, Wetzell, Sonneman and Litzau a 138 game, and Story a 357 set. Mary Hughes led the girls of the Eastern Star pin loop with a 124 game and 314 set. Her team, the Mount Pleasants, had a game of 490, while the Ruth team rolled a 1,427 set.

King Pin took three from the Maccabees in the King Pin Business Men's League last night. Alsop's 347 set was decisive. Union Wallpaper took the odd tilt from Nationals. In the Ladies' Independent League also at King Pin, No. 2, Kants and Lansburgh's won 3-0 victories over Tip Tops and Capitals.

Agates ruled the ways at Lucky yesterday in The Washington Post Printers' League. They beat Minions 2-1; Quads did the same to Pearls, as did Ionics to Gothics and Picas to Rubys. Kenney's 145 game and 361 set was high.

Good scores in the Columbia Heights League last night. Liondale had a 1,766 set and Cool Drinks a 616 game. Ed Keith's 406 set was plenty high, while Charlie Walson topped the individuals with a 149 game.

Team results were Cool Drinks, 2; Bell & Smith, 1; Swan's, 2; Eynon Motors, 1; Crandall Realty, 3; Art Craft, 0; Liondale, 3; Ford Electric, 0; Paramount, 2; Chaconas, 1.

Phillips' 145 game and 379 dominated the Masonic League last night at Convention Hall. King David team had a 605 and a 1,723. At the same alleys Donaldson's 141 was high in the Odd Fellows' loop, as was Strobel's 348 set. The Amity teams scored heavily among the squads.

DuPris' 144 game and 351 set put him ahead of the field in the United States Marines League. Marine Barracks downed the pins to the tune of 574 and 1,631, also at Convention Hall.

This really should be at the top of the column. Veterans Bureau, of the Washington Ladies' League, won a match last night, beating the Cardinals, two games to one. M. Leaman, of Columbia, had a spendid 351 set. Her team leveled the splinters for 1,491. Other results were: Columbia 2, University Park 1; Beeques 3, Keenos 0; Shamrocks 2, Hilltops 1. Shamrocks rolled a 526 game.

North of Washington, Section 3, results: Manor Club 2, Cardinals 1; Brightwood Barbers 3, Woodside 0; Silver Spring Paint 2, Wolfe Motors 1; Zirkle 3, Cleaners and Dyers 0. High team set—Zirkles, 1,544. High team game—Brightwood Barbers, 540. Individuals—Moore, of Manor, 366, and Wessells, of Zirkle, 143.

Richest Golf Prize Goal On Coast

Rain Threatens Delay; Mac Smith Among Favorites.

By WILLIAM WARNE.

AGUA CALIENTE, Lower California, Mexico, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The knickered clan gathered here today for the Agua Caliente open which begins tomorrow and closes Saturday with the division of $15,000, golf's richest stake.

But no sooner had the 101 professionals and 27 amateurs, who are entered, begun to arrive from Los Angeles where many of them played in the Los Angeles open, than the weather man pulled a storm out of his hat and threatened them with postponement.

A light rain sent tournament officials out to poke the greens and fairways. They returned in half and hour under a clearing sky, and reported it was all for the best and the greens had been improved.

Horton Smith on Sidelines.

Tonight officials said nothing short of a downpour tomorrow would prevent the tournament getting under way at 8 a. m.

All players who have taken part in the tournaments on the Golden Winter Trail, were present and accounted for, even Horton Smith, who will not play because he broke his wrist in an automobile accident in San Francisco, but who will act as chairman of the rules committee.

MacDonald Smith, fresh from his conquest yesterday in the Los Angeles open, spent the day resting at his hotel, but many of the others familiarized themselves with the rolling Agua Caliente fairways.

Gene Sarazen, New York pro who won the first Agua Caliente tournament in 1930 and Johnny Golden, Stamford, Conn., and George Von Elm, who tied for first place money last year, were back. Golden has instituted himself as a serious threat this year by appearing with Leo Diegel, home pro, from time to time, on the course this winter.

Eighteen holes will be played each day over the par 72 course—36 out and 36 in—with the low 64 and ties going into the last two days.

The prize money will be divided with one-third for the winner, $2,500 for second, $1,500 for third, $900 for fourth, and so on down to $50 each for the last five.

Holdout War Looming in Baseball

Magnates' Attempts to Reduce Wages Promises Row.

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—A hold-out war, the like of which the oldest baseball fan has never seen, is expected to break out on all major fronts shortly, if not sooner.

The opening blasts in this war, which is likely to leave all concerned with very high-class headaches, were fired by Bill Terry, who does first-basing for the New York Giants, and Hack Wilson, who would like to do the center-fielding for the St. Louis Cardinals.

And today a loud detonation was heard in New Orleans when Melvin Ott, New York Giant's outfielder, proclaimed he would return his 1932 document unsigned to Stoneham & Co.

"Big Names" Due To Balk.

Terry and Wilson were the first stars to register loud and prolonged protests against what they considered absurd and unfair cuts in their pay checks. Ott followed suit. It shouldn't be long now before practically all the "big names" in the business begin returning unsigned contracts and threatening to spend the remainder of their natural lives fighting, running bowling alleys, selling insurance and what not.

The foundations for this war were laid by the club owners in their annual winter conclave last month. The magnates, while they retained the right of individual action, were unanimous in the opinion that the economic situation called for reduced salaries. Just what the owners meant by reduced salaries is indicated in the contract offered Wilson and Terry. Wilson, a $33,000 man in 1931, was offered $7,500, and Terry, in a letter from Memphis, said the cut he was asked to take was something like 40 per cent.

The holdout war is likely to be more intense in New York than anywhere else. This for several reasons. In the first place, New York has three major league clubs. In the second place, these three clubs are studded with stars. And it's the big boys who are in for the cutting.

Babe Herman to Balk At Less Than $19,000

Glendale, Calif., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Salary cuts, said Floyd ("Babe") Herman, high-salaried outfielder of the Brooklyn Dodgers, hold no interest for him, and if his new contract this year is less than $19,000, the value of it last year, he'll send it back to Brooklyn.

Herman gave his views today on contracts after he had heard that the Dodgers might go even so far as a cut of 40 per cent. Although Herman drew down his big salary last year on a previous record as a hitter, he was able to do no better than .313 in the standing for 1931.

Yankee Contracts Mailed; $60,000 for Ruth—Rumor

New York, Jan. 12 (U.P.).—Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankee Baseball Club, mailed out 40 contracts today to players.

Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Vernon Gomez were included in the list. While no mention was made by Barrow regarding the salary offered Ruth, it is rumored to be $60,000, with a bonus clause enabling him to earn $80,000 which was his salary during the past two years.

Barrow said nobody had been "seriously hurt" by financial terms in the contracts.

Shires Signs With Braves For One Year at $11,000

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Art "The Great" Shires, announced today he had signed a one-year contract for $11,000 to play with the Boston Braves.

Shires said he was well pleased with the figure since it was about $3,000 more than he received last summer at Milwaukee. He led the American Association in batting last season.

Campbell May Try to Better Own Speed Record for Auto

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British speed king, feels so apprehensive about the lasting qualities of his world auto record of 245.773 miles per hour that he is considering a return to the United States within a month for another whirl along the sands of Daytona Beach in his famous Bluebird machine.

Campbell's plans have progressed so far that his American representative, Bill Sturm, of Indianapolis, will go to Florida this week for a conference with Daytona Beach officials Sturm will discuss questions of financial support, which developed a hitch last winter, as well as a proposal to extend the sandy racing strip to permit greater acceleration.

After roaring up and down the beach to smash the late Sir Henry Segrave's record by more than 14 miles per hour last February 5, Campbell told Strum he did not feel he had done his best with Bluebird. The British driver said he reached top speed after passing the measured mile.

Ninety Mile Beach, New Zealand, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The attempt of Norman (Wizard) Smith to break the record of 14.65 seconds a mile by motor car, with a flying start, was postponed today to await the next spring tide January 22, 27 or February 4, 6.

Smith, a noted Australian driver, has been here a month trying out the hard, sandy beach with a powerful car brought from Sydney. He hopes to travel faster than the 245.773 miles an hour attained by Sir Malcolm Campbell, of England, at Daytona, Fla., last year.

2,000 SEE FLYWEIGHT CHAMPION DAZZLE NORFOLK BOXER TO WIN ALL 8 ROUNDS AT ALEXANDRIA

Italian Dodges Blows of Foe in Masterful Exhibition.

Burns Beats Bashara; Essinger Is Stopped By Patsy Lewis.

By JACK ESPEY.

A BIG little man, Midget Wolgast, king of the flyweights, gave a marvelous exhibition of the skill that won for him 112-pound title in dealing Billy Landers, blond Norfolk bantamweight, an artistic beating last night before 2,000 fans who packed Portner's Arena in Alexandria.

Wolgast came prepared to uphold his prestige though his title was not at stake, and when he found early in the bout that Landers was far below his class, he proceeded to entertain the gathering in the manner of a master showman, and the champion that he is. He did not have to extend himself and wisely chose to exhibit his big bag of boxing tricks that ranged from a darting left jab to a right cross without trying to knock out an evidently helpless foe. He won every one of the eight rounds by a wide margin.

Young Landers, popular in this vicinity by virtue of several victories during the past six months, was so far outclassed and so much of a sport that he laughed at his own inability to hit the champion during the latter rounds and was quick to congratulate him at the finish.

Wolgast Elusive Target.

Billy struck not more than six hard blows throughout, but this was due not to lack of initiative and aggressiveness but to Wolgast's great speed.

From the moment the opening bell sounded when the Midget rushed out and tagged him on the side of the face, Landers knew he was outclassed. But he plodded after the little Italian relentlessly and let fly his vicious right as often as he could, which was seldom, while the champion circled around him like a busy bee, pecking away at his face and body with a left hand that defied detection as well as blocking. Actually, Wolgast's left shot back and forth so quickly that ringsiders were unable to count the number of times he executed the blow in some of the rallies. On many occasions he struck Landers three times without a return. Sometimes he landed on the body and head in what amounted to one motion.

Landers Tries Hard.

Defensively, Wolgast was as hard to strike as an eel in a pool of soapsuds; at least Landers found it so. When Billy lashed out with his right, the Midget ducked and stuck a tantalizing hook, usually with the open glove, in the Norfolk boy's face. Blood spurted from the Landers schnozzle in four rounds. Billy rushed the Midget into the ropes several times only to whip the air while Wolgast slipped away to the tune of hearty applause.

In the eighth round Landers finally nailed his foe with a left to the head which caused the champion to back up a couple of steps, but that was the extent of the damage chalked up against Wolgast.

Bobby Burns, Baltimore lightweight, earned the decision over Tommy Bashara, of Norfolk, in the eight-round semiwind-up, which was fought at a dizzy pace from start to finish. Burns, holding an advantage in height and reach, earned the edge through a straight left jab and an overhand right. Bashara, however, staged a rousing rally in the sixth, when he almost had Burns on the verge of a knockout. His short arms worked like pistons in a toe-to-toe exchange that left Burns distinctly tired and wobbly.

Patsy Lewis, another Baltimore lightweight, stopped Billy Essinger, of Washington, after 40 seconds of the second round in the main preliminary. Essinger went down under a crushing one-two to the head and struck his head on the edge of the ring, thereby assuring his defeat.

Bingo Brodie, a crude, but willing middleweight, gained a technical knockout over Jesse Belt, Washington, in two rounds, while in other bouts, each of which consumed four rounds, Marino Marini, 136, outslugged Louis Guglimini, 132; Billy Reed, 135, outlasted Soldier Shasburger, 132, despite a knockdown, and Lynn King, 135, outpointed Kid Benfer, 128.

1932 Nat Contract Signed by Joe Kuhel

President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, seems to be making more headway in signing his players for the coming season than are the owners of most of the other teams in the league. Yesterday morning's mail brought the signed contract of first baseman Joe Kuhel, it being the fourth received to date.

BALL SEASON OPENS HERE APRIL 11

Nats and Red Sox to Get One-Day Jump on Other Clubs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The 1932 major league baseball season will open April 12 and close September 25, it was announced today by Presidents John Heydler, of the National League, and William Harridge, of the American, who have spent five days working on the joint schedule.

In the National League Philadelphia will open at New York, Boston at Brooklyn, Chicago at Cincinnati, and Pittsburgh at St. Louis. In the American League Washington opens at Boston, New York at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Chicago, and Cleveland at Detroit.

The complete schedules will be announced February 2 and 3, the league presidents said.

In accordance with custom, Boston will play a single game at Washington on April 11, a day in advance of the regular opening, in order that President Hoover may throw out the first ball.

Tomorrow's Mat Card One of Best Listed Here

One of the best matches wrestling cards in the last several years is slated for the Washington Auditorium tomorrow night, headlined by two feature bouts, one of which brings together Ray Steele and Herby Freeman. In the second feature, and one which probably will be the best event on the bill, Sandor Szabo will meet Jim Corrigan.

Schmeling-Walker Delay in Signing

New York, Jan. 12.—The matter of signing contracts for the Max Schmeling-Mickey Walker heavyweight title match in Miami February 25 made slight progress today, but not toward any penmanship on the part of the principals.

By now most of the observers have given up all hope that the match ever will be signed for anywhere. The fighters have been approaching the documents with the avowed intention of indorsing them for nine successive days.

ROUSH GIVEN RELEASE BY REDS

Veteran Outfielder Declines Contract in Utility Role.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The Reds' greatest center fielder, Eddie Roush, idol of Cincinnati fans, today stepped out of the baseball picture.

Independently weal hy, Roush accepted unconditional release rather than fill a utility role at a small salary. The veteran outfielder said he had enough money to retire. He does not plan to play ball again.

Accepting release, Roush told Sidney Weil, the Reds' president, the club needed younger players and that he could help Manager Dan Howley by getting off the team.

Spark Plug of Reds In 1919.

Roush reached the peak of brilliancy during the 1917-1924 seasons. He was the spark plug of the Reds' only world championship team in 1919 and led the National League in batting in 1917 and 1919. His greatest offensive year was 1921, when he batted .352.

A sensational defensive player, Roush never hit under .321 during ten years with the Reds, from 1916 to 1926. After four years with the New York Giants he returned last season and slumped to .271.

In 1927 Roush was traded to the Giants for George Kelley, first baseman, but remained out of baseball in 1930 as a result of salary differences with the Giants. He was handicapped last year by the layoff and slowed down in fielding as well as batting.

Has Drawn $200,000 In Salaries.

Baseball followers estimated Roush drew $200,000 salary since his major league career began in 1916. His salary last year was $15,000. Three active years with the Giants brought him $70,000.

Roush started professionally with Evansville, in 1912. He was a rising star in the outlaw Federal League when obtained from Indianapolis in that circuit by the Giants in 1916. John McGraw traded him that same season to the Reds, where he won fame.

MERCURY PREPS DANCE.

The Mercury Preps will hold their annual dance tonight at the Knights of Columbus Hall, in honor of the football team.

Stealing, Forgery Charged To West Virginia Students

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—The Athenaeum, West Virginia University student newspaper, says today that H. A. Stansbury, director of athletics, has charged 183 students with "both stealing and forgery" in connection with alteration of football tickets.

Stansbury wrote to the students, the publication says, calling upon them to "make adjustments upon your athletic ticket improperly used for the West Virginia Wesleyan and Penn State football games."

The Athenaeum says coupons 16 and 17 in student activity books were used by students to gain admission to the two games by erasing the first digit in each number so that the coupons appeared to be numbers 6 and 7. This enabled the use of two coupons from each book for admission to each game.

The newspaper adds that the students involved have been called upon by Stansbury to make good the $2 admission charged for the Wesleyan game and the $3 charged for the Penn State game.

The Athenaeum quotes Stansbury as saying in his letters:

"We presume it is hardly necessary to state that unless this is done at once the case will be turned over to the proper disciplinary officers of the university; and since, in its essentials, this act involves both stealing and forgery, you may calculate for yourself the consequences of this course.

"The athletic book is as much a part of your regular university equipment as your 'paid up' slip from the financial secretary's office or your grade report card, and to falsify it is just as serious in the one case as in the other."

JUSTICE LOGAN SETS JEFFERSON PARK QUARTER-MILE RECORD

2-Year-Old Scores in Debut

Negotiates Distance 3-5 Seconds Faster Than Old Mark.

Captain Jerry Second and Rigaud in Third Hole.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Justice Logan, a two-year-old son of Justice F. and Jane Logan, making his first start, established a new track record for the quarter of a mile in winning the Fred Digby purse at Jefferson Park today.

The little turf youngster covered the two furlongs in 23 2-5 seconds, three-fifth of a second faster than the record hung up by Tiverton on January 5. Justice Logan got away well but trailed back of the pace-setting Steel, from S. W. Labrot's barn, to near the finish, where he assumed command, beating J. J. Robinson's Captain Jerry by one and one-half lengths. Rigaud was third, while Steel stopped badly and finished sixth.

Justice Logan was the second choice in the wagering, paying $7.20 for $2.

The daily double combination of High Pockets and Transgression returned $58.40 for $2.

Human Traits

Storage batteries are like human beings. A battery is not simply mechanical —it is electro-chemical. The elements in it undergo a constant change—they will suffer from thirst, starvation, overwork and overfeeding—hence the necessity for regular inspection.

FINNATH, prominent from the start and vigorously indulged after a quarter, was slow to respond, but gained rapidly after reaching the final eighth and got up in the final strides. VLADIMIR began fast, lost much ground early, easily increased his advantage at the turn, but weakened after five-eighths, yet just failed to last. BELIEVE IT OR NOT began slowly, saved ground working way up and was in close quarters near the end. POLYPON was weakly ridden, but closed going well. WEST VIRGINIA quit. PRINCESS ELSIE was never formidable.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:06. Off at 2:07. Winner, J. G. Brown's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH POCKETS, $12.20, $4.40, $3.20; GALLOPETTE, $4.20, $2.80; SIR JOHN K., $5.80.

HIGH POCKETS, going in his best form and never far out of it, responded strongly when urged after straightening out in the stretch and, wearing down the leaders, won drawing out. GALLOPETTE, given a hustling ride, was much used forcing the early pace, saved ground and held on fairly well. SIR JOHN K. raced unnecessarily wide under a poorly judged ride and dropped far back entering the stretch, but came again boldly in the final stages. ST. JIM, unable to keep up, saved ground and closed some ground in the stretch, but could not get up. BRIMSEY began slowly. TRYING quit. TUPUF had speed under energetic riding and quit badly after five-eighths.

THIRD RACE—Mile and seventy yards. (Substitute). Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:02½. Richard's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRANSGRESSION, $5.00, $3.80, $3.20; ED REESE, $12.80, $5.80; HARASS, $5.00.

TRANSGRESSION, away fast, but taken under slight restraint, was steadied along until reaching the final three-eighths, where she went determinedly under energetic riding and, wearing down HARASS, won easily. ED REESE began slowly and was far back until reaching stretch, where he closed with a rush. HARASS, taken to the lead, had good speed and held on well to final sixteenth, where he weakened after being headed. SURPASS, well up from the start, saved ground and had no mishap. PATTIE KATE could not get up. ROBOT was done early. DIODORO dropped out of it after half a mile.

FOURTH RACE—Two furlongs. Purse, $600. Special weights. Fred Digby Purse. For 2-year-old colts and geldings. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:57. JUSTICE LOGAN broke well, responded strongly after going a sixteenth and, wearing down the leaders, came away in the final fifty yards. CAPTAIN JERRY began well, hung a trifle shortly after the start, but finished strong. RIGUAD, in the closing round, gained steadily from a slow start and showed a fine effort. HAROLD JR. was on extreme outside throughout. REGAN raced well. STEEL displayed speed, but weakened in the last sixteenth.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:04. Off at 4:04½. Winner, W. J. Salmon's b. g. TROLL, well suited by the going and taken to the lead, was rated under slight restraint until reaching the final quarter, where he was vigorously indulged and weakened suddenly in the last sixteenth, but lasted. COLONEL CAMPUS, never far out of it, saved ground at the second turn and, closing resolutely, was rapidly wearing down the winner. RED TAM, restrained the first three-quarters, held on well in the drive. INTERIOR, away from the start, closed fast while getting through on the inside in the last three-eighths. PAROLE II weakened badly after seven-eighths. STAR FLYER quit. MARY M'CLAIN had speed for three-quarters. NERVATOR had a rough trip.

BEIGE, away slowly and under strong urging throughout, steadily improved his position and, holding on gamely, headed MY SWEETS in the final strides. The latter, on inside throughout, raced to the lead with a rush approaching stretch into decisive command quickly and easily. Failed to last. AMERICAN THUNDER, quickest to get going, dropped back at stretch turn but, saving ground thereafter and coming again mildly near the end, outfinished FLORENCE DOLAN. Latter raced well throughout, showed a good performance. HIPPIAS lost ground and could not set up. POLYLITH, under a drive from the start, was through after a half mile.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:56. Off at 4:56½. Winner, W. DIM RAY, well ridden and missing the crowding shortly after the start, raced around HARPOON to the lead at the first turn, made the pace under steadying restraint and, shaking off DICK PORTER, withstood HARPOON. The latter began fast, saved much ground and, coming to the outside of the leader in the final eighth, closed fast. DON T., a factor throughout, weakened in the last three-sixteenths, but outstayed DICK PORTER. The latter, under strong urging from the start, quit badly after showing speed for seven-eighths. WATER FOWL, on inside throughout, could not get to the leaders. WILD LAUREL lost considerable ground. FLAG LIEUTENANT and RAFFLER CON met early interference.

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., Jan. 12.—The card at Jefferson Park tomorrow will be featured by the Paul Hirtenstein purse, a claiming event for three-year-olds and up, a test over the six furlong distance. A field of ten highly regarded speedsters have entered the headliner. The program will be decided over a muddy track.

The three-quarter mile feature, fifth event, should result in a victory for A. P. Canale's LIGHT MINT. The Light Brigade gelding has raced with better company than he meets here and—well suited by the 114 pounds assignment and the muddy strip—appears will placed. Chief opposition is expected from MR. HOBBY. ESTIN, a superior mudrunner, figures best of the others for the minor prize.

FIRST RACE—PIECEMEAL, which weakened last start after forcing the pace, should improve enough to annex the honors. MOTIVE and BIG BLUE have shown most consistent form of the rest of the field and should divide the remainder of the purse.

SECOND RACE—BEAUTY BRIDE stumbled when making her bid last start and finished out of the money. In this group, the Shannon Farm colorbearer is the logical choice. RIVET has raced well over this course and may finish in the runner-up position. MARLENE has worked well and is given the show call.

THIRD RACE—At the mile and seventy yards route, SPORTING BLUES, a consistent plater from the J. C. Sawyer string, figures best of his opponents. BLIGHTER showed a splendid effort last outing and is the place selection, with PATRICK as the show choice.

FOURTH RACE—THOMAS SETH, a recent winner at this oval, figures to repeat against the field he meets here. SIGN OFF, a game mudder, will have SPANFLOW to beat for the show.

SIXTH RACE—ERIN GO BRAGH has demonstrated his ability to negotiate muddy going and, on his recent consistent form, is given the call. SURPASS finished second last start and should go as well here. HAL RILEY is the show selection.

SEVENTH RACE—In the concluding number, JEFF O'NEILL, from the C. A. Bidencope Stable, figures best. AURICA has displayed consistent form of late and is favored over COLONEL K for the place. The latter is rounding to form and must be accorded a chance against this field...

FIELD OF 20 IN HIALEAH OPENER

Flying Heels, Vanderpool Seek $2,500 Purse Tomorrow.

MIAMI, FLA., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A powerful field of approximately twenty of the best horses quartered at Hialeah Park probably will be entered for the $2,500 Hialeah Inaugural Handicap of 6 furlongs, which will be the opening-day feature at the Miami Jockey Club's beautiful Hialeah course Thursday. The estimate of probable starters is drawn from the original nomination list of 61.

J. J. Curtis' Flying Heels, winner of the Tia Juana and Pimlico Futurities in 1929, has been training brilliantly for the test and will be at peak form. The colt's most recent trials were three-quarters in 1:14, a mile in 1:40, three-quarters in 1:12 4-5 and this morning he was breezed for a half-mile.

Vanderpool in Excellent Condition.

Trainer D. R. "Pug" McDaniel reports that Vander Pool, another favored entry, is in excellent condition. The Campfire colt has worked faster than any horse at Hialeah Park and last week got the better of his exercise boy to whirl over 5 furlongs in the blazing time of 0:58 2-5.

The list of probable starters is:

Flying Heels, W. M. Moore's Vanderpool, Ruddiph Agrecias' Judge Schilling, Peconic, Stable's Knight Commander, H. M. Woolf's Lady Broadcast and Unencumbered, R. V. Collins' Don Leon, Brookmeade Stable's Heliasthus, the Belair Stud's Peto, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's 1931 Florida Derby winner, Lightning Bolt; J. C. Ellig Laros, Georgs D. Widener's Panetian, B. S. Stable's The Heathen, P. A. Carresud's Kincsen, Mrs. G. W. Loft's Mabia, A. B. Gallagher's Lady Fingers, Joseph C. Widener's Dr. Syntax, Oak Howard's Street Singer, Mrs. Herbert Fullitser's Repentance and C. V. Whitney's Halcyon.

Apathy Pervades Market's as Leading Issues Lose in Light Turnover.

New York, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Stock traders who tried to maintain interest in the advance found it rather tedious business today.

Rails, reluctant to give up the rally while the prospects of favorable developments remained so encouraging, struggled ahead a point or so, but finally had to succumb to the apathetic spirit with which the rest of the market regarded their rise.

Few industrials and utilities eked out more than fractional improvement at the best, and on the obvious absence of active support the list sold off in the final dealings. The net result was that the averages lost yesterday's gain of six-tenths of a point.

Turnover Is Light.

The turnover of 1,374,947 shares was the smallest since December 24. More than anything, the session seemed to show that an additional dose of stimulant was needed; lacking this, buyers were decidedly disinclined to bid for stocks.

Recovery of preferred stocks is viewed as one of the most encouraging signs of the times, since it would seem to indicate a return of investment confidence. Preference shares of Santa Fe, New Haven, Union Pacific, Gold Dust, Radio "A" and several others were up 2 to 4 points despite the spotty appearance of domestic bonds.

Although most of the important common stocks showed losses, the recession was small. U. S. Steel, General Motors, Case, American Tobacco "B," Kennecott, National Biscuit, Consolidated Gas and General Foods averaged about half a point lower. In American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical and a handful of rails the net change amounted to a point or so.

Evidence of credit ease was provided by a reduction in bankers' acceptance rates the first change in some time. The question suggested by this action was whether a lower Federal reserve rediscount rate was coming.

Easy Money Effects.

Events of the past two years have proved that easy money alone can not bring business recovery, but there have been intimations that some further efforts to expand credit might be made.

British foreign trade improved in December. The emergency tariff and the depreciation in sterling helped effect a six million-pound decrease in imports and a million-pound rise in exports, but the year's balance was heavily unfavorable. London advices said there was talk of cutting the Bank of England's discount rate.

Several foreign exchanges firmed against the dollar, sterling rising more than 2 cents. The French franc was steady. In commodities, wheat reacted half a cent on weak cables and weather news. Corn's losses, reflecting increased contract stocks and a disappointing cash trade, were roughly similar. Cotton closed 1 point higher to 6 lower.

BOND MARKET SAGS UNDER PROFIT SALES

Four Federal Issues Record Gains; Rails Fluctuate, Losing at Close.

New York, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—After a six-day advance, bond prices eased today under what various dealers described as obvious profit taking.

An encouraging feature of the session was the display of resistance put forward by United States Government securities. While the majority of these closed fractionally lower, four of the treasuries registered gains for the first time in the past week.

Investment houses generally feel that Federal loans have been depressed because of the uncertainty of Government financing, particularly that connected with the proposed reconstruction corporatibn.

Railway issues continued the active performers in the market, many of them fluctuating from 1 to 4 points during the session. A number of gains were dropped in a flurry of selling at the end of the day, but at that, the average of twenty selected carrier lines finished fractionally higher.

There were advances in some of the bonds of Allegheny Corporation, Boston & Maine, Canadian Pacific, Central of Georgia, Great Northern, Hudson & Manhattan, Illinois Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Southern Railway and Western Maryland. Many of the other carriers, however, lost from 1 to 4 points of their previous gains.

The utilities list sagged fractionally while the industrials maintained a slight advance. Communications liens weakened after an early advance, with the exception of International Telephone convertible 4½s, which were up 1¾ points. Sinclair Consolidated Oil 6½s and Warner Bros. 6s increased their prices substantially.

The foreign section was irregularly higher. German government 5½s were fractionally better, but the 7s softened. Chile bonds were higher and Argentines firm. Japanese government 6½s were slightly off, but oriental developments and corporate issues of Japan gained from 1 to 2 points.

The day's sales totaled $15,568,000.

FREED IN NEW YORK, BEDELL IS WANTED BY DISTRICT POLICE

Action on Indictment for Entering of Legation Is Blocked by Release.

ALSO REGARDED AS LINK IN CUNNINGHAM'S DEATH

State Department Watching Salvadorean Minister's Assault Case.

William E. Bedell recently indicted on charges of breaking into the Salvadorean legation on May 12 and of assaulting Minister Don Carloes de Leiva at that time, has been released by New York authorities, it was learned last night. They had been holding him pending extradition proceedings instituted by Washington police.

An attempt was made to obtain an indictment against Bedell on the same charges last November. This proved futile when Minister Leiva was unable to testify due to injuries received at the time. The present whereabouts of Bedell are unknown to local police, who have made an urgent request to New York authorities to recapture the man.

It was learned by The Post last night that the State Department is maintaining an active interest in the bringing to justice of those responsible for the legation depredation.

Held Link in Fatal Shooting.

Local authorities also regard Bedell as an important link in the case of the shooting to death of Jack Cunningham, local racketeer, in a downtown alley shortly after the legation affair. A gun discharged by Minister Leiva's assailant during the struggle there when the envoy discovered the intruders in the legation building is said by ballistic experts to have been the same gun that fired the shot that killed Cunningham.

Bedell was first arrested in New York in connection with a forgery charge of which he was later cleared. Washington authorities, however, had begun efforts to bring him back here. A warrant was sworn out here before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage charging Bedell with legation housebreaking and assault on Senor Leiva.

Questioned by New York detectives, Bedell at first denied being here at the time of the legation robbery. Later he is said to have said "that's all fixed up" and agreed to come here for questioning.

Wins Extradition Fight.

Shortly after that, when detectives went to New York to get him, Bedell refused to be extradited and with the aid of attorneys began a fight which ended successfully about two weeks before he was finally indicted here.

Washington authorities are puzzled as to source of Bedell's finances. He is said to have retained five attorneys at various times during his extradition fight. They also regard as significant the fire at the Franklin Hotel, 627 Pennsylvania avenue, some weeks ago, when records indicating Bedell was here during the legation robbery were burned.

However, they pointed out, they had copied the records concerning Bedell before the fire, fearing that some effort might be made to destroy them before they could be subpenaed by a grand jury.

Hearing of Policeman Will Continue Today

Wallace J. Middleton, suspended Twelfth Precinct policeman, will appear before the Police Trial Board today in a continuance of a hearing of charges against him alleging conduct prejudical to the good order of the force.

The accusation against Middleton came as an aftermath of the fatal shooting of Jack Cunningham in a downtown alley last spring. Middleton was arrested as a suspect but was later released. He was brought into the case after it was ascertained that he had quarreled with Cunningham over hi-jacking activities said to have been carried out by the two.

Mrs. Jack Cunningham, widow of the slain man, is expected to testify tomorrow. Harry T. Whelan, attorney, will represent Middleton.

Three Cars Crash When Driver Faints

Traffic Charge Withdrawn When Police Learn Man Is Ill.

Suddenly losing consciousness while driving his automobile on Rhode Island avenue near Second street northwest late yesterday, Edward R. Buhler, 66 years old, of Philadelphia, Pa., is in Garfield Hospital in an undetermined condition, after his machine, out of control, crashed into two other cars.

As he slumped unconscious over the steering wheel, Mr. Buhler's car swerved sharply to the left and struck the automobile of Herman J. Wolf, 64 years old, of 2713 North Capitol street. It then careened along the street and crashed into a machine driven by Eugene E. Coze, 27 years old, of 1737 N street northwest.

Mr. Buhler was revived and taken to the Second Police Precinct. As a charge of reckless driving was about to be placed against him it was discovered he was still in a dazed condition. A physician from Emergency Hospital was summoned, but was unable to determine the nature of his ailment.

Police removed Mr. Buhler to Garfield Hospital, where doctors declared he was suffering from cerebral hemorrhage.

Car Swerves to Miss Children; Man Is Hurt

Daniel Irving Coakley, 45, of 5029 Illinois avenue northwest, received cuts and bruises about the head when an automobile driven by his daughter, Grace Coakley, 18, hit a tree at New Hampshire avenue and Park road northwest last night.

As Miss Coakley's car approached the intersection several children ran into the street and to avert hitting them she swerved into the tree.

RILEY CASE PROBERS WILL CALL OFFICIALS

Welfare Board and Other Authorities to Testify in House Inquiry.

Public Welfare Board authorities and other District officials will be called for questioning on their handling of the Edith Riley case, at hearings next Tuesday of the special House subcommittee pressing the Riley inquiry, Chairman Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, announced last night.

The decision was reached over opposition of Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, who held the situation analogous to summoning defendants to testify before the grand jury sitting on their case.

Bowman, whose resolution instigated the congressional inquiry, was outvoted by Chairman Palmisano and Representative Loring M. Black, jr., Democrats, who thought the subcommittee should go farther than examining the merits of Bowman's resolution.

Chairman Palmisano may be called on for a report at a meeting of the full House District committee this morning. Representative Bowman had urged that the report be the subcommittee's final one, so the District committee might proceed to a full inquiry into local welfare activities.

Palmisano said last night that while the subcommittee's inquiry will be "preliminary" in nature, enough witnesses will be questioned to determine the need for a more thorough investigation by the District committee of the House.

Woman Gas Victim In Grave Condition

Is Found Unconscious by Neighbor Who Calls Fire Rescue Squad.

Mrs. Nina Haducosca, 54, of 724 Third street northwest, is in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital as the result of being overcome by gas fumes in her apartment yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Haducosca lives with her daughter Elain, but was alone in the apartment when fumes from an electric refrigerator that was being repaired overcame her. The motors of the refrigerators are in the basement of the apartment and the gas pressure in the tanks was being relieved and it is believed the fumes were forced up the lines into her apartment.

A tenant on the floor below smelled the odor and, upon investigating, found Mrs. Haducosca unconscious. She called the Fire Rescue Squad who immediately rushed Mrs. Haducosca to the hospital.

Child's Fingers Mashed As Bus Door Is Closed

Betty Kelso, 6-year-old student at Nativity School, 6000 Georgia avenue, received several badly smashed fingers on her left hand yesterday when a bus driver closed a bus door on her hand.

The child was taken to Walter Reed Hospital in a Thirteenth Precinct patrol car and treated. She was then taken to her home at 7610 Georgia avenue northwest.

SUICIDE CERTIFICATE ISSUED IN SHOOTING

Man, Found With Bullet in Heart, Was Long Unemployed, Coroner Told.

With a bullet wound in his heart, William E. Rice, 25 years old, was found dead at his room at 1008 Seventh street northwest yesterday. Coroner Joseph D. Rogers issued a certificate of suicide when it was learned that the man had been despondent because he had not been able to get work.

He was found in his cot on the second floor of the house by his aunt, Miss Kate Rice. A small-caliber automatic pistol lay beside him.

Workers from the Community Chest arrived to render assistance to Miss Rice. She had appealed and had been helped by the Catholic Charities several times, but had not asked for aid since February, 1931. The Catholic Charities will pay funeral expenses, it was learned last night.

Miss Rice told police that the dead man had been without steady employment for a protracted period of time. During the Christmas season he worked at a fruit stand. Miss Rice makes a bare living by repairing clothes, she said.

Drug Store Rum Stolen; 3 Boys Held for Jurors

Three colored boys yesterday were held for grand jury action when arraigned in Police Court on a charge of taking 92 pints of prescription whisky and other merchandise, totaling in value $445, from the drug store of Mas Kossow, 1430 Seventh street northwest.

Two of them also were charged with joy riding in an automobile belonging to Louis Pecker, 727 T street northwest, on January 6. They were Edward J. Morris and James McGraw, and a third youth, Chauncey S. Thomas, was charged with them in the automobile case. Samuel Morgan, colored, was charged with Morris and McGraw in the drug store robbery.

$10,000 Damages Sought in Crash

Suit Holds Auto Owner Is Responsible if Kin Is Allowed to Drive.

Harry Gordon, 300 Twelfth street southeast, yesterday sued Julius Gertler, 1337 Spring road northwest, for $10,000 damages because of an automobile mishap at First and H streets northeast, December 19.

The suit charges that Charles E. Goldstein, son-in-law of Gertler, was driving Gertler's automobile when it collided with an automobile driven by Gordon, causing a serious injury to Gordon.

The suit is based upon the family car doctrine, that an owner of an automobile is responsible for the accidents befalling that car while it is being driven by a member of his family with the owner's permission. Attorneys Bernard M. Chernoff and Earl H. Davis contend that a son-in-law is a member of the family of the owner of the car and that the owner was, therefore, responsible for the car while it is in the son-in-law's possession.

Oil Station Bandit Dives Through Glass to Escape

A young holdup man last night found the filling station at Seventh, L and Water streets southwest "tougher pickings" than he expected and was forced to leave without even waiting to open a plate glass door he had closed behind him when he entered.

The bandit, a colored man, about 21 years old, entered the filling station and left another colored man as lookout. William M. Johns, 63 years old, manager of the place, told police.

After closing the door behind him, the bandit pulled a pistol from his pocket and ordered Mr. Johns to "stick 'em up." Instead of obeying, the filling station manager snatched the pistol from the holdup man's grasp. William Ealley, 23 years old, of 1122 Four-and-a-half street southwest, who was visiting Mr. Johns, started over to join the fight.

The bandit failed to wait for him. He plunged through the door with a crash of glass and he and his companion disappeared along the waterfront.

JOBLESS AND PART TIME WORKERS GET 50 PER CENT OF AID

Secretary Ufford Tells of Relief at Associated Charities Session.

MEETING VOTES CHANGE IN ORGANIZATION NAME

Progress of Group Related in Half-Century Work; Official Rewarded.

More than 50 per cent of the cases receiving help from the Associated Charities in Washington are due to unemployment and part-time employment, Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the society, declared last night at the fiftieth anniversary meeting of the charities, held in Barker Hall, Y. W. C. A.

At the close of the celebration meeting, the more than 300 members present voted unanimously to change the name of the organization to one "which more nearly described the true purpose and work." Arthur Hellen, who introduced the resolution, described the word "charity" as "an absolute misnomer." The board of managers will give early consideration to the change in name, Coleman Jennings, president, announced.

Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, a charter member, reviewed the progress of the Associated Charities since its inception half a century ago.

Best Citizens Now Workers.

Many persons during the earlier years were reluctant to take part in charity work, because of a dislike of mingling with the unfortunate Mrs. Hopkins said, but the pendulum now has swung the other way, she added. Not only are the highest type of citizens taking an active part in welfare work, but more young people are interesting themselves in helping the impoverished, she pointed out.

A letter of congratulation from President Hoover was read by George A. Hastings, administrative assistant to President Hoover.

Mr. Jennings was reelected president; Corcoran Thom, vice president; Harry G. Meem, treasurer, and Herbert A. Poole, assistant treasurer. The following members of the board of managers, whose terms had expired, were reelected: Arthur Deerin Call, Dwight Clark, Mrs. Whitman Cross, Charles C. Glover, jr., Richard W. Hynson, Newbold Noyes, Dr. Frederic W. Perkins, Frank W. Persons, John S. Meany, Mrs. Frederick W. McReynolds and George S. Wilson. Maj. H. O. Atwood, Clarence Phelps Dodge and Miss Lucy D. Slowe were elected to fill vacancies.

Ufford Is Given Watch.

Mr. Ufford was presented with a gold watch by Mr. Jennings in recognition of his many years of work with the society. Mr. Ufford said that the combined budget of the charities in 1909 was $30,000, while last year it was $188,000.

Mrs. John M. Glenn, president of the Family Welfare Association of America, spoke on the place of the Associated Charities in the community in the present emergency "If we can't give the unemployed jobs we can at least give them sympathy," she said.

Tribute was paid in resolutions to the late Cuno H. Rudolph, former president of the society. The Rev. John Van Schaick, editor of Christian Leader, and Commissioner Luther H Reichelderfer made brief addresses. The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Canon of Washington Cathedral, gave the invocation. Resolutions thanking the press for the contribution of "generous support" were adopted.

Two Held for Jury On Rum Sale Count

Pair Accused of Offering Policemen 108 Quarts of "Real Stuff."

Two men George C. Dreyfus, 41 years old, and Carmine Davide, 43 years old, were held for grand jury action under bonds of $1,500 yesterday when they were arraigned in Police Court on a charge of sale of liquor.

The two men made a deal with police, it was said, to deliver 108 quarts of "real stuff." Seven marked $100 bills were handed over to the pair, and they led the way to a parked automobile where the liquor was cached.

There Sergt. George Little and his aids arrested both men. The liquor was later found to be colored alcohol with a little water added to make it somewhat palatable.

CAPPER OFFERS BILL TO PROVIDE PARKING SPACE FOR WORKERS

Future Federal Structures Would Be Required to Give Facilities.

THEATER WAITING LINES HIT IN CAREY MEASURE

Swanson Asks $812,087 for Approach and Roadway to Memorial Bridge.

Parking in the neighborhood of Government buildings would be made easy under a bill introduced in the Senate yesterday, requiring all future Federal structures to provide parking facilities for personnel.

Sponsored by the Federal Bar Association, the measure, which would go a long way toward solving the downtown parking problem, was introduced by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee.

$50,000 Revolving Fund.

The bill provides a $50,000 revolving fund to finance the project. The director of Public Buildings and Public Parks would be given authority to allocate space and work out "terms." Charges would be limited to maintenance requirements.

Three other bills affecting the District were introduced in the Senate yesterday.

Senator Robert D. Carey (Republican), Wyoming, reintroduced his bill making it unlawful for theater proprietors to sell more tickets than there are seats available, or make misleading statements regarding availability of seats. The bill is aimed at abolishing waiting lines that form in lobbies on "sell-out" nights. A fine not exceeding $100 would be imposed for violation.

Circus License Fee.

Senator Capper introduced another bill to make circuses visiting the District pay a $2-a-day license fee on every railroad carload of equipment. Where circus wagons or trucks are used, $1 a day would be assessed on each unit.

Senator Claude Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, asked appropriation of $812,087 for an approach and roadway leading to the Arlington Memorial Bridge at its Virginia end. A similar measure has been introduced in the House by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia.

Capper Parking Measure Is Indorsed by Bar Group

The executive council of the Federal Bar Association, meeting last night at the University Club, indorsed the Capper bill to provide all possible garage space in the Triangle area in order to relieve the congested parking conditions. The association also approved the introduction of a bill to make funds available for erection of a Government-owned garage to house between eight and nine thousand automobiles.

Following the meeting of the council the regular meeting of the association was held, Dr. Henry B. Hazard, chief counsel of the bureau of naturalization, speaking on "Safeguarding American Citizenship."

Superintendent of Police Plans to Recover From Cold at Aiken.

Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, Superintendent of Police, will leave today for Aiken, S. C., for a week or ten days' rest to recuperate from a cold which has kept him away from his duties recently.

Decision to take the Southern trip was made by Gen. Glassford after conference with his personal physician and with Commissioner Herbert Crosby, both of whom strongly urged the rest.

Later on Gen. Glassford will make a tour of the Middle Western and Western cities inspecting police systems. He is expected at that time to seek ideas regarding plans for the projected police building here. The police chief at that time may also visit his ranch in Arizona.

2 'Customers,' One Armed, Flee in Salesman's Auto

"Prospects" Complain of First Car and Are Taken for Ride in Second; One Pulls Revolver and Orders Their Host to Get Out.

A Washington automobile salesman met an unusual type of customer yesterday—one who replied with a gun instead of the currency.

Rudolph Dossett, 30-year-old salesman for the Blanton Motor Co., 7 New York avenue northwest, interviewed two middle aged "prospects." They selected a used car and were taken for a demonstration ride.

After a short ride, the two customers said the car was all right, but the tires were too old. So Dossett took them back to the motor company and brought out another car which seemed to be satisfactory. The two then asked for an exhibition of the car's speed.

Dossett took the car and the men out on New York avenue between Florida avenue and Bladensburg road. Half way down the street one of the men asked to drive the car. Dossett acquiesced, and seats were exchanged, one of the prospects remaining in the back seat.

A few blocks, later the man behind pulled a revolver and ordered Dossett to get out. He did.

3 NEW ASSOCIATIONS ASSAIL MAPES BILL

Passage by House Without Public Hearing Is Hit as "Unfair."

Civic barrage against the Mapes District taxation bill gathered new impetus last night when three citizens associations expressed their disapproval of the measure.

A resolution pointing out the unfairness of the action of the House of Representatives in passing the bill without public hearing was adopted by the Burleith group, which met in Gordon Junior High School.

These citizens termed the act an "outrage." The Takoma Park body also adopted a resolution recommending that the bill receive no further consideration in the Senate until it has been studied by the Bureau of Efficiency.

Further Opposition.

In a motion, the Sixteenth Street Heights Association instructed its secretary to draft a resolution expressing disapproval of the bill in its present form. This group met at the Northminster Chapel.

The Takoma citizens commended Senator Arthur Capper for his interest in District affairs and his fairness in dealing with them. They sent felicitations to Mr. and Mrs. Azro Cory, residents since 1884, on their golden wedding anniversary.

The Electric League's award for the most beautifully lighted home in Burleith during the holidays went to Mrs. Ada Kleinpeter and Miss Margaret Conelly, of 3614 F street northwest.

To Study Fire Protection.

Capt. Joseph Morgan, of Sixth Precinct police, spoke at the Sixteenth Street Heights meeting. The group was also addressed by Thomas Littlepage, and by H. S. Fritz, Community Chest worker.

These citizens appointed a committee to prepare a report on fire protection in their community, portions of which are 3 miles from the nearest fire house.

District Employes Give $138,274.88 for Chest

District employes subscribed $138,274.88 to the Community Chest campaign, District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan announced yesterday. A total of 9,920 District employes contributed something to the drive, whereas 1,230 failed to give anything.

Pledges of three days' pay, amounting to $125,036.68, were made by 7,546 employes; more than three days' pay, or $1,611.05, was subscribed by 57, while less than the standard of three days' pay, or $11,627.13, was pledged by 2,217. Of the total amount pledged, $3,020.09 was subscribed with the understanding that it would go to agencies outside the District.

Letts' Nomination Rouses Opposition

Hearings on Appointments to Bench Will Be Held Saturday.

Hearings on two presidential appointments to the District Supreme Court bench, awaiting confirmation of the Senate, will be held Saturday by Senator John J. Blaine's subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee, he announced last night.

Some opposition is understood to have arisen to the appointment of F. Dickinson Letts, and at least one witness has asked to be heard on his nomination, at Saturday's meeting.

Members of the subcommittee declined to disclose the nature of the opposition, or who will be the complaining witness. Appointment of Daniel W. O'Donoghue as an associate justice also will be passed on at Saturday's meeting.

Child, 5, Hurt by Auto.

Frances Crawn, 5 years old, was slightly injured yesterday when she was knocked down by an automobile in front of her home at 1831 Second street northeast. The wheels of the car passed over her toes. She was treated at Sibley Hospital, where she was taken by the driver, R. F. Campbell, 25 years old, of 2110 Third street northeast. The child only suffered bruises.

POLICE USED STICKS, BOY TELLS JURYMEN

Clark-Bremerman Trial May Last Week; Two of 75 Witnesses Heard.

Indications that the trial of Policemen Hollis Clark and Charles C. Bremerman, of the Second Precinct, would last more than a week were seen in the District Supreme Court yesterday when Justice F. D. Letts adjourned court at 3 o'clock with only two witnesses of an estimated total of 75 heard.

Joseph Brown, colored youth and companion of Thomas McKeever Williams, complaining witness against the two policemen, occupied the witness stand for the entire day. He was subjected to two grueling tests, first by William A. Gallagher, assistant United States attorney, and then by John H. Burnett, assistant to James A. O'Shea, chief defense counsel.

Despite his five hours on the stand, Brown adhered to his original story that Bremerman and Clark had beaten Williams, himself, and others at intervals over a three-day period last June in order to extract from them confessions to housebreaking charges.

Brown was required to leave his seat and demonstrate with his arms in telling his story of how much force his two alleged tormentors had used when they lined up a group of young colored boys, stood them on their toes and smote them with sticks, fists and blackjacks whenever they came down from their toes.

His story that Williams had been badly beaten and had been so severely struck with a stick that he collapsed, seemed to impress the twelve jurors. Williams said that for three days he and his companions were alternately beaten by Bremerman and Clark who, he said, tried to get them to admit crimes which he, Williams, denied having perpetrated.

Williams was still undergoing cross-examination when court adjourned. He will take the stand again today.

Vase Appraised at $25,000 And $100 Object of Hunt

A vase modeled in ancient Apulia, a compartiments of Italy, more than 2,000 years ago and insured for $25,000 by its present owner, Mario d'Onofrio, Baltimore curio shop owner, was being sought here yesterday at the request of authorities of the neighboring city where it was stolen New Year's Day.

Despite the amount of the policy issued against the product of the potters of Apulia, Prof. David M. Robinson, Johns Hopkins University archeologist, said that the vase is worth no more than $100. But Mr. D'Onofrio, who acquired the vase at an auction of the effects of the late French Consul Leonce Rabillion at Baltimore, says:

"No one can set an arbitrary price on such an antique."

The insurance company, meanwhile, has urged police to look out for the vase and the search has extended as far as Chicago.

The missing vase is said to be about 10½ inches high and about 10 inches in diameter. Figures of The Three Graces decorate the urn.

SHADE TREES IN CITY TO SHOW 3,000 GAIN AT FISCAL YEAR END

2,000 Planted Within Last Few Months; Capital Is Ahead of Paris.

114,000 NOW GROWING IN LIMITS OF DISTRICT

Number Exclusive of Those in Public Parks, Says Supt. Lanham.

Approximately 3,000 new shade trees, or about 30 miles of new trees, will have been added to the District thoroughfares at the close of the fiscal year, which ends June 30, it was announced yesterday by Clifford Lanham, District Superintendent of Trees and Parking.

Washington is now the most famous tree city in the world, Mr. Lanham said, having approximately 114,000 shade trees, exclusive of those in public parks. This figure exceeds the number of trees in Paris, famous as a tree city, by 29,000.

2,000 New Trees Planted.

In the past few months, 2,000 new trees have been planted and, within the next few months, another 1,000 will be placed. For the continuance of the work of his office, Mr. Lanham is seeking $122,000 appropriation from Congress for the fiscal year ending in July, 1933.

A movement is under way to plant a tree in the grounds of each of the District's 200 schools, to commemorate the Bicentennial of Washington's birth. The trees, it is planned, will be placed on Arbor Day, the third Friday in April. Ceremonies will be held in each school when the saplings are imbedded in the soil.

The new trees being placed are: Red oak, pin oak, American elm, oriental plane (sycamore), gingko, Chinese elm and American linden, all of which are raised in the District's nurseries at Poplar Point, on the Eastern Branch, and at Fort Dupont, on Alabama avenue. The seeds are gathered from the trees on the streets.

Marks Anniversary of Office.

This year will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of a District office given to the systematic planting of trees, which was organized at the instigation of Alexander Shepherd, who, in 1873, was appointed Governor of the District by President Grant. The District was then under the territorial form of government.

Under Mr. Lanham, a force of approximately 150 workmen is engaged throughout the year in planting, removing, trimming, spraying and treating trees which shade the city's thoroughfares. Another force is engaged in cultivating new trees on the 62 acres of nursery ground at Fort Dupont and Poplar Point.

$1,000 Dress Loot Is Taken From Store

Police last night sought to trace the thief or thieves who entered the Doris Dress Shop, Inc., 2918 Fourteenth street northwest, and made away with approximately $1,000 worth of women's dresses.

The robbery was discovered yesterday morning by Jesse A. Rosenbloom, proprietor of the store. Entrance had been gained by sawing a bar on a rear window, and breaking the glass. One hundred and sixty-nine dresses were taken by the robbers.
